Refugees need us: Reagan

Must back President, he urges at Crane fund-raiser in Chicago

by BOB LAHEY
Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.
Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."
Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Phillip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.
In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.
"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."
REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."
At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.
BOTH REAGAN and Crane received enthusiastic receptions from the 12th Congressional district residents.

$22.5 million bond sale sought

Alexian asks village funds for expansion

by JILL BETTNER
Alexian Brothers Medical Center is asking Elk Grove Village to issue $22.5 million in tax-exempt municipal bonds to refinance the hospital's debts and pay for expanding its facilities.
The low-interest bonds being sought by the medical center would be sold by the village without referendum and paid off entirely by the operating revenues of the hospital.
Richard Harrell, Alexian Brothers' first vice president, refused to discuss details of the bond proposal or the hospital's financial situation.
"This is one of the most economical ways for us to obtain capital," Harrell said as his only comment on the request.

VILLAGE PRES. Charles Zettek said hospital officials suggested the bond sale to village trustees in an executive session Monday night. The meeting was in apparent violation of the Illinois Open Meeting Act.
Zettek said based on the discussion at the meeting, it is his understanding that the hospital is not in serious financial trouble.
"The hospital merely wishes us to offer bonds on the market to improve their financial position and finish the expansion and renovation they've started," Zettek said.
Alexian Brothers has undertaken a $13 million improvements program that includes a partially-completed wing.

ZETTEK SAID hospital representatives have indicated they would use $14 million in proceeds from the proposed bond sale to refinance current debts, $3 million to cover costs of the expansion program and to put the remaining $3 million in escrow to meet "a financial crisis should one arise."
Harrell would not confirm the figures cited by Zettek, saying plans for the bond sale and its proceeds are only in the "very beginning stages."
The first public disclosure of the plan came Tuesday night when a letter was read at the village board meeting from hospital administrator Brother Felix Bettendorf.
THE LETTER SAID the medical center would assume all costs of arranging and conducting the bond sale.
"In our continuing attempt to provide the highest quality of care as economically as possible to all people who use the medical center, we are asking Elk Grove Village to assist us

Two plead guilty to 12 area burglaries

Two Maine Township men were given prison sentences Tuesday after they pleaded guilty to a total of 12 burglaries in the Northwest suburbs.
Charles N. Hardt, 20, of 9250 Noel Dr., was sentenced to 1 to 7 years in state prison and his roommate, Robert L. Clark, 21, was sentenced to 1 to 5 years. Both appeared before Judge Anton A. Smigiel in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.
Police said the pair pleaded guilty to a combination of the 12 charges against them. They each were charged with eight burglaries in Hoffman Estates, two burglaries in Schaumburg, one in Mount Prospect and one in Elk Grove Village.
Hardt and Clark were arrested early last October after Mount Prospect police interrupted a burglary in progress at 717 S. William St., Mount Prospect, and traced the two men to their apartment.

Chief pleads hit-run court case for secretary's kin

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.
Guttilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines.
"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Guttilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."
AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Guttilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.
"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.
"No, just that my damages were taken care of... they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.
Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.
A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.
A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday.
Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Guttilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.
Guttilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Guttilla told The Herald.
"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

Hospital asks village bond issue for funds

Alexian Brothers Medical Center is asking Elk Grove Village to issue $22.5 million in tax-exempt municipal bonds to refinance the local hospital's debts and pay for expanding its facilities. The low-interest bonds being sought by the medical center would be sold by the village without referendum and paid off entirely by the operating revenues of the hospital, Richard Harrell, Alexian Brothers first vice president, said. "This is one of the most economical ways for us to obtain capital."

Closer supervision urged

A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January. The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services. Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, Wednesday said Camelot was given a "favorable" rating by the team, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center. "The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Kids 'strike' over picnic

Eighth graders at Keller Junior High School in Schaumburg refused to attend classes for a brief time Wednesday morning protesting the cancellation of the annual eighth-grade picnic. The picnic was not scheduled this year because the school calendar was shortened according to a provision in the contract between teachers and the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Keller students decided Wednesday to protest the decision by refusing to go to 11 a.m. classes. About four classrooms of students remained in the hall after the bell rang for the period, said principal Curtis Casey. The students had "good intentions" and they were not "disruptive," he said.

Township aid rolls triple

The number of persons receiving public assistance in Maine Township the first three months of this year was more than triple the number for the same period last year, Maine Township Supervisor James J. Dowd said Wednesday. Dowd said 1,247 persons received public aid between Jan. 1 and March 31, compared with 401 for the first three months of 1974, an increase of 211 per cent. The first quarter figures for 1975 are 431 per cent higher than for the same period in 1973 when 235 persons received aid, he said. Dowd attributed the increase to the rapid increase in unemployment of township residents and delays in transferring assistance recipients to county rolls.

Keep wells, Buffalo Grove urges

Buffalo Grove officials called on other communities Wednesday not to abandon wells if they get a share of Lake Michigan water. Testifying at state hearings on allocation of the water Illinois will be allowed to take from the lake, the Buffalo Grove officials put in a plea to other communities not to consider the lake as a sole future of water. "In our opinion Lake Michigan water will eventually become a necessity not only for Buffalo Grove but for many if not all communities in the Chicago area . . . Hopefully if all communities using wells can make cooperative use of Lake Michigan water to reduce or stabilize their pumping rates, the life of these wells can be greatly extended and the cost of supplying adequate water can be kept less than that of a 100 per cent well supply system," the village's application for lake water said.

Pair sentenced for burglaries

Two Maine Township men were given prison sentences Tuesday after they pleaded guilty to 12 burglaries in the Northwest suburbs. Charles N. Hardt, 20, of 9250 Noel Dr., was sentenced to 1 to 7 years in state prison. His roommate, Robert L. Clark, 21, was sentenced to 1 to 5 years. Both appeared before Judge Anton A. Smigiel in the Niles branch of Circuit Court. Police said the pair pleaded guilty to a combination of the 12 charges against them. They each were charged with eight burglaries in Hoffman Estates, two burglaries in Schaumburg, one in Mount Prospect and one in Elk Grove Village.

Administration building scrapped

The East Maine Dist. 63 Board of Education has reversed an earlier decision and dropped plans for construction of a $475,000 administration building.

About 150 parents, teachers and administration office staff members watched Tuesday night as the board, in a 4-to-3 vote changed its February decision to build an administration center as an addition to Apollo Junior High School, 10100 Deco Rd., Des Plaines. In February, the board voted 5 to 2 in support of constructing the center.

Malpractice insurance rates soar

by United Press International

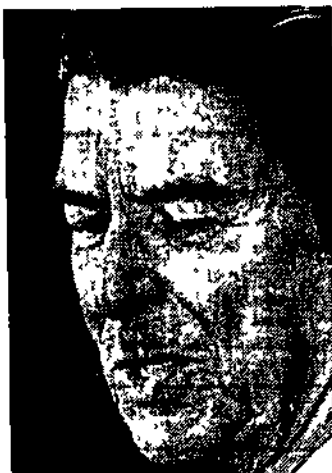

The Illinois State Medical Society announced Wednesday it plans to increase malpractice insurance rates for Illinois doctors by 46 to 89 per cent beginning July 1.

The medical society, which offers malpractice coverage under a group plan, said the increased rates are due to the rising number of malpractice suits.

A spokesman for the society said doctors in medical areas considered to be high risk such as anesthesiology will have to pay the largest rate increase.

Doctors in Illinois now pay about $3,900 a year for $1 million in malpractice coverage. The new rate will be $7,116 for the same amount of coverage.

Malpractice rates also by area and among those having the highest rates are the counties of Cook, Lake, St. Clair, Madison, and Peoria.

Harper to weigh classroom rental in shopping mall

The Harper College Board of Trustees will discuss renting classroom space in the Hintz-Buffalo Grove Shopping Plaza in Wheeling at a meeting tonight.

The board will have a public committee-of-the-whole meeting at the college beginning at 7:30 p.m. to discuss renting space for 10 classrooms in the shopping mall at the corner of Hintz and Buffalo Grove roads. The committee meeting will be followed by the board's regular meeting at 8 p.m. at which the board is expected to take action on the rental.

Also during the regular meeting, the board will discuss a proposal from newly elected board chairman Shirley Munson to allow members of the public to address the board during its meetings without prior notice.

MRS. MUNSON said she will ask the board to consider changing its policy, which now requires persons who want to address the board to request space on the agenda in advance. The change, she said, would allow anyone attending the meeting to speak during a designated time with a time limit set by the board chairman.

The policy change cannot be adopted by the board at tonight's meeting because board procedures require a policy change to be given a first reading one month before final adoption. Mrs. Munson said she is suggesting the change because "I felt the present format has the advantage of presenting an orderly procedure, but it might sometimes curtail or even prevent someone from speaking to the board."

If the board approves a lease for the classrooms in Wheeling, day and evening classes will be held there beginning with Harper's fall term. The additional space will relieve crowding at the Harper campus and also will cut down travel time for students living in Wheeling, Buffalo Grove and northern Arlington Heights, college officials said.

First dispatch from Saigon:

Life normal; security 'on the honor system'

by United Press International
The first UPI dispatch filed from Saigon since its fall to the Communists a week ago said Wednesday life had returned to normal in the capital but there was still no formal government or police force. It said security was "more or less on the honor system."

The dispatch, written by UPI Saigon bureau chief Alan Dawson, said there was speculation of a political struggle between hardline Communists, particularly Hanoi government officials, and the softer Viet Cong. But he said there was no confirmation of this.

He said that according to this speculation, the Viet Cong apparently wanted to give non-Communists some representation in the government, but the North Vietnamese were against this.

"There were no reported Viet Cong reprisals, and life in Saigon returned to normal within 48 hours of the Communist takeover," reported Dawson, one of five UPI newsmen who remained behind after Communist forces took over the South Vietnamese capital April 30.

"Security in the city has been more or less on the honor system since then with only the threat of rumored swift curb-side justice by Communist forces holding back looting and hooliganism," his dispatch said.

Dawson's dispatch was in the form of a commercial cable from Saigon by way of Hanoi to the UPI Hong Kong bureau.

Dawson reported the Saigon black market was still open — with Viet Cong and North Vietnamese troops

Communists overrun Laos town

Pro-communist Pathet Lao troops overran a government town 75 miles north of the Laotian capital and were immediately ordered by the coalition government to pull back.

In Vientiane, a former national assembly deputy and two others were killed when a terrorist threw a hand grenade into their car.

shopping for goods looted from the American PX. He said Communist soldiers could be seen chatting amiably with civilians.

"Saigon continued in many ways to be the wide-open city it has during the past 30 years of warfare," he said.

Dawson's dispatch said that a week after the Communist takeover there was still no police force in Saigon and many thousands of Communist troops who at first had wandered or patrolled the streets in the first days after the liberation, had withdrawn outside the capital.

He said banks were still closed, and black market currency dealings were flourishing.

Viet Cong directives put civil servants back on their previous jobs, although Communists now hold the major positions.

Buddhist pagodas and Roman Catholic churches, other than a routine identification check of priests and nuns, were allowed to operate normally, personnel at the houses of worship told UPI. But attendance was down, particularly at the pagodas. Viet Cong soldiers attended Sunday mass at the Saigon Basilica.

A new newspaper, Saigon Giai Phong Saigon Liberation appeared for the first time last Sunday. It had a picture of Ho Chi Minh on the front page plus an analysis of how the Vietnamese people had defeated American imperialism.

Dawson said the Communist takeover of Saigon went almost as smooth as silk with a well planned military and political operation moving in and seizing control within hours of surrender by the last government.

Mrs. Phuong, a widow, will start work for Catholic Relief Services in Portland, Ore. She had a similar job in Vietnam.

Panel votes refugee aid funds

Migration enters 2nd week

by United Press International
In increasing numbers, Americans opened their hearts to the plight of homeless refugees Wednesday as the massive migration from South Vietnam entered its second week.

In Washington, a House Judiciary subcommittee unanimously approved legislation requested by President Ford to provide whatever funds are necessary for the resettlement of Indochina refugees.

The legislation would authorize "such sums as may be necessary" for the care of refugees from South Vietnam and Cambodia.

The vote followed an impassioned plea from Committee Chairman Peter

W. Rodino, D-N.J., to keep "the American dream" alive for homeless immigrants.

The long trail to exile stretched to the Philippines where a "ghost fleet" of South Vietnamese navy vessels arrived Wednesday packed with an estimated 20,000 refugees.

In all, about 120,000 refugees will be admitted to the U.S. And a few thousand more caught up in the last-hour chaos could still turn up seeking a haven, officials said.

Only about 12,000 of the refugees — wives, children and in-laws of Americans or those with American friends — have been processed through the camps and started new lives around America.

A resettlement official said if all goes well, refugee camps at Camp Pendleton, Calif., Ft. Chaffee, Ark., and Elgin Air Force Base, Fla., could be emptied and the refugees resettled in three months.

He said the most time consuming chore was matching people with jobs and sponsors and keeping a geographical balance as the refugees fan out across the country.

L. Doan Brown, head of the government's refugee program, told the House International Affairs Committee the evacuation "is now over" and the administration will pressure "The international community" to offer homes to some of the refugees.

Bodies of two dead Marines left in Saigon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The bodies of the last two Marines killed in Vietnam were not brought home in the chaos of the final evacuation, and probably remain at the Seventh Day Adventist Hospital in Saigon, the Pentagon said Wednesday.

It said the State Department is trying to arrange their return.

Marine Cpl. Charles McMahon Jr., of Woburn, Mass., 21, and Lance Cpl. Darwin L. Judge of Marshalltown, Iowa, 19, were killed April 28 while standing guard duty at Tan Son Nhut Airport about six hours before the final evacuation of Americans and South Vietnamese.

The Pentagon explained that in the confusion of the last American day in Saigon, everyone thought someone else had seen to the two men's remains.

OAS to sidestep Cuba sanction issue

Foreign ministers of the Organization of American States, their attention diverted to more pressing economic and political issues, will sidestep the issue of lifting sanctions against Cuba during their annual meeting starting Thursday. Instead, the talks will center on such matters as the impact on the region's economies of the new U.S. trade law, reform of the inter-American system and election of a new secretary general.

Katzenbach recalls LBJ-CIA talk

Former Attorney General Nicholas Katzenbach said Wednesday top CIA officials told President Lyndon B. Johnson in 1965 that the spy agency had never been involved in the assassination of foreign leaders. Katzenbach recalled a meeting he had with Johnson and then CIA Director Richard Helms in April, 1965.

"LBJ asked Helms if the CIA had ever been involved in any assassination," Katzenbach told reporters. "Tell me, I want to know," Katzenbach quoted Johnson as saying. "Helms said flatly 'No, the CIA is not involved,'" Katzenbach said.

Consumer protection bill in Senate again

Legislation to create a consumer protection agency began what may be a swift course through the Senate Wednesday when backers stepped in to head off a repeat of the filibuster that killed the plan last year. As foes of the idea warmed up another attack, Senate Democratic Leader Mike Mansfield announced that a petition to cut off debate on the bill would be filed Friday.

In other legislation, the House gave final congressional approval to federal strip mining legislation, with its chief proponent predicting another presidential veto. The measure passed on a 233-115 vote.

Cardwell: Social Security System secure

James B. Cardwell, commissioner of Social Security, said Wednesday no one need worry that the Social Security system is going broke. In testimony to a House Ways and Means subcommittee, Cardwell criticized "sensational and alarmist articles" in the press which he said had predicted that Social Security was in trouble.

Some wartime benefits for GIs ended by Ford

WASHINGTON (UPI) — In an act marking the end of the Vietnam era, President Ford Wednesday canceled some wartime benefits and asked Congress to eliminate the GI Bill's education program for future servicemen.

With a stroke of the pen, Ford canceled burial allowances, death pensions and benefits for non-service connected disability for men and women entering the military after May 6.

Service connected death and disability benefits continue in full force.

And in a message less than happily received by Congress, Ford asked the lawmakers to end GI Bill education benefits for those entering the service July 1 or later.

Almost everyone who has served in the military since 1940 has been eligible for the GI Bill's payments to offset the cost of an education. More than 15 million men have taken advantage of the benefits and they will cost $4.2 billion this year.

Although Ford called the GI Bill "a wartime benefit," Congress in 1967 voted to extend the benefits to peacetime soldiers who served between the Korean and Vietnam Wars.

Press Secretary Ron Nessen said Ford's action signals "the end of the Vietnam era."

Bay doctors predict bankrupt hospitals

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI) — Striking doctors Wednesday rejected a legislator's recommendation that they go back to work and predicted five hospitals would be bankrupt if their boycott of operating rooms lasts another week.

"We're still not working, except for emergency cases," said Dr. Donald Walker, who is a member of a special "crisis committee" spearheading the stop work protest by anesthesiologists that began a week ago.

The doctors allowed malpractice insurance to lapse on the first of the month because their insurance company drastically raised its rates, to $18,000 a year for anesthesiologists.

Dr. Seymour Wallace, president of the California Society of Anesthesiologists, predicted that five of 50 hospitals affected by the work stoppage in the San Francisco area would be bankrupt if it lasts more than two weeks.

An estimated 1,100 angry physicians from throughout the state gathered at the state capitol in Sacramento Tuesday to demand relief.

But they were bluntly told by legislative leaders that no action would be taken on their demand to freeze immediately the insurance rates until a long-term solution could be found.

"I personally recommend you go back to work," said Assembly Speaker Leo McCarthy.

McCarthy said Wednesday the doctors could not expect the legislature to solve the problem of higher insurance premiums overnight.

"Lawyers are making a killing robbing doctors," said Sacramento chest surgeon John Somers.

"It is true that lawyers are profiting from this," Dr. Walker said Wednesday. "But it's more a problem that involves the insurance companies and the lawyers — also the system."

"The insurance companies under the present regulations can place a rate increase anytime they want. Insurance companies don't appear to be responsible to anyone."

"The system now provides the patient with 20 per cent out of each premium dollar that I pay, and the rest goes to the insurance company and to the attorneys for the defense and the plaintiff."

Ships steaming out of Suez Canal

ISMAILIA, Egypt (UPI) — Two rusty-hulled West German merchant ships trapped in the Suez Canal for eight years steamed out of the waterway into Port Said harbor Wednesday. Twelve other ships stranded by war will be towed out soon.

The Munsterland — at 8,965 tons the largest ship to use the canal since the waterway was closed by the 1967 Arab-Israeli war — slipped into the canal's middle channel at dawn and arrived in Port Said harbor on the Mediterranean Sea nearly seven hours later.

Behind her came the 8,656-ton Nordwind, also flying the yellow, red and black West German flag. The Egyptian tugboat Mared followed in case of an unexpected breakdown.

The ships have been manned by alternating skeleton crews since the June, 1967, war. Except for the rust that hugged the waterline and the super-structures, both vessels looked in good condition.

Only these two of 14 stranded cargo ships in the canal were able to make the 60-mile journey from the Great Bitter Lake to Port Said under their own power. The others will be towed out in pairs at two or three-day intervals starting Friday, Mashhour Ahmed Mashhour, chairman of the Suez Canal Authority, said.

Mashhour, who watched from the sandy banks just south of this central canal city as the two vessels moved off, said he was "Happy to see the ships passing."

Asked how safe the international waterway was now that the year-long, four-nation clearing operations were near an end, Mashhour said:

"The Suez Canal is the cleanest waterway in the world . . . It is completely clean of ordnance and all explosives."

THE FIRST Western cargo ship to sail up the Suez Canal, the West German Nordwind, makes way toward Port Said. The freighter is one of two German ships trapped in the canal for eight years.

Miss Onassis announces she's boss

• Christina Onassis, 24, daughter and heir of the late Aristotle Onassis, left British oil tycoons in no doubt Wednesday as to who runs her family's multimillion dollar business interests. "From now on," said the richest girl in the world, "if there is anything to be decided you will be dealing with me." While Miss Onassis was at the Claridge Hotel in London, her stepmother, Jacqueline Onassis, arrived from New York. Jacqueline did not say why she had come to London.

• University of Kansas student James Dillard — a crusty veteran of the Brotherhood of Pieta Assassins — committed the hitman's nightmare. His pie missed Dr. David Holmes, a psychology professor, and he allowed himself to be captured. His bad aim made him lose the $20 fee and the identification may cost him six months in jail. Holmes was not amused at the latest campus fad. He said "If this kind of behavior is not stopped, it might have a snowballing effect."

• Susan Ford made her debut as a photographer at her father's press conference Tuesday night. "Who's that blonde over there clicking pictures?" a newsman jokingly asked Ford after the conference. The President laughed and said Susan was working with White House photographer David Hume Kennerly — without compensation — to complete a school project.

Village board wrapup

Action postponed on sign-law change

The Elk Grove Village Board postponed action this week on an amendment to the sign ordinance that would have permitted large free-standing billboard advertising signs visible to traffic on the Northwest Tollway.

Two businesses in Elk Grove Township are seeking annexation to Elk Grove Village, provided they can keep their oversized billboards. Both businesses, Hyatt Chalet Motel Inc., 1920 E. Higgins Rd., and Beef 'N' Barrel, 1932 E. Higgins Rd., are requesting the sign variation.

Although the trustees reviewed the annexation petitions, no action was taken on the request.

Concrete pole pact signed

The village has contracted with Commonwealth Edison Co. for installation and maintenance of 18 concrete streetlight poles in the Center Industrial Park.

Trammell Crow Co., developers of the industrial area, will reimburse the village the $4,806 installation cost.

The village will pay a $110.88 energy and maintenance cost.

Plan panel meeting Saturday

Trustee Edward Kenna, chairman of the judiciary, planning and zoning committee, scheduled a 9 a.m. Saturday meeting of the committee in the trustees' conference room of the municipal building at 901 Wellington Ave.

Businessmen, trustees meet

Village officials and officers of the Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce will meet at 7 p.m. today at the Navarone Restaurant Steak House, 1903 E. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Village. Village Pres. Charles Zetek said the dinner meeting is an annual event to further communications between the two bodies.

Prevent further disturbances

'More guidance needed at Camelot'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated on their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said.

Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As for the incident in January, I think the police overreacted to a situation that was not that damaging."

SCHLOSSER ADDED that the evaluation was not done as an investigation and that the state evaluates all its child-care facilities each year to point out strengths and weaknesses to the center directors.

The evaluation also recommended encouraging youths to make better use of their free time, developing a peer-support program to give the youths an incentive to do "constructive things" and continuing remodeling the center's facilities, he said.

The evaluation "positively noted" the program and staff improvements that the directors James and Shirley Spicer have made since they purchased the 18-acre ranch in November 1973, Schlosser said.

THE CENTER was originally named the MRB Ranch after its founder, Milroy R. Blowitz.

The center is licensed to offer short-term treatment to 17 youths who are abandoned, neglected or troubled, ranging in age from 7 to 17.

Spicer, who has reviewed the evaluation of Camelot, said he and his wife will continue to make improvements in the facility and programming.

"We are trying to do a respectable, honest job here at the center. We are in the process of making changes, but we want people to realize that what goes on here is really not any different than what goes on in most homes with children," Spicer said.

FAA ripped on Palwaukee safety

by LUISA GINETTI

The Wheeling Environment Advisory Commission Wednesday night chided Federal Aviation Administration officials for failing to strictly enforce safety regulations at Palwaukee Airport.

Commission members questioned FAA officials about the location of landing lights from the Hintz-Wolf road intersection and the weight limitation of planes allowed to land at the airport.

William Rogers, commission chairman, questioned officials about the potential hazard of the lights too close to the road creating the possibility of an aircraft descending too low over the road before landing.

Rogers also asked FAA officials if they were aware of regulations set down by the county, limiting the weight load of aircraft to be allowed at the airport when Palwaukee was granted a special use permit 12 years ago.

FAA OFFICIALS said they are not empowered to enforce the county regulations, which limit a plane's gross weight load to 60,000 pounds, and cannot tell the owner of a private airport where he should locate landing lights.

"The question of safety is one which we look to you to provide for us," Rogers told the officials. "We look to you for leadership. What would be the harm in the FAA moving the lights down the runway further from Wolf Road?"

Trustee John C. Cole, a retired Navy pilot, said he also believed the position of the runway lights presented a hazard not only for motorists but for pilots.

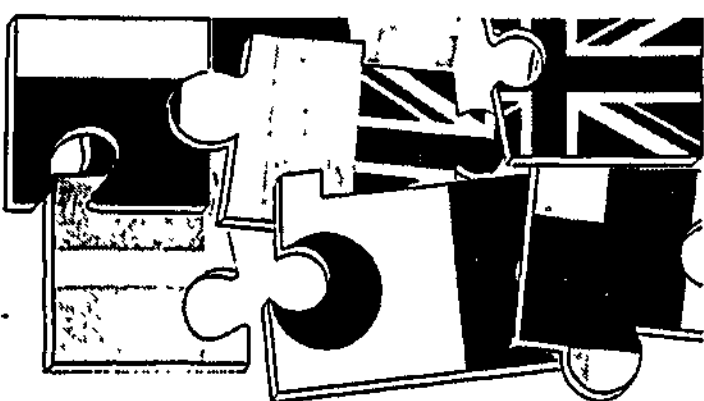

Cole also questioned the proximity of the airport's longest runway, 34-16, to the Wolf-Hintz intersection.

"I'm afraid one of these days a pilot is going to have to abort his take-off and he's going to slide off that runway into a school bus," Cole said.

COMR. JAMES GREEN said the fact that the FAA cannot enforce the county's special use permit regarding Palwaukee points up a serious problem.

"There seems to be a tremendous lack of communication between government agencies here which is presenting a problem for the Village of Wheeling," Green said.

Rogers questioned how the FAA could disregard basic safety concerns imposed by the special use permit yet continue to operate at Palwaukee.

Cicero youth gets probation

Franklin Park man gets jail term for bad checks

A 29-year-old Franklin Park man was sentenced to the state penitentiary and an 18-year-old Cicero youth was placed on felony probation in unrelated Mount Prospect bad-check cases heard this week in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Joseph J. Beneventi, 2830 Emerson, Franklin Park, was sentenced to 1 to 3 years in prison after he pleaded guilty to theft by deception. Police said Beneventi falsely identified himself as a Mount Prospect man last August, then asked for some new checks drawn to the Mount Prospect man's account and then cashed the checks.

Police said the checks were passed at the Countryside Bank, 1190 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect.

Beneventi, who was sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Anton A. Smigiel, will start serving his prison term Tuesday.

In the other case, Smigiel placed Daniel D. Tryba, Cicero, to three years' felony probation after Tryba pleaded guilty. Tryba also must make restitution, police said.

Tryba tried to cash a stolen check Nov. 4, 1974, at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect drive-up window, 990 N. Elmhurst Rd., police said.

Zettek orders 'advice' as commissioner

Liquor-control group to be named

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek has ordered establishment of a liquor-control commission to advise him in his capacity as village liquor commissioner.

Zettek termed the power he wields as liquor commissioner "a terribly awful power."

He asked Village Atty. Edward Ho-

fert to draw up an ordinance establishing a commission, consisting of the village president and two trustees.

Zettek said a commission would act as an advisory group and could be helpful in hearing and deciding complaints.

As liquor commissioner, Zettek, according to state law, has sole power to grant or revoke liquor licenses.

Hofert said that as village president, Zettek cannot relinquish the power. Zettek said he did not plan to give up the responsibility but wants the commission to help him hear complaints and advise him on issues.

"I think it's fairer to have, say, two trustees and myself hear a complaint and make decisions than for just myself or any one man make a decision without any advice," Zettek said.

Zettek called an advisory liquor commission a means of eliminating the possible abuse of the liquor-control commissioner's power.

Keller eighth graders stay away from classes

Kids 'strike' over canceled picnic

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Eighth graders at Keller Junior High School in Schaumburg refused to attend classes for a brief time Wednesday morning protesting the cancellation of the annual eighth-grade picnic.

The picnic was not scheduled this year because the school calendar was shortened according to a provision in the contract between teachers and the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Schools in Illinois are allowed five emergency days in addition to the number of regular school days required by law. The extra days are set aside for school closing due to snow, power failures or other emergencies.

TEACHERS IN Dist. 54 last year negotiated a three-year contract with the board that calls for the elimination of unused emergency days. One of the extra days is set aside for teachers for end-of-year bookkeeping. The contract states that half of the remaining days must be taken off the end of the school year.

Dist. 54 did not use any of its five emergency days this year. As a result school will be dismissed June 11 instead of June 13. Because of the shortened school year eighth-grade outings in each of the four Dist. 54 junior high schools were not scheduled.

For the past five years one of the extra school days at Keller has been set aside for a picnic for eighth graders in honor of their graduation from junior high school, said principal Curtis Casey. The junior high school principals this year decided they "could not justify taking another day of school" for an outing, he said.

KELLER STUDENTS decided Wednesday to protest the decision by refusing to go to 11 a.m. classes. About four classrooms of students remained in the hall after the bell rang for the period, Casey said. The students had "good intentions" and they were not "disruptive," he said.

Once teachers explained the reason for the cancellation of the picnic, the students returned to classes, Casey said. Many students were 'tardy' as a result of the protest, he said, but only those students who had been tardy twice this semester will be given a detention.

Casey said he is now meeting with the student council to arrange an eighth grade class outing, either after school hours or on a weekend.

Palatine High's future at stake?

New high school to get name tonight

High School Dist. 211's new school will be given a name by the board of education tonight, in a decision that may forecast the fate of the district's oldest building, Palatine High School.

The district's sixth high school, under construction north of the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine, is scheduled to open in 1977. At the board's most recent meeting, Board Pres. Robert Creek said he was "very close to saying the new building is Palatine High School." During his campaign for reelection last month, Board Member William Stenstrom said he was ready to name the new building Palatine High School and sell the old school to the village.

PALATINE HIGH SCHOOL, 150 E. Wood St., was built in 1929 and is in need of major repairs and renovation. An administrative committee is studying possible uses of the old school, including selling or renting the building to another community agency, making it into an alternate day school, an enrollment overload school or a vocational or continuing education center.

The board does not plan to make a decision on the fate of the old school for at least another year. It has decided that the school will be closed, at least temporarily, in 1977 and students will be transferred to the new building. The old building will then be remodeled and reopened as a high school or it will be sold or used for another purpose.

The board is scheduled to name the new school when it meets at 8 p.m. at the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine Township.

The board also will discuss changing class schedules from an eight-period day to a nine-period day next year to relieve overcrowding.

ENROLLMENT PROJECTIONS for Palatine Township show that both Palatine and Fremd high schools will be overcrowded in the next two years. The capacity of Fremd is 2,800 students; enrollment is expected to be 2,740 next year and 2,830 by the fall of 1976.

Palatine has a capacity of 1,800 students and now houses 1,900. Next year the enrollment is expected to be 2,000 and will reach 2,050 by the fall of 1976.

The board will consider remodeling some offices at Fremd for extra classroom space and stagger class periods at Palatine next year so juniors and seniors will start classes at 7:30, sophomores at 8:25 and freshmen at 9:20 a.m.

'Schaumburg Airport expansion feasible'

by STIRLING MORITA

A proposed $8.4 million expansion of Schaumburg Airport is economically feasible and should in the long run net the village at least $2 million.

Those were the estimates given to the Schaumburg Mass Transportation Committee Wednesday night by a representative of the consulting firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff.

Curtis Wehling, senior urban planner for the firm, presented the sixth installment of the preliminary airport expansion report and said issuance of municipal revenue bonds for the village's share of the project should be no problem as it might be for downtown airports.

THE VILLAGE'S probable share of the cost is estimated to be $2.190 million for land acquisition and addition of taxiways, terminal, pads and pavement for the airport on Irving Park Road south of the Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park.

The report placed the Federal Aviation Administration's share of the cost at $5.145 million and the state's at $1.055 million. Wehling said proposed land acquisition of 120 acres to the east and west of the airport would cost about $5.4 million. Fencing for security purposes was estimated at $100,000.

Airfield improvements were placed at $1.1 million and terminal area improvements at $1.8 million.

Wehling said this was one of the few airports for which a bond issue would be feasible. He noted that its proximity to a large metropolitan area created demand and would draw revenue for the airport.

THE FINANCIAL benefit of about $2 million would come in 2005 or 2010 depending on the type of revenue bond issued. It was estimated that the village at the start of the payment schedule would run into deficits in paying off improvement bonds, but that incoming revenues later in the schedule would heavily outweigh bond retirement and operating expenses.

When asked the possible status of private aircraft with the energy crisis and economy crunch, Ken Wollmer, airport manager, said, "It is on an extremely sound basis more so than when I started 15 years ago."

He explained single-engine aircraft are as economical as cars in fuel consumption and that the 55 m.p.h. speed limits have spurred more businessmen to learn how to fly.

Boy who lived in car in mother's custody

A 12-year-old Hoffman Estates boy who suffered frostbitten feet after living outside his home 17 days in January has been placed in the custody of his mother, who now lives outside the county.

After a hearing Monday in Juvenile Court, the boy was permitted to live with his mother, and a probation officer has been assigned to check his welfare. He was in the custody of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

The boy reportedly lived in a car belonging to a friend's brother and in a treehouse. During the time he was missing from home, he attended classes at Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg.

His guidance counselor took the boy to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment of frostbitten feet.

Dr. Lester Fisher.

A future resident contemplates his view.

by JOE SWICKARD

Otto, Patty, Mumba and the others don't appear to be overly anxious as they await completion of their new multi-million-dollar home.

Their current house is about 70 years old, but it's still home with the familiar swings, chewed up tires and frayed burlap bags. With those well-worn furnishings plus some fresh fruit and vegetables the great apes of the Lincoln Park Zoo can make just about anyplace feel homey.

But before long, their familiar surroundings will change, with the help of Charles Klehm and Sons Nursery, Arlington Heights, the firm commissioned to construct a rain forest and landscape the area.

It is part of a $3.5 million ape house at the 35-acre Lincoln Park Zoo.

THE NEW HOUSE will be for three of the four great apes. Gorillas, orangutans and chimpanzees will live in it. Gibbons, the fourth great ape, are swingers and need more room for their aerial antics.

Screens will protect Klehm's work from the busy ape fingers. The actual ape quarters will be about three times the size of their present cages and will be separated from the viewers by glass.

Inside the six ape habitats will be climbing poles, boulders, a water fall and pool and plenty of room. The extra space gives the apes a chance to get off by themselves if they want to, said zoo director Lester Fisher.

To complete the jungle setting, Fisher wants to install rain and thunder machinery inside the habitats. It is hoped the environments will be more conducive to a natural ape group than the present smaller cages.

VIEWERS CAN watch the apes from two levels of ramps. The higher ramp will give visitors a tree-top view of the climbing monkeys. The ground level ramp will put people in eye contact with the gorillas who prefer to have their feet on the ground.

Above all this will be observation areas for naturalists and psychologists to study the behavior of the animals.

What would you do...?

You're in the grocery store and the person next to you suddenly stops breathing or has a cardiac arrest. What would you do?

You can find out Thursday, May 15, at Lutheran General Hospital, Park Ridge, when paramedics and emergency medical technicians will demonstrate cardiopulmonary resuscitation and the Heimlich lung, used to rescue someone choking on food.

The program will be presented by Deborah Buckley, emergency medical systems coordinator at the hospital, and 14 representatives from eight area fire departments.

Beginning at 8 p.m., the program will be repeated every hour until 10 p.m. in the 10th floor east dining room at the hospital.

The program is part of Lutheran General's observance of National Hospital Week. Firemen from Des Plaines, Glenview, Morton Grove, Mount Prospect, Niles, Northbrook, North Moline and Park Ridge will participate.

Carbondale, SIU seeking funds for refugee center

Southern Illinois University and the City of Carbondale plan to seek federal funds for the establishment of a Vietnamese refugee center that would house up to 1,500 persons in privately owned dormitory rooms.

School officials, pointing to a special Vietnamese Study Center, insisted they have the necessary facilities and supplemental programs to accommodate the refugees.

"From viewing the kinds of camps where these people are going," said Carbondale Mayor Neal Eckert, "it seems we'd have a lot more to offer. We have had calls from students, residents and businessmen volunteering to help in this proposal.

"The local reaction has been extremely positive so far, and I emphasize so far," he added. "The other kind generally comes later in unsigned letters."

The Vietnamese Study Center at SIU was funded with the help of a $1 million grant from the State Dept.'s Agency for International Development spread over five years. Some 40 South Vietnamese students attend SIU.

"We do have a medical school here, we do have the language capability, we do have foreign students," Eckert said. "We have capabilities in almost any area" to help the refugees "get over the cultural shock."

Sleepy town may go 'wet'

It's been 32 years since residents of Harrisburg could purchase liquor within its city limits but officials Tuesday night paved the way for the first legal keg-tapping in the Saline County seat since 1943.

The city council passed an ordinance naming Mayor Kenneth Ozment liquor control commissioner at a salary of $150 a month and giving him "strong enforcement powers."

The only other "wet" spot in the county is the Village of Muddy, two miles north of Harrisburg, which opted for liquor sales in 1967. Residents of Eldorado voted April 15 to remain dry.

Walker fires GOP employee

Gov. Daniel Walker Wednesday fired one of his two Republican appointees to the state board of elections on grounds he has failed to file an ethics statement.

The failure of board member Franklin Lunding Jr. of Chicago to do so was tantamount to "neglect of duty," Walker said.

Lunding was unavailable for comment, but Sen. Republican Leader William C. Harris of Pontiac said Lunding asked Walker for an extension of his filing deadline to meet the re-

"THE COPS are coming." Though it is illegal, this trucker, equipped with citizen-band equipment, is tailing a state police car and qulement. "I guess this means the extension wasn't granted," Harris said.

ERA goes to committee

The Equal Rights Amendment was sent to a Senate committee Wednesday after its sponsor scrapped plans to advance it directly to the Senate floor.

Senate Pres. Cecil Pardee, D-Chicago, said he decided "to avoid the hassle" of several hours of floor debate that would have accompanied a move to skip committee.

"I remain completely confident that ERA will again get committee approval, and that it will pass the Senate with the necessary three-fifths vote," Pardee said. "We are going to put Illinois in the ERA column this session."

Prisoners free 4 hostages

Two prisoners armed with homemade knives held four prison guards hostage for 45 minutes Wednesday inside the solitary-confinement area of the Pontiac Correctional Center.

Warden Fred Finkbeiner, in his second day on the job after transferring from the same Joliet Correctional Center where some 200 inmates rioted, talked the prisoners into surrendering after promising to hear their personal problems.

The guards were released unharmed and the prisoners returned to their cells.

"It was an isolated incident," said prison spokesman Ed McCarthy. He said it did not involve the more than 100 prisoners in the west cell house segregation unit. He said the two prisoners "made no demands and there was no apparent reason for their action."

The incident began at 12:45 p.m. when one of the two prisoners, who were not identified, pulled a knife on a guard and, using the guard's key, released the second inmate. Forty-five minutes later Finkbeiner convinced the prisoners to release the guards.

Finkbeiner was "promoted" and sent to Pontiac Tuesday. The Joliet disturbance resulted in the death of one prisoner as inmates held 12 hostages for five hours.

Lottery suit dismissed

The purchase of an Illinois Lottery ticket is no guarantee the buyer will win, Circuit Court Judge Daniel A. Covelli said Wednesday before dismissing a class-action suit which contended that the system of selecting winners is unfair.

The suit was filed by Leonard N. Foster, 43, an assistant state's attorney, who contended that the game is unfair because a winning ticket is not sold each week. He said there was no $100,000 winner in the April 4 Grand Slam contest and that the Lottery led everyone to believe there would be at least one winner. Numbers should be drawn until there is a winner, he said.

'Psst, buddy...want a hot deal on that firetruck?'

by TOM VON MALDER

A lone aerial ladder pointed toward the darkened, threatening sky while men in business suits watched a scattered handful of firemen look over rows of ambulances and fire trucks.

"Sold any?"

"No, most of our sales are through bids. We get leads mostly here," said one salesman.

"Here" was the parking lot in front of the Arlington Park Hilton Hotel, Euclid Avenue and Rohlwing Road, Arlington Heights. Inside the hotel, more than 250 fire chiefs from six states were attending the Combined Illinois and Great Lakes Conference.

"People are very fuel conscious these days, so we like to go to these conventions," said the salesman, who actually was more than just a salesman. He was Phil Richards, vice president of marketing for R. & R. Industries, Minneapolis.

RICHARDS EXPLAINED that by attending the large statewide conventions he and his salesman are able to acquaint various fire departments with their equipment — they manufacture ambulances — without having to bring an ambulance to each fire department as it is considering buying an ambulance.

"We find out how interested they are in our ambulances," Richards said. He added that he attends some 20 conventions in the Midwest each year. Three salesmen accompanied him on this trip.

The fire chiefs and their aides do not descend on the 14 or so ambulances and dozen or more fire trucks in any one large bunch, but trickle through during the day — a few at a time.

"They like to keep them in meetings all day but some are always wandering out," Richards said.

DURING THE FOUR days of the convention, the fire chiefs are attending both business and education sessions and viewing exhibits like the one in the parking lot and others, such as on clothing.

The convention, which ends Friday, is a combined one of the Northeast Illinois Fire Chiefs Assn. and the Great Lakes Division of the International Fire Chiefs Assn. It is supposed to be the largest ever held in Illinois with fire chiefs from all over Illinois, Minnesota, Wisconsin, Indiana, Ohio and Michigan attending.

Looking over the parking lot, Richards said, "It's a big business." His firm has begun expanding with multi-ambulance sales to Midwestern countries, including Jordan and Saudi Arabia. "We're bringing back some of those oil dollars."

Plans to preserve Des Plaines prairie land stalled

by LEA TONKIN

The plan to preserve a 30-acre patch of prairie in Des Plaines is stalled, said Robert Kunkel, director of parks and recreation for the Des Plaines Park District.

The Chicago and North Western Ry. is willing to lease the property west of downtown Des Plaines for $1 a year, "but the agreement hinged on the fact that we could gain access through the Wieboldt property," Kunkel said. "Wieboldt's at this time has refused to give permission."

The decision to seek access through Wieboldt Stores Inc. land was made because of security problems in alternative plans, Kunkel said.

The Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission continues negotiations for the access to the prairie area. Letters of support for the project may be sent to David Wolf, Des Plaines Bicentennial Commission, Des Plaines Civic Center, 1120 Miner St., Des Plaines, 60016.

The proposed prairie park would be used by schools and other groups for outdoor education. The park district would be required to build a chain-link fence around the property.

STRIP OF PRAIRIE land along Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks in Des Plaines is viewed by James Androff. Plans to preserve the land are stalled.

Canoeing to be talk topic

Canoeing on the Fox River will be discussed by Peter Dring, Forest Preserve District naturalist at the May 15 meeting of the Prairie Woods Audubon Society. Dring will show slides during the program at Arlington Heights Memorial Library. The meeting will start at 7:30 p.m.

for a period of at least one year, Dean said.

"It is hoped that this effort will aid in the reestablishment of the natural breeding population of lake trout," Dean said. The bloater chub is the last of eight species in a taxonomical family of fish that has been eliminated by exploitation and poor environmental conditions, he said. Similar regulations will be effected in Wisconsin and Michigan.

Chubs contain pesticide

The Food and Drug Administration recently seized shipments of Lake Michigan chubs that contain excessive amounts of the pesticide Dieldrin. The agency's surveillance program indicates half the Lake Michigan chubs contain more than the .3 parts-per-million tolerance limit for the substance, said Eugene Stanley, regional compliance director, Chicago. Stanley said the seizures affected two Michigan commercial fisheries. The substance DDT is found in decreasing amounts in Lake Michigan fish samples, Stanley said, but the levels of the industrial compounds called PCB's or polychlorinated biphenyls, is increasing.

Field trip to pond set

The Chicago Academy of Sciences plans a Saturday field trip to Swallow Cliff Pond in the county forest preserve at 119th Street and LaGrange Road, Palos Hills. A bus will leave the academy, 2001 N. Clark St., Chicago, at 9 a.m.

Soil Stewardship Week

This is Soil Stewardship Week. An awareness of soil, water forest, wildlife and other related resources can influence the quality of life in suburban and urban areas, said a spokesman for the North Cook County Soil and Water Conservation District, Lake Zurich.

Fishing rules toughened

Illinois Dept. of Conservation director Tony Dean announced at a Wednesday press conference in Chicago that strict new commercial and sport fishing regulations designed to prevent extinction of a native fish and protect two other species from exploitation will be enforced July 1.

The regulations place a quota on two primary commercial species, the yellow perch and bloater chub. Three commercial fishery crews will be allowed to take 431,000 pounds of yellow perch and 30,000 pounds of bloater chub. The taking of lake trout by sport "fishpersons" will be stopped

Rivers act defeated

The Natural Rivers and Wetlands Act was defeated in the Illinois House of Representatives' Appropriations Committee. Although the measure, House Bill 461, passed the Environment Energy and Natural Resources Committee, the final appropriations committee vote on H.B. 461 and the companion appropriations bill H.B. 463 was 12 no, 3 yes and 4 present.

Students research Caribbean geology

Four Harper College students recently presented a research paper on geology to the Illinois State Academy of Science and the Illinois chapter of the American Assn. of Physics Teachers.

The paper, "Geology of the Caribbean: Photographic Observations," involved five students enrolled in a physical geology class at Harper.

The students are Jackie Rieckenberg and Ed Kerros, both of Rolling Meadows; Bill Solger, Wilmette and Bill Von Laven, Barrington, who did the research for the paper. James Evangelatos, Schaumburg, did underwater photography for the paper.

Lancelot sizes up his losses

Sir Dinadan, the worst bridge player of all the knights of the round table, made it a point never to bid no trump when partnered by the peerless Lancelot. Hence his two-club rebid.

Lancelot won the heart lead in his own hand and promptly led the jack of clubs. East won with the queen and promptly shifted to the nine of spades. There is no point returning your partner's suit when it isn't going to do you any good.

Lancelot won in dummy, counted winners carefully and saw that he was going to need a total of four tricks in the minor suits to bring home the game. Since the queen of clubs had already won against him, he was going to be held to three club tricks. Hence, he needed one diamond in addition.

Therefore, Lancelot's next play was the seven of diamonds from dummy. If East played the ace, that would give Lancelot four diamond tricks so East played low. After winning with the king Lancelot went right back to clubs, knocked out West's ace and wound up with two spades, three hearts, three clubs, one diamond and

Consumer groups charge:

'Extra hospital beds cost $8 billion, cause deaths'

WASHINGTON (UPI) — Consumer advocates complained Wednesday that an oversupply of hospital beds is costing Americans $8 billion a year and causing thousands of deaths by encouraging doctors to perform unnecessary surgery.

In a petition to the Dept. of Health, Education and Welfare, they asked the federal government to impose strong regulations governing new hospital construction.

The petitioners were the Health Research Group, a Ralph Nader organization; the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union; the National Consumers League; the National Urban Coalition; and Communities in Action.

The American Hospital Assn. did not make a direct response to the issues raised. But it provided reporters with a copy of a report released last month which concluded there was no problem.

AHA Pres. John McMahon was quoted at the time as saying, "While some areas may have too many beds, and other areas too few, when all the facts are weighed, the overriding conclusion is that the United States does not generally face a serious problem of too many beds."

THE NADER GROUP charged that federal programs have encouraged excess hospital construction, causing consumers to pay $2 billion during 1975 for an estimated 100,000 unused beds and another $8 billion for 250,000 beds, "filled by patients who should not have been hospitalized in the first place or who stay in the hospital too long."

The Nader report said hospitals have huge fixed costs that "bear little direct relation to hospital patient loads" because salaries for nurses and other personnel, plus energy costs, hold steady regardless of occupancy rates.

The Health Research Group reported that the most "over-bedded" city in the country is Miami with 3,400 surplus hospital beds.

OTHER LOCALITIES in the group's top 10 were Oklahoma City, 1,100; Atlanta, 2,773; Washington, 1,700; Dallas-Fort Worth, 1,750; Sacramento, 1,500; San Francisco, 1,100; Orange County, Calif., 2,900; Chicago, 2,800; and Baltimore, 995.

It said: "Surplus beds have encouraged the spread of totally unjustified surgeries that will claim the lives of 15,000 people in 1975. Patient health is further jeopardized by needless exposure to hospital-caused infections that are responsible for a combined total of 20,000 American deaths annually."

It is estimated that 70,000 of the nation's hospital beds could be rendered unnecessary by "proper controls over unnecessary surgery."

The report said excess growth had been halted in some cities, including three of the top 10. It singled out Honolulu, Atlanta, San Francisco, Baltimore and Dayton, Ohio.

Business seminars slated at Harper

Four business-industrial seminars will be held this month at Harper College.

Herbert Cohen of Performance Management Inc. will present a seminar in "Team Building" for middle and upper level managers May 12.

A seminar on "Improving Communication Skills" will be led by Lloyd Peyton of Central Life Assurance Co. May 14.

"Labor Relations in the Non-Union Organization" will be offered May 22. The seminar will be led by Earl Wyman, coordinator of industrial relations for the Management Institute of the University of Wisconsin, Milwaukee.

A seminar on "Group Dynamics Dimension of Supervision" will be led by Gerald Bruder of Gerald Bruder and Associates May 23.

Registration fee for each seminar is $50, which includes lunch. All seminars will run from 8:30 a.m. to 4 p.m.

Ice cream trucks: 'safety peril'

A situation exists on our village streets which, if not corrected, will one day result in the injury, maiming or possible death of a child. This situation is the annual coming forth of the Bimbo, Jumbo and Good Humor trucks.

I have seen children darting hither-yeller across streets for their treats and hanging onto the backs of these moving trucks. On one occasion, as I was cautiously driving past one of these parked stands, a mother and child darted out from behind the truck into my lane of traffic.

Not only is the safety factor involved, but also I wonder how many mothers have just settled a child in for an afternoon nap, or for a night's sleep, only to have to placate that same child and try to resettle him once he has been aroused by the tinkling tune of the truck.

Another point to consider is this:

how many parents are badgered by children who want treats, but who would rather their children have treats at a specified time and not at the beck and call of each and every ice cream truck? With modern refrigeration methods, almost every home is equipped with at least a small freezer compartment in the refrigerator large enough to hold these same treats that children beg to buy from the trucks but which can be dispensed at the discretion of the parent.

If we must have these roaming four-wheeled temptations, let our village officials regulate them to our parks or perhaps to a few centrally located areas, and to regulate their hours so that we can also be free from the noise pollution of their jingle-jangle racket.

But most of all, please let's do something before a child is hurt.

The 'stigma' of PTA membership

In view of the recent school board election in Dist. 25 I have joined the ranks of the card burners. My PTA membership card is now ashes. It seems if you decide to run for office you had better not be a member of this organization. If I ever decide to run for the office of dogcatcher I would lose. If the fact ever became known that I have been actively involved with PTA for the past 16 years as a chairman and officer in my children's school and even on council it would be the kiss of death. I did my bit for years thinking I was doing something useful for the community, education, the schools and my children, as did a candidate who is a member of the PTA. She did much more than I, with no thought of reward or recognition. But when she lists her background and qualifications for the school board she is suddenly rebuffed and repelled by so-called friends as if she had leprosy. Why?

I campaigned for her because I felt she was more aware of what had been happening in this district because of her involvement. I told people she was a friend and I had originally met her through PTA and felt she would be the best choice. Maybe I should have told them I met her through delivering telephone directories. I've had it drummed into me for years that PTA does not endorse anybody or any political party but I didn't think that I had to cut off any friend who decided to run for a public office. I can understand the policy but I saw no reason for publicly telling it so un tactfully in the manner it was, in the letter that was in the paper from the Arlington Heights Council of PTA's the day before the election. The park district nor the citizens action committee didn't feel they had to write any letters to the paper saying they didn't endorse candidates for public office and she was also a volunteer worker for them as well as for PTA. The so-called caucus who endorsed the other candidate is made up of about 50 members. Approximately 36 of these are active at the schools in the district on PTA boards. Endorsing her opponent by the nominating committee (caucus) PTA members is supposed to be all right?

I'm also wondering what happened to the plans that were being laid for coffees to be given for her by the members of the PTA. Friends doing something for a friend to enable her to meet citizens not PTA-oriented. Was that a no-no? And all the volunteers who were going to make phone calls for her. What happened to them? It appears to me that the hands off policy in politics in PTA is not interpreted the same way for everybody. If it is hands off why wasn't it hands off completely?

Well, I've decided that if that is the way it works (or doesn't work), I'm getting out before PTA membership becomes a worse stigma than it is now.

One station backed

I am 17 years old and attend Conant High School. I live in Barrington Square a few blocks from both fire stations, No. 2 and No. 3.

I attended the hearing at Hoffman Estates High School on the night of Thursday, April 24. Many of the people at the meeting were from the Highpoint Highlands area. Their major concern was whether or not they would receive adequate fire protection. I think sufficient evidence was presented by Mr. Longmeyer and Mr. Sella to show that the fire protection would be just as efficient with the closing of Station No. 2.

I think the residents of Highpoint are being very selfish. The only reason they want to keep Fire Station No. 2 open is because they live almost in its backyard. They are not considering the people in other areas of the village that are protected by Station No. 2, these people did not speak out at Thursday night's meeting.

I feel that Fire Station No. 3 could adequately and efficiently protect the areas mentioned above. I will support

The almanac

Today is Thursday, May 8, the 128th day of 1975 with 237 to follow.

The moon is approaching its new phase.

The morning stars are Mars and Jupiter.

The evening stars are Mercury, Venus and Saturn.

Those born on this date are under the sign of Taurus.

Harry Truman, 33rd president of the United States, was born May 8, 1884.

On this day in history:

• In 1541, Spanish explorer Hernando de Soto discovered the Mississippi River.

• In 1879, George Selden of Rochester, N.Y., filed for the first patent for an automobile. It was granted in 1895.

• In 1945, President Truman officially declared V-E Day — the end of World War II in Europe.

• In 1972, President Nixon ordered the mining of North Vietnam ports as part of an effort to force the Communists to agree to end the Vietnam war.

A thought for the day: Greek scholar Aristotle said, "Even when laws have been written down, they ought not always remain unaltered."

Backs longer lunch

This is my second and last letter to you in regard to the School Dist. 54 (Hale School in particular) lunch program in answer to Jean Ray's response to my plea for a longer lunch program.

Where, Ms. Ray, is the discipline and control that belongs in all elementary and high schools, especially those as large as Hale? I know it begins at home, which seems to be a failing of many of our parents, but that is no excuse for the schools to ignore their responsibilities during school hours.

I attended a Chicago public grammar school as large as Hale; and since I lived over a mile from school, I had to eat lunch at school. We had a one-hour lunch, and somehow the teachers on lunch duty controlled us; we didn't have paid lunch mothers. Also, what are the lunch mothers being paid $3 an hour to do but supervise the children during lunch. If they are not capable of doing just that then they should be intelligent enough to recognize their inability and quit a job they can't handle. Of course, they need the total cooperation of the school administration to keep the children under control, and I feel, at Hale, there is a definite tendency to let the children "do their own thing"; and with an enrollment of around 900, you just cannot have everyone doing his or her own thing.

My doctor also agrees that 15-20 minutes is not an adequate time for a child to eat a normal-sized lunch, and, therefore, I still maintain that for our children's physical well-being we need a longer lunch period.

She rejects ERA

Most of us who oppose the passage of the Equal Rights Amendment do so not because we are "anti-" anything, especially women gaining more opportunities. However, we do honestly fear that this issue has become a very divisive tool.

"Divide and conquer" has long been a strategy tool for destruction, and this matter has turned one against another in all areas. If we do not stop ERA, we fear we shall lose the very equality being sought.

The amendment promises nothing not already ours by the U.S. Constitution. Laws can now be passed to eliminate or reduce inequities revealed. There is no need to add an unnecessary and perhaps dangerous amendment to our Constitution.

As written, the ERA says nothing about U.S. citizenship, nothing requiring minimum standards of any sort, and would result in lowering the quality of all endeavors. What would be the use of education, resourcefulness, or initiative?

Wake up, America! Vote against ERA.

Here's the best of the boomerangs

by DICK WEST

WASHINGTON — The Smithsonian Institution has announced that its second annual boomerang tournament will be held May 17.

Prizes will include the Direct Mail Marketing Association's "Many Happy Returns" Trophy and the Gen. Douglas MacArthur "I Shall Return" Award.

In case some of you won't be able to attend, here are a few notes on boomeranging you might find interesting:

Experts agree the most powerful model devised thus far is the so-called "Watergate boomerang." Properly launched, it can knock a President right out of the White House.

The main center of interest this year, however, is a new type of boomerang called the "South Vietnam Special."

Although still in the experimental stage, preliminary tests indicate it can generate enough force to overturn an entire country.

Another new development since last year's tournament is the anti-inflation boomerang introduced by President Ford last fall.

He put so much wrist action on his anti-inflation program it boomeranged into a full scale recession.

The past year has, in fact, been a banner year for boomerangs in this country.

Vice President Rockefeller came up with an innovation known as the "open-handed boomerang." At his Senate confirmation hearings, some of his gifts to friends boomeranged and temporarily jeopardized his nomination.

Later on, while he was presiding over a Senate debate, one of Rockefeller's parliamentary rulings boomeranged with such force he had to apologize for it.

Agriculture Secretary Earl Butz is another good hand with the boomerang.

Remember the Soviet wheat deal that boomeranged into inflationary grain prices at home?

It worked on the same principle as the power conservation boomerang, which was, in effect, a double boomerang.

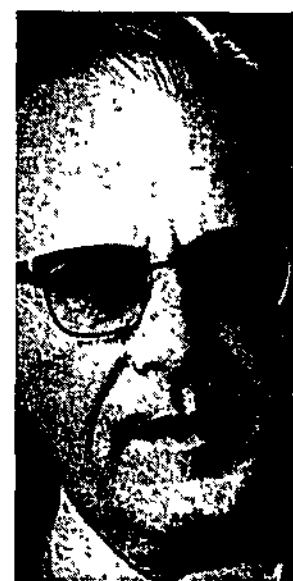

The power companies' appeal to consumers to use less electricity boomeranged in the form of diminishing profits. So they raised their rates to make up the difference.

That brought the boomerang back to the consumers, who would end up paying more for using less.

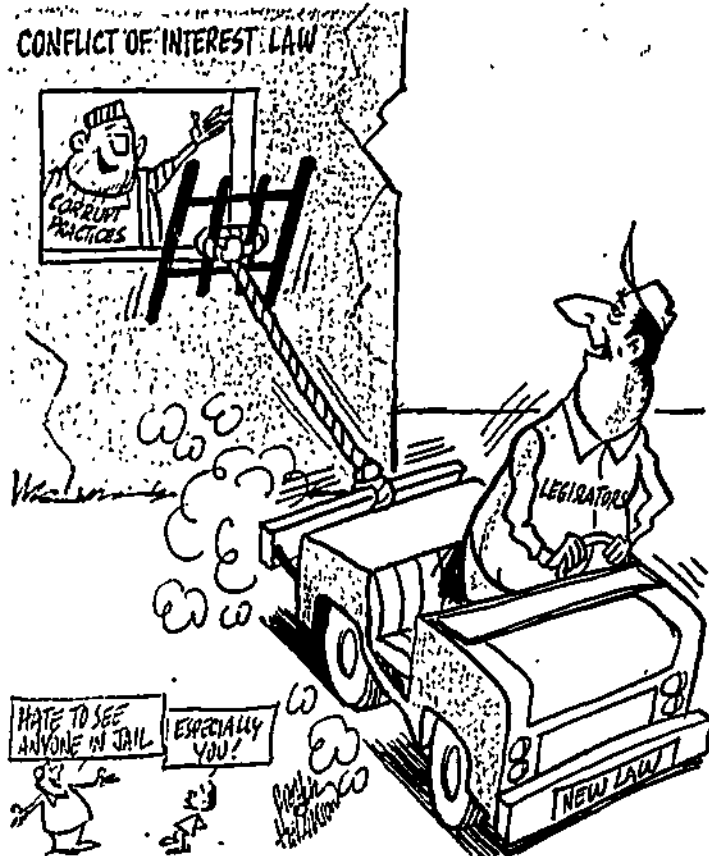

The list is too long to mention all the new boomerangs. It is obvious, however, that the boomerang boom is fraught with political implications.

Should it continue next year, I predict that the 1976 presidential election will produce the nation's first boomerang backlash.

Herald opinion

Don't dilute corruption law

In the wake of the campaign oratory about accountability of public officials, the Illinois Senate is quietly approaching a vote on two bills which would allow elected officials to profit from contracts which they themselves would award to private business.

A Senate committee has approved two bills that would dilute the restrictions of the Illinois Corrupt Practices Act, which is designed to prohibit conflicts of interest by elected officials.

One bill would allow an elected official — whether an alderman, a village trustee, a state representative or even the governor — to own as much as 7½ per cent interest in a firm to which he might act to award public monies.

Another bill would allow towns under 15,000 population to give contracts to any firm, providing they were awarded to the low bidder after the taking of sealed bids. An alderman of a small town, for instance, if he were a contractor, would be allowed to submit bids on street repairs for which he has the benefit of engineering studies and cost estimates not available to his competitors.

Such practices are specifically prohibited by the Corrupt Practices Act. It seems hardly necessary to point out why such provisions are needed. The very name of the law makes that plain.

While a 7½ per cent interest in a public contract may not seem an obviously corrupting influence, consider a public works project which would net $1 million profit — not uncommon these days. That seemingly small percentage could mean $75,000 to the alderman, county commissioner or state representative who voted to award a contract to his own firm.

Sponsored by Republican Sen. Stanley Weaver, a mortician and former mayor of Urbana, these bills have the support of the Illinois Municipal League, which often acts as a lobbyist not for municipalities but for the officials who run them.

They would serve nothing but the private financial interests of public officials, and they deserve to be voted down in the Senate.

Rather than punching loopholes in existing laws which aim to prohibit profiteering by public officials, the Illinois legislature should be creating new laws to deter conflicts of interest and promoting the disclosure of financial interests by public officials, as was done recently in the Village of Palatine's ethics ordinance.

Our shrinking candy

First they shrank our candy bars from meal-size to nibble-size, then they hiked the price from a nickel to 15 cents and now they want to harass us further by not telling us how little we're getting for our money.

That's right, the candy bar industry is pushing a proposal in Washington to halt the printing of weight information on the candy bar wrapper.

Rep. Benjamin Rosenthall D-N.Y., calls the move "smokescreen" to prevent public from knowing how little we're getting when we buy a candy bar these days. Industry officials counter that the candy bar eater could be saved money, for it's expensive to keep changing the weight figures listed on the wrapper.

If we're going to suffer hunger pangs as we swallow the once-mighty candy bar, we'd just as soon know how little our hunger has been satisfied by the inflation-ripped candy industry. It's not make us feel any better, it's still like to know.

Tenure a sticky issue for teachers

Teacher tenure is one of those issues that regularly create controversies in the education field.

Whenever the subject of improving the schools comes up, someone is bound to say that the best way to improve them is to eliminate tenure so all the "incompetent" teachers could be eliminated.

Such a statement, which is somewhat oversimplified and extreme, is usually met with equally extreme reactions from teacher leaders — especially the leaders of the powerful teacher unions. Tenure, they say, is the only thing that protects quality education from the hordes of uneducated masses who are waiting for a chance to fire the good teachers.

That kind of dialog, unfortunately, doesn't really add much to sane discussion of the issue. Earlier this year legislation was introduced in the Illinois General Assembly to change the law and quickly fell victim to exactly that kind of extremism on both sides.

THE PROBLEM that arises when people talk about tenure is that they forget its purpose. Teacher tenure was not designed to protect teachers;

Education today

by Wandalyn Rice

It was designed to protect students.

Teacher unions seem to forget this. And so, in their own way, do the opponents of tenure. Perhaps if we could someday have a debate which focused on the tenure issue which constantly kept that fact in mind we could get real reform.

Tenure was designed to protect the free flow of ideas in schools and to prevent the firing of teachers who taught unpopular things or who held unpopular political beliefs.

The reason, for society, for preventing that kind of firing is only incidentally relate to free speech for individuals. I suspect the authors of the tenure laws were more firmly convinced that free speech must be secured for teachers so students would not be deprived of a variety of kinds of opinions than they were convinced that a teacher must be granted extraordinary protection against firing simply so he could espouse any position.

Once it is assumed that free speech for teachers must be protected for the sake of the students, then it can also be assumed that a system that protects free speech by protecting good and bad teachers indiscriminately defeats its own purpose.

THE IDEAL tenure system then, would have protections against arbitrary firing because of political beliefs, but would also provide an acceptable way for a teacher who is not doing the job to be fired.

Teachers' unions argue that the present laws make that possible — and just require that school administrators be bright enough and hard-working enough to build a case against a bad teacher.

That may well be true in some cases. But often there is little agreement about what constitutes genuine incompetence and what is merely a difference in educational philosophy.

That problem, I suspect, is not insoluble. But educators and citizens who set out to solve the problem are going to have to keep the one cardinal point in mind — that they should work to protect students and only protect teachers when the interests of teachers and students coincide.

Trying to collect $113,000 debt

Oakton takes step to sue New Trier

Oakton Community College in Morton Grove has taken preliminary action which may lead to a lawsuit against New Trier Township High School District to collect $113,000 the district refuses to pay the college.

Officials at Harper College in Palatine said Wednesday that Harper will join Oakton in a lawsuit because New Trier owes Harper $21,800.

The Oakton board Tuesday authorized board attorney Joseph Murphy to begin studying the legal issues surrounding New Trier's decision not to pay the college.

Murphy said he will come back to the board for final authorization before he files suit. He said, "Right now I'm thinking about asking for a declaratory judgment in which we'd ask the judge to tell us what the law is. That is a little less adversary than the 'you hit my car, pay me' kind of lawsuit."

AT ISSUE IS THE money called chargebacks, that high school districts which are not part of community college districts are required to pay to colleges which accept students from the high school area. Chargebacks are designed to make up the difference between in-district college tuition and the college's cost of educating a student.

Their attorneys have advised New Trier officials not to pay chargebacks because of a continuing legal dispute about formation of a community college district on the North Shore.

Oakton Vice Pres. David Hilquist said the New Trier district levied a tax last year to pay the chargebacks but has said it will not pay. Oakton has accepted 166 students from New Trier for the spring term despite the uncertainty of chargeback collections.

HARPER VICE PRES. William Mann said Harper has had 129 students from New Trier all year. He said the college has continued to accept the students because "we think we eventually are going to get our money." He said he probably will recommend that Harper join Oakton in a suit to collect the money.

Last year, the Illinois Community College board created a community college district on the North Shore, which included New Trier, Evanston and Glenbrook high school districts. A Circuit Court judge has ruled, however, that creation of the district was unconstitutional. The case is being appealed.

Hilquist said Evanston and Glenbrook have continued to pay their chargebacks because their attorneys have advised them to do so.

High School Dist. 211

"Dance to the Music," an original collection of songs and dances, will be performed Friday and Saturday night by the Hoffman Estates High School Dance Club.

The performances start at 8 p.m. each day in the auditorium of the high school, 1100 W. Higgins Rd. Tickets are $1.25 for adults and $1 for students. For information call Lori Stenger, 685-9400.

A paper drive is to be conducted at Schaumburg High School Friday. The drive is sponsored by the "Social Implications of Biology" class.

Bundled papers can be brought to the school, 1100 W. Schaumburg Rd., Schaumburg, between 8 a.m. and 4 p.m.

Persons living between Bode and Wise roads and Salem and Springlins roads can leave bundled papers at the curb for pick-up. For information call 682-5206, ext. 74.

The class is also circulating a list of other recycling centers in the area so that residents can continue to recycle glass, metal and paper.

The centers are Hoffman Estates Village Hall, 1200 Gannon, bundled paper and glass; Ecology Inc., 622 Lunt Ave., Schaumburg, newsprint and computer punch cards; Diesterfeld Road and Wellington Avenue, Elk Grove Village, newspaper and glass; Zayre Department Store, 150 Dexton, Elgin, newspaper, glass, tin and aluminum.

Nineteen girls have been named to Fremd High School's pom pom squad.

Leading the cheers for the 1975-76 school year are Tracy Gattis, Pam Johnson, Linda Jones, Sheryl Klud, Lynn Lockwood, Kristy Meyer, Kendy Meyer, Caroline Mueller, Nancy Neavig, Lori Nienaber, Donna Oppasser, Marsha Otteman, Cathlynn Prislanger, Nancy Vazquez, Terri Vraney and Tracy Vraney.

Alternates will be Sheryl Franzen, Pam Hulse and Karen Martz.

The ninth annual induction of Fremd High School's chapter of the National Honor Society was held Tuesday.

The program and induction ceremonies were led by the 1974-75 officers: Lydia Plotis, president; Frank McNellis, vice president; Margaret Greco, secretary.

Bands from the northern portion of Illinois will compete Saturday at the second annual Chicagoland Band Festival at Wheeling High School, 900 S. Elmhurst Rd.

The free festival will take place from 11 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Bands to perform include those from Conant High School, Hoffman Estates; Maine North High School, Des Plaines; Buffalo Grove High School; Hersey High School, Arlington Heights; Maine East High School, Park Ridge, and Elk Grove High School.

The daylong activities will conclude with a performance by the Wheeling High School Wind Symphony, which was recently awarded a unanimous first-division rating at the state band contest.

A display of art work by Elk Grove High School students will be at the Municipal Building in Elk Grove Village until May 17 and at the Elk Grove Library.

"In the Good Ol' Summertime," a fashion/variety show, will be presented by The Buffalo Grove High School Choral Guild Saturday at 8 p.m. The show will be in the little theater of the school, 1101 W. Dundee Rd., Buffalo Grove.

The show will feature spring and summer fashions for both girls and women by Wendy Ward and will be modeled by students in the choral department and their mothers.

Also Nancy Cielowicz, Kim Young, Samantha Ryan, Julie Mager, Mary Pistanogich, Steve Tandot, Ted Smart, Jeff Anderson, Ron Schwartz, Mark James, Marty Guy, Scott Groot, Mike Osgood, Jamie Phelps, Dave Billeto, Fritz Streff, Nancy Lee, Laurie Hopkins and Mary Rose Fabish.

The show is the Choral Guild's major fund raising project of the year. Proceeds will be used to provide summer music camp scholarships for outstanding students in the choral department and supporting music activities in the department.

Tickets priced at $1.25 will be sold at the door.

Trophy winners from the recent Distributive Education Clubs of America state competition are Holly DeWall, senior at Wheeling High School who won for merchandise display and Mary Drake, senior at Arlington High School, who won for her merchandise manual.

Sharing a second place award for chapter display were Rolling Meadows High School seniors Chris Vinezano, Dena Bankert and Mary May.

Jack Williamson, director of bands at Wheeling High School, has been elected to Phi Beta Mu, the exclusive national band directors fraternity. Membership in the organization requires a unanimous positive vote of the members.

Arlington triumphs; Meadows leads South

A Herald Staff Report

In what was billed as a potential prelude to the Mid-Suburban League championship baseball game, North Division frontrunner Arlington bumped South co-leader Conant, 5-2, Wednesday.

The conference headliner served to strengthen Arlington's lead while the defeat knocked Conant into second place in the South behind surging Rolling Meadows.

TIMELY HITS PACE CARDS

Arlington punched out nine hits for its ninth conference victory and crafty Card southpaw Jim Busby stopped Conant on a four-hitter in the battle of league leaders.

The Cardinals scored four of their five runs after two outs off strong-armed Conant starter Mark Pellegrino who was stalked to a brief 2-0 edge.

The Cougars opened the scoring in the first inning as Busby walked Joe Calomino, yielded a run-scoring double to Jim Cole and a RBI single to Marty Luquet.

Arlington countered with a run in the bottom of the first on Mike Mayerck's leadoff triple and John Mertins' hit up the middle.

The Cards captured the lead for keeps in the second frame as Don Stebbings singled, Jerry DeSimone walked, Mertins drove one home with a single and Rick Purcell pushed two more across with a hit to right. Purcell also knocked in the final Arlington run in the fourth, with a base hit to left after DeSimone had singled and stole second.

District play opens; Fremd, Hoffman battle

Fremd vs. Hoffman Estates. That's the way district baseball tournament action begins today.

The only game involving area teams will match Fremd and Hoffman Estates at 4:30 p.m. in the Palatine District.

The winner of today's battle between the Vikings and Hawks will return to the Palatine field at 1:30 p.m. Saturday to play Schaumburg.

Other tourney games involving area clubs will be played Saturday.

MEADOWS MOVES INTO 1ST

The two-hit pitching of John Igrasek and some clutch singles by his teammates lifted Rolling Meadows over hosting Hoffman Estates, 3-2, and into first place in the South Division.

The Mustangs scored all their runs in the first two innings in upping their record to 6-3 while evening out Hoffman's mark at 5-3. A walk and passed ball put Mike Bramlett in scoring position in the first with Bob Schmidt driving him across with a single that was misplayed. Steve Breitbell knocked Schmidt in with another single.

Scott Green made it to third in the second on a hit and two-base error. Then Tom Baugh singled him in.

Meanwhile Igrasek was pitching a perfect game. He retired 11 straight before a physical error as well as a mental one allowed Joe Parille to score. Wayne Jackson's single scored Randy Brown, who also had a hit. Igrasek, who struck out six and walked just one, then blanked the Hawks the rest of the way.

Schmidt and Baugh had two hits each off losing pitcher Jim Moore.

PALATINE WINS ON HOMER

Jeff Williams hammered a long home run in the first inning and sophomore right-hander Mark Menke tossed a four-hitter as Palatine edged Forest View, 2-1, to move past three teams into second place in the MSL North.

Williams' roundtripper, his second in two days, came with one out and teammate Greg Meyer on second base. Meyer had led off with a line-drive double into the right field corner. Williams connected on a Joe Slawinski fast ball and sent it sailing over the fence in right center.

These were the only runs the Pirates, now 6-1, managed off Slawinski and southpaw Jim Petran, who took turns pitching and playing third base.

But Menke made it hold up. The big Palatine hurler, making his first start walked just one and appeared to get stronger as the game progressed. The only run for Forest View (4-6) came in the second when Keith Mallan doubled and scored on a two-out single through the box by Bill Simon.

Menke was helped out of a jam in the third with the aid of a double play started by shortstop Garth Chase, who took a hard grounder from the bat of Neil Schmidt and flipped to second baseman Mike Pircher. Pircher's re-Schmidt.

PROSPECT WINS, 3-2

A freakish home run by Jay Loos turned out to be the measure of difference as Prospect held on for a 3-2 triumph over visiting Buffalo Grove.

Loos just barely connected for his second circuit shot of the season in the fourth inning with a mate aboard to break a scoreless deadlock and send the Knights on their way to win number six in 11 tries this season.

Tim Davies went the distance on the mound for the hosts to record the win, his second without a setback. He was nearly lifted when the Bison rallied in the seventh, however, to put a pair of runs across the plate and then lead the bases with two away.

An error started the uprising and one out later Mike Ledna slammed a solid double out to right center, putting Buffalo Grove on the scoreboard. After another out Tony Spinnelle was intentionally passed and Dave Smith drilled a single up the middle to cut Prospect's margin to one.

Rich Wilhelm followed Smithern to the first on a walk, loading the bases, but Davies got the next hitter to pop up in front of home and he squeezed it himself for the final out.

Prospect managed only three hits off Grove starter Smithern and reliever Scott Michaelson but one was a single by Loos in the second that advanced Scott Hetherington into scoring position after drawing a walk and Hetherington tallied on a wild pitch. He scored again ahead of Loos after reaching on a miscue in the fourth when a shot to left by Loos glanced off the outfielder's glove and over the fence.

WHEELING SLIPS PAST GRENS

Wheeling's Mike Brzuszkiewicz and Elk Grove's Kevin Stackwell locked horns in a pitcher's duel for four innings before the Wildcats broke it open for a 4-2 league win.

The victory left Wheeling at 5-4 in the North Division while Elk Grove's South Side slate fell to 2-9.

Both teams put a run across in the first inning. Wheeling's Steve Rymer singled, advanced on a sacrifice and came home on a wild pitch.

Elk Grove got their run when Glenn Stromberg doubled and came home on a two-base Wheeling error.

For the next three innings the starting pitchers fired no-hit baseball. Wheeling cracked Stockwell's style in the top of the fifth when singles by Bucky Black and Rymer, two Elk Grove errors and a double by Al Newman gave the Wildcats three runs and the lead.

Brzuszkiewicz's magic lasted one more inning before Elk Grove got to him in the sixth.

In that frame the wildcat hurler walked a pair of Elk Grove batters and gave up hits to Bill Strybel and George Kengott for Elk Grove's final run.

Kastner sharp again; fires two-hitter in St. Viator's 1-0 win

Occasionally, you'll hear a pitcher comment that he threw just well enough to win.

Wednesday afternoon, that meant St. Viator's Paul Kastner had to be nearly perfect because the Lions supported him with only one run.

But it was enough as Kastner permitted just two singles and struck out 11 batters during St. Viator's 1-0 win over St. Patrick. His record is now 7-1.

The Lions are 11-1 in the East Suburban Catholic Conference with two games remaining. Their only conference loss, to Holy Cross, was avenged last week and the Lions are 14-2 overall.

St. Viator, which made just three hits, nibbled the winning run off St. Patrick in the first inning.

Mike Hermanson's two-out single scored leadoff man Jim Kane who had walked and stolen second base.

Viator's other hits were a third inning single by Bill Robin and one in the fourth by Kastner.

Their only bonafide threat after the run scored didn't occur until the sixth when walks to Hermanson and Pat Bucaro were sandwiched around an infield error on Kastner's ground ball.

That loaded the bases but a strike-out and ground ball ended the rally.

Walks a nuisance but Maine West still wins

Ordinarily, the club which walks 10 batters loses the game.

Not so Wednesday afternoon as Maine West scored a 3-1 Central Suburban League win over Niles East despite that statistic.

Buddy Doroskin earned his fifth win without defeat. Pitching five and one-third innings, Doroskin struck out six batters, walked eight and gave one run.

Rob Earhart relieved for the last five outs, walking two and striking out one.

Maine's Glen Watson hit the game's second pitch for a home run. But Niles tied it, 1-1, against Doroskin in the first.

West's winning edge was provided by single runs in the third and fourth.

Norm Hillner's walk plus singles by Mike Kelley and Dan Henk loaded the bases in Maine's third. Their run scored on Bill Makuch's sacrifice fly.

In the fourth, Rich Slapke walked, moved to second on a wild pickoff throw and advanced to third on a passed ball. He scored on Matt Serna's sacrifice.

Maine's other hits . . . they had just six . . . were singles by Hillner, Serna and Steve Zuccarini. The Warriors are 7-2-1 overall and 3-2-1 in the CSL.

'Mature' Allen joins Phillies

Back with the same team he once demanded to be traded from, a somewhat subdued Dick Allen rejoined the Philadelphia Phillies Wednesday, saying he feels he has "grown up a little" and now merely wishes "to be part of this ball club."

Allen's emergence from "retirement" and subsequent reunion with the Phillies was made possible when they turned over $150,000 in cash, two minor leaguers and a player to be named later to the Atlanta Braves for Allen and catcher Johnny Oates.

The Braves had obtained Allen from the Chicago White Sox at the December baseball meetings for $5,000 and a player "to be named later." That player is still owed the White Sox by the Braves and could turn out to be the one the Phillies will give Atlanta.

Allen, 33, who has played with the Phillies, St. Louis Cardinals, Los Angeles Dodgers and Chicago White Sox in his turbulent 11-year major league career, said he was back in Philadelphia "to try and help. And I'd like everybody to know that right now. I'd like to be a part of this ball club."

To reacquire Allen, who played in Philadelphia from 1963 through 1969, the Phillies gave up catcher Jim Essien and outfielder Barry Bonnell.

Allen left the Chicago White Sox last September and announced his retirement from baseball. He refused to report to Atlanta when a deal was made with the White Sox and the Phillies began negotiating with the Braves.

Allen, who led the American League in home runs last year, gives Philadelphia added power to go along with National League home run king Mike Schmidt and power hitter Greg Luzinski.

Allen, who has been idle all year, said he felt he was "capable of playing right now, but that's up to Danny." Ozark indicated he might make a decision on when the first baseman will play by the end of this week.

Sox win on ninth-inning rally

Deron Johnson's bases-loaded pinch single in the ninth inning climaxed a three-run rally Wednesday night to give the Chicago White Sox a 3-2 victory over the Minnesota Twins, snapping Minnesota's four-game winning streak.

Bert Blyleven, sailing along with a 2-0 lead and a five-hit shutout for the Twins, was yanked after walking Bill Melton to start the ninth inning.

Reliever Bill Campbell retired the first batter he faced, Bill Sharp, on a line drive to second baseman Rod Carew, but then surrendered singles to Tony Muser and pinch hitter Ken Henderson, scoring Melton with the first Chicago run. After Campbell walked Brian Downing to fill the bases, Tom Burgmeier took over.

Johnson, batting for Pat Kelly, hit Burgmeier's 1-2 pitch into center to score Nyls Nyman, running for Muser, and Henderson.

Bobby Darwin drove in both Minnesota runs with a homer and a double.

Darwin's first inning double scored Carew, who had singled, and he hit his third home run of the season to open the sixth.

And in other sports news . . .

Ken Norton would like a rubber match with Muhammad Ali and he's found a backer willing to pay the heavyweight champion $2.63 million for the privilege . . . West Coast standout Native Guest was mentioned as a potential entry for the 100th Preakness Stakes next week, bringing the field of possible starters to 15 . . .

Sluggish Reggie Jackson of the Oakland A's was suspended for two games and fined by American League president Lee MacPhail following a run-in with plate umpire Nick Bremigan in Tuesday's game against California . . . A federal commission studying the national policy toward gambling was told that off-track betting could have a positive effect on the horse racing industry . . .

CONTROVERSIAL slugger Dick Allen gets back into the swing of things after his trade to the Philadelphia Phillies.

Cubs, Bonham mow down Expos

Bill Madlock drove in two runs and banged out four hits while Bill Bonham shut out Montreal on three hits Wednesday, spurring the Chicago Cubs to a 7-0 victory over the Expos.

Chicago opened up a 2-0 lead in the third inning when Bonham singled, went to second on a wild pitch by Dave McNally, and scored on Madlock's triple. Jerry Morales singled to drive in Madlock.

The Cubs added runs in the fourth and fifth on solo homers by Bob Sperrig and Jose Cardenal. Madlock drove home another run in the seventh on a single that scored Don Kessinger on base with a walk.

The final two Cubs' runs came in the eighth. Rick Monday tripled, chasing home Tim Hosley and Monday scored on the same play when Expos second baseman Pete Mackanin threw the ball into the Montreal dugout.

Bonham picked his third win in four decisions as he struck out eight and walked three. The loss ended Montreal's three game winning streak.

Ex-Palatine quarterback calling Illini grid signals

Former Palatine quarterback Jim Stauner will be calling signals for the University of Illinois this fall.

And presently running second in these signal-calling duties behind Stauner is ex-Elk Grove quarterback Jeff Stewart.

Those who follow the football fortunes of the Illini might wonder what's happened to highly touted quarterbacks Jim Kopatz and Kurt Steger. They're also ranked 1-2 in signalcalling!

Stauner and Stewart won't be handling the ball like they did as the most valuable players of their prep teams. This fall this Herald area two-some will be 1-2 at defensive safety.

Jim will be calling the defensive coverages. Since he was redshirted (given an extra year of eligibility), he'll be drawing on senior maturity as a junior. Stauner will be helping lead a team with quite a few new people on defense, but head coach Bob Blackman is confident he can do the job.

"I just wish Jim Stauner were triplets the way he's been playing, but he's too valuable a man for us now at safety to use him anywhere else," said Blackman.

Paul Logan
Associate Sports Editor

Sounds like a typically optimistic comment by typically optimistic Blackman following a spring practice, right? Yes, but it was also true.

Blackman and the coaching staff named Stauner along with nine others as candidates for the most improved spring player award last week. At halftime of Saturday's annual Orange-Blue game, Stauner received the coveted trophy.

"I think the turning point came in the last couple games," he said. That's when Stauner replaced the injured Bruce Beaman as a starter at defensive halfback last fall.

"I got in and showed what I could do. I got confidence from it. Other people — the coaches in particular — got confidence in me after seeing what I could do."

Having been a defensive halfback primarily, Jim was switched to safety this spring. He modestly called his spring showing "a pretty good one. I was really happy."

Stauner said he never was disappointed at going to defense after being a high school quarterback. "They pretty much told me I was going to play defense down there anyway. They recruit a lot of quarterbacks and make them defensive backs and like that."

If Stewart could somehow make the first team, there would be three area ex-quarterbacks on defense. Arlington's Terry Ormsbee plays rover. (In Saturday's game, Ormsbee showed he hadn't lost his touch — tossing a 34-yard TD pass after a fake punt.)

Of the spring practices he's been part of over the years, Stauner said he would rate this year's "pretty high ... we accomplished a lot."

That leaves bettering last year's 6-4-1 record as the next accomplishment. The Illini lost a pair of close ones to Michigan and Iowa and were tied by Michigan State. Naturally, Stauner and his teammates feel they're a stronger team this time around. They consider themselves Big Ten contenders.

To challenge Ohio State and the rest, Illinois will have to have a consistent quarterback on offense. Either Kopatz or Steger must take charge so that the fans' guessing game of "Who's this Saturday's signalcaller?" will be a thing of the past.

Right now one thing's certain — Illinois is set in signalcalling ... defensively.

Softball play begins in Mid-Suburban

The Mid-Suburban Conference opens up this afternoon, starting at 4:30, with a full slate of non-divisional girls' softball games. The games that count will start Tuesday.

Defending MSC champion Conant will host Fremd today. Other action will have Prospect at Hershey, Arlington at Hoffman Estates, Wheeling at Rolling Meadows, Buffalo Grove at Elk Grove, Palatine at Forest View and Schaumburg in a non-league game with Sacred Heart.

The Conant Cougars of Coach Barb

Bostian won the South Division last year with a 4-1 record. They met Wheeling in the championship game and won 6-5.

Last year's North Division race was the tightest of the two as Fremd and Hershey also had 5-1 records along with Wheeling. A tiebreaker rule had to be used to determine the champ. Since Wheeling had won its two crossover games and the other two teams had split, the Wildcats were the winners.

This year's conference championship contest will be played at the winner of the North's home field on June 5.

Harper women top Moraine tennis 7-2

The Harper women's tennis team took five of six singles matches and rolled to a 7-2 win over Moraine Valley Community College Tuesday.

Playing ten game pro sets, Harper gave up their two points at fifth singles and third doubles.

Sue Kelly, Kathy Zyrkowski, Cathy Aldana, Anita Jay and Pam Potter each won singles points for the Hawks.

Maine West tops Arlington in softball, 16-8

A bases loaded home run by freshman Irene Weingerarter put the game out of reach as Maine West handed hosting Arlington its first loss of the softball season Tuesday, 16-8.

The big hit came in the eight-run sixth inning. After the four-run blast put the Warriors in front 12-8, they scored four more.

Jenny Bruns, making only her second start, pitched the entire game, walking just two and striking out one. Teammate Kris Posterud was 2-for-4 at the plate. Arlington's Vicki Dale was the losing pitcher.

Maine's record is 3-2 with Arlington 0-1.

Four records, including three by Conant girls, highlighted track and field action in the Mid-Suburban Conference Tuesday.

The Conant Cougars, who posted a 105-22 win over Elk Grove and a 69-62 decision over Prospect, registered new marks in two relays and the shot put. Mary Ann Johnson tossed the shot 42 feet, 9 inches. The defending state champ just missed her best overall throw mark — 43-3 in the Falcon Invitational last week. That toss is the best in the state so far.

The Cougar mile relay team of Bev Bldo, Alba Castellanos, Rita Olson and Linda Webb was clocked in 4:30.4. Bldo joined the 440 relay team of Bard Hanberg, Cindy Lesher and Vicki Bozin for a record time of 51.7. Bozin also notched a fine 11.6 in the 100-yard dash.

Prospect, which won 100 to 30 over Elk Grove, was paced by a pair of big winners — Trudi Hebsamen in the 80 (6.2 to tie the MSC mark) and the 220 (27.1) and Cindy Devere in the long jump (15-7), the 80 hurdles (12.2) and the 110 hurdles (16.5).

Rolling Meadows continues to lead the league with a 10-0 dual meet mark and 10 points. Wheeling is the only team close to the Mustangs, having 12 points.

The Meadows Mustangs stopped Hoffman Estates (80-32) and Schaumburg (95-37) as a trio of girls recorded double wins — Chris Gellis in the 100 (11.5, tying the record) and 50 (6.4), Char Anderson in the 800 (2:33) and the 400 (1:03) and Maureen Stolt in the shot put (35-1) and discus (94-10).

Laura Buddenbaum led Hoffman to an 89-50 victory over Schaumburg by winning the 80 hurdles (11.5) and 110 hurdles (15.1).

Associates golf begins

Arlington Associates braved the cold and started their season at Arlington Country Club.

Bea Dunn led the field, shooting a 54 over the back nine. Bea also took putting honors with only 13. Parring the No. 12 hole were Dunn and Jean Rynn. Ruth Hissel parred No. 16 and Margo Melcher had the shot of the day when she chipped in on No. 14 for her par.

Play during the month of May is to establish handicaps and afterwards flights will be made for competition for various prizes.

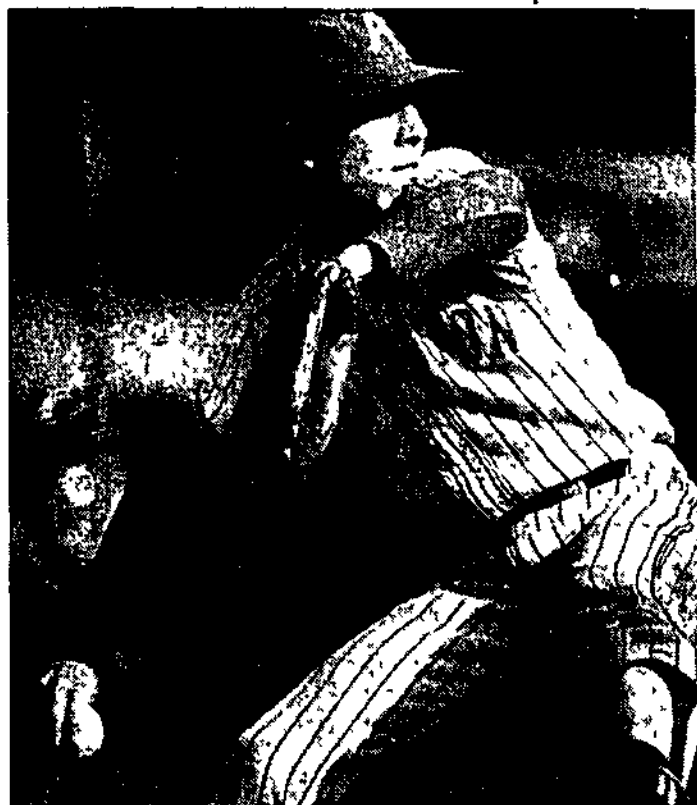

Schaumburg freshman Letelea Rodriguez broke the two-mile record again with a time of 12:43.3. She also took the mile in 5:57.

Arlington posted a pair of victories, stopping Palatine 77-55 and Buffalo Grove 88-43. Palatine's Kathy Kost finished first in the 110 hurdles (15.8) and the 80 hurdles (11.5) as the Pirates defeated Buffalo Grove 80-47. Beth Means turned in a 5:51.4 mile for the Bison.

Hersey's hurdlers — Cathy Frankiewicz and Sheri Kostelny — finished 1-2 in both events while leading the Huskies to a narrow 67-65 win over Fremd. Frankiewicz went 16.8 in the 110 and 11.7 in the 80 hurdles with Kostelny posting 16.2 and 11.9, respectively.

Wheeling handled Forest View, 85-47.

This afternoon's final MSL dual meet schedule will have Fremd and Hoffman Estates at Conant, Hersey and Wheeling at Prospect and Forest View and Elk Grove at Rolling Meadows.

Cards win 90th straight but not before a scare

by CHARLIE DICKINSON
Tennis Editor

Dave O'Donnell of Forest View and Paul Wel of Arlington found themselves alone on center stage with the Cardinals' Mid-Suburban League tennis win streak of 89 on the line Tuesday.

The Falcons and Arlington had split the four other matches with Greg Meyer winning at second singles and Nick Kekos and Steve Calderone taking the first doubles point. John Wallner and the second doubles team of Todd Van Gorp and Carey Howes had won Arlington's points.

O'Donnell had lost the first set 7-6 on a tiebreaker then rebounded for a 6-2 win in the second set. Wel then took command of the third set, pulling out to a 5-2 lead and taking a 6-4 win that sealed the Cardinals' 90th straight win, 3-2.

"This was the best effort we've had this year," said Falcons coach Doug Tolman. "We lost to Arlington by 3-2 a few years ago but this match was much closer."

Elk Grove and Buffalo Grove fought over a close meet themselves with the Grizzlies salvaging a 3-2 win.

Buffalo Grove's second and third singles players pulled off convincing two-set victories but that was all the Bison could scrape together.

Elk Grove's doubles teams, Rob Se-derholm and Bob Curran at first doubles and Dave Mack and Rick Stevens at second doubles, scored two-set wins to lock up the Elk Grove triumph.

Tom Fredericks of Prospect lost the opening set of his first singles match to Schaumburg's Tracy Maden 6-4 then recovered for a 6-0, 6-0 blitz to pace the Knights to a 5-0 win.

Schaumburg's Steve Collins stretched Tom Wegner to three sets at third singles before losing 3-6, 7-5, 6-4.

Mike McMahon shook off a 6-1 loss to Bill Rymasz in the first set of their match at second singles and won the final two sets 7-6, 7-5 for Wheeling's only point in a 4-1 loss to Hersey.

Steve Adashek had the only point for Fremd, earned with a 7-5, 7-5 win over Phil Groesbeck at second singles, in a 4-1 loss to Palatine. The Pirates' win improved their record to 11-4.

Rolling Meadows didn't have to go past two sets in any match as they defeated Hoffman Estates 5-0.

St. Viator's Jeff Davenport ran his season's record to 16-0 with a 6-0, 6-0 blanking of St. Edward's Brian Meaz.

Norm Peterson, of Maine East, knocked off Rich Sloan 6-3, 6-1 but the Demons dropped a 4-1 meet to powerful Deerfield.

Forest preserve district urges tax-ceiling boost

The Forest Preserve District is seeking an increase in its tax-rate ceiling to offset dropping income from real estate tax revenue.

State Rep. John D'Arco Jr., D-Chicago, has introduced a bill in the House that would raise the tax ceiling by 3.1 cents per $100 assessed value. The County Board this week endorsed the proposal.

Supt. Arthur Janura said the district has been taxing at its maximum level since 1966, but income has been dropping in recent years because of shrinking assessed valuation totals in the county.

The bill would raise the district's construction and development rate to 2.1 cents from its present 1.5 cents, and would increase the corporate rate to 6 cents from the present 3.5 cents. Janura said the new totals would be a ceiling only, and the district does not intend to raise its tax rates to the maximum immediately.

Janura said assessed valuation in the county went down $400 million between 1972 and 1973, resulting in less money for the district budget at the same time costs for labor, materials and utilities were going up.

If the tax rates were raised to the proposed maximums, it would mean a taxpayer with a home assessed at $10,000 would pay $3.10 more for forest preserve district services.

The district sought increased rates on the recommendations in a study by the Northern Trust Bank, which examined the district's tax structure. The board's advisory committee recommended the financial study, Janura said. He said the report was based on the theory that assessed valuation in the county would increase by 2.5 per cent each year, while it has been decreasing instead.

Janura estimated that each half cent on the tax rate would bring in $1 million. The district lost $194,700 this year because of the reduced tax base.

Food-service courses set

About 100 restaurant managers and employees are expected to attend food-service sanitation courses offered Tuesday through Thursday by seven Northwest suburban health departments at First Federal Savings and Loan Assn. of Schaumburg, 800 E. Higgins Rd.

Display, storage and handling of food, temperature control, sanitizing, foodborne illness and personal hygiene are among topics to be discussed, said Robert Grossmann, Schaumburg director of public health.

Grossmann is coordinating the seminar sponsored by health departments of Elk Grove Village, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine, Rolling Meadows, Streamwood and Schaumburg.

While the courses are designed for restaurant managers and supervisory personnel, Grossmann said all food establishment employees may attend.

The first workshop will be from 8 to 11 a.m. Thursday and an identical presentation will be from 2 to 5 p.m. Thursday.

Persons interested in attending the training course may contact their local health department or call Grossmann, 894-4500, ext. 223. Cost is $30 per person.

Work-a-thon Saturday

High school students participating in Campus Life programs in the Northwest suburbs are making themselves available Saturday in an annual spring work-a-thon.

Hundreds of students will offer their services, including handling hard physical labor, for anyone who calls and "reserves" a teen-ager.

The Campus Life members plan to put in a seven-hour day. They will be sponsored financially by adults in an effort to raise funds toward summer camp scholarships and underwrite expenses of other Campus Life and Youth Guidance activities.

Work-a-thon is a part of Campus Life Week 1975 which begins Saturday. An open house from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Wednesday is to familiarize the community with the program. For further information call 250-7880.

'Energy' radio show topic

"Nuclear Power and Solar Energy" is this week's subject of the "Focus: Northwest" radio show sponsored by Harper College.

The show will be broadcast at 8 a.m. and 9 p.m. Sunday on WWMF-FM (92.7).

Moderator is Linda Vick, zoology instructor at Harper. Panelists are Catherine Quigg, vice president of Pollution and Environmental Problems; Karl Cox, marketing manager, M7 International, Inc., of Arlington Heights, a research firm dealing with solar energy; and Leo Bolts, executive secretary, Lake Michigan Federation.

Harriet Kandelman produces and directs the show for the Harper office of college relations. Engineer is Ron Osgood.

Secretarial class slated

Persons may receive college credit in typing and shorthand May 27-28 through proficiency tests being offered by the Harper College Secretarial Science Program.

Four different tests will be offered. Beginning and intermediate typing tests will be given from 6:30 to 10 p.m. May 27. Elementary and intermediate shorthand tests will be given May 28 during the same hours.

Students may receive two hours of college credit for each typing test, four credit hours for elementary shorthand and three hours for intermediate shorthand. Fee is $8 per credit hour per test.

Applications may be made a week in advance with Robert Zilkowski in the business division at Harper.

TV journalism: news equals ratings

NEW YORK — A newswoman flies a kite in Central Park; a local anchorman jokes endlessly with his weatherman; and a TV network ballyhoo its newsroom as the last word in space-age technology.

This is the growing style of television news programming in the 1970s, the regrettable practice that makes reporters perform like jugglers instead of journalists.

And what especially is disturbing is that the many TV newsmen and news executives think, and honestly believe, that this form of "journalism" not only is proper, but necessary. They equate good news with good ratings, and any method that grabs the audience, by the mind or by the emotions, is OK.

WITH THIS mentality, the new breed TV executive views TV journalism as a vehicle for entertainment first and conduit of information second.

We see a good deal of time spent on small talk instead of news dispatches. And, if a show seems to be slipping,

Television in review

by Frank S. Swertlow

bring in a new set of desks. A change of a hairsdo will do wonders.

The news doctors also have created entire formats for their clients. We have giggly "Happy Talk" news, which 1-1s newsmen fall all over themselves reading the latest tragedy. Right now, someone is laughing in your living room.

ALTHOUGH MOST of this kind of journalism is at the local station level, there are incidents of this at the networks. ABC's quasi-news-entertainment show, "AM America," is one example of bankrupt journalism. The rise of news personality Tom Snyder at NBC and public relations blitz on Sally Quinn at CBS are others. There also is the growing use of pop documentaries, which go after soft news subjects rather than exposing social or political evils.

This style of broadcast journalism panders to the lowest common denominator. Watergate and the Vietnam War might have been sloughed off as light features if news jockeys had their way.

A television network or a local station should make its news programming stand for integrity and not shock. In a time of crisis, the station that has the most viewers is the best station, not because it is the funniest, but because people have faith that the men and women on and off camera are reporting what is going on first, fast and fullest.

The doctor says

by Lawrence E. Lamb, M.D.

Has he a brain tumor?

My 21-year-old son thinks he has a tumor in his brain. He has all the symptoms of a nervous breakdown, but I can't get him to consult a physician, neurologist or a neurosurgeon. He just talks about his brain tumor but does nothing about it.

He needs lots of information about brain tumor or brain damage as he has had many head injuries since infancy and was born prematurely. In spite of his head injuries he was real bright in school and was offered three scholarships. He has been a very nervous person since childhood.

Worrying so much about his unreasonable attitude and new withdrawn personality, I would like more information on any kind of brain damage, tumor, etc., so he can read it and find for himself if the symptoms are there.

Your son is not as unusual as you might think. Many people who believe they have a serious illness, rightly or wrongly, avoid seeing the doctor because they don't really want to face the reality of the illness. A good example is the woman who has a lump in her breast and thinks it is cancer but can't bring herself to go to the doctor to have something done about it.

This is an unfortunate quirk of human nature, because in many instances the person does not have a serious problem and finding this out can be an enormous relief. If there is something wrong the quicker the diagnosis is made the better the results from treatment.

Most people don't seem to realize that there are no specific signs or symptoms of a brain tumor. Almost all signs that do occur can be caused also by other diseases. A good example here is headaches are from other causes. Incidentally, the headache of brain tumor may actually be mild and intermittent, not different from many other forms of headache.

A TUMOR CAUSES symptoms on the basis of its location. If it is in an area of the brain that controls walking, then the walking will be affected. One located where the nerves to the ear are located may cause ear symptoms. If it is located where it affects nerves to the eyes, it may affect them or cause visual defects, such as seeing double. A tumor in the front part of the brain can grow to a large size and not cause any noticeable changes for sometime. It may cause personality changes. Vomiting may be a symptom of a brain tumor, but again there are many reasons for vomiting totally unrelated to brain tumor.

The chances are slim that your son really has a brain tumor, but he must have some symptoms that have made him think this. He should see a doctor to evaluate the symptoms.

If his personality changes are anything more than depression from his fear that he has a brain tumor, he may actually have a psychological problem and need professional counseling.

Whatever is causing his problem it is more likely to be benefited if he will have an examination. He does need professional help but probably not for a brain tumor.

'Sound' of blood key to stopping strokes: doctor

HOUSTON (UPI) — A Boston research team says diagnosing a common problem which often leads to strokes has been simplified by measuring the sound of arterial blood flow to the brain.

Dr. Robert S. Lees and James O. Gruber of Massachusetts General Hospital said the new method of diagnosis — phonangiography — works by recording the noise produced by blood flow in the affected artery and feeding the sound into a minicomputer for analysis.

In their five years of research the team examined 40 patients suffering from stenosis or the narrowing of the carotid artery. The narrowing is caused by a buildup of fatty deposits on the artery's inner wall.

Obstruction of the blood flow often leads to stroke, a major killer in the United States.

LEES SAID THE process offers several advantages over arteriography, an examination in which the doctor threads a hollow tube into the patient's artery, passes a special dye through, then takes a rapid series of X-ray pictures.

In phonangiography, the doctor places a pressure-sensitive microphone on the patient's skin over the artery and records the sound on tape. The computer analyzes the sound and shows the results on a television screen.

A constricted blood vessel produces a turbulent flow of blood. The sound varies in pitch and loudness with the degree of narrowing.

Some of the best college students are veterans.

Not every young man or woman is ready to take full advantage of college right out of high school. Some make far better students as 21 than they would have at 18.

Some need time to learn more about themselves and others. About what they want to do with their lives.

Today's Army offers them this time. Time to train, travel, meet people, and learn a skill. Time to understand the value of a steady job with a good starting salary, $344.10 a month before deductions.

There's also the opportunity to begin college while still in the Army. With the Army paying up to 75% of the tuition. And the chance, once your enlistment's over, to finish college with 36 months of financial assistance under the G.I. Bill.

Should you do your own landscaping?

by LEA TONKIN

Landscaping is a cost of home ownership that strikes after a family moves into a new single-family house or condominium unit.

When the job is done right, it adds beauty and value to the property, said landscape architect Robert LaHale of Pugsley & LaHale, Palatine. LaHale cautions that random plantings chosen in a burst of beautification may cause headaches for the homeowner.

Landscaping is much more than planting, LaHale said. It starts with planning and design of plantings and other features for a land area. Then the work can start on the installation of trees, shrubs and flowers.

THE HOMEOWNER may decide to do the work alone, or have a landscape contractor or garden center provide a design. A third alternative is the choice of a landscape architect to design a plan for your lot and possibly to supervise the installation of plants. The landscape architect's training in the use of plant material, soil conditions and other aspects of the business should be considered, LaHale said.

The cost of a landscape design ranges from zero for the do-it-yourselfers to a possible minimum of several hundred dollars charged by landscape architects. Landscape contractors may draw the design at no charge if the customer is buying plant material from the firm.

"Surveys of the property and architectural drawings are helpful in the design work," LaHale said. A personal inspection of the property and a list of the owner's plant likes and dislikes will be considered.

LaHale said a design is generally furnished after three meetings with the homeowner. Then the customer decides whether to supervise the plantings or hire a professional to do the work. A landscaping plan allows for installation of plants and other materials during a period of several years, at the owner's option.

LaHale OFFERED a few tips to the would-be landscaper:

- Compare the services and price of several landscape architects or contractors before you sign a contract.

- Ask about guarantees on plant material.

- Check references or past work.

- Compare the nursery stock of several contractors.

"There is no perfect solution to every landscaping problem," LaHale said. Comparison of several landscape professionals' work will show a wide variety of plans to accomplish a pleasing design.

"It's always better to work with a plan, even if you're planting over a five- or six-year period," said Pat Berthold of Berthold's Nursery and Garden Center, Elk Grove Village. "Many people know what they want but they don't know where to put it."

AL BERTHOLD, who operates the nursery with his wife, said, "Ninety per cent of the people look at plants and buy them as an impulse. A year or two later, they have to remove the plant if it's too big or they have other problems."

Homeowners can sidestep the costly problem of replanting through careful design, Berthold said. In addition to the size, shape and grade of the lot, check areas of the property that are extremely wet or dry. The type of soil, nearby environment, the climate, the view from inside your home and your dreams of year-round color or plantings attractive to birds should be noted.

Check the height and width of trees and other plants, and keep in mind that plants expand. A common problem is plant specimens that eventually obscure a house or a view. Keep variety in mind. Size, texture, shape and color of plantings can be used to create a "natural" or more formal appearance.

LANDSCAPING can be used to conceal unattractive foundation or wall areas and to screen out the sights and sounds of nearby traffic areas. Organize space in your yard to relate plantings and create outdoor living areas.

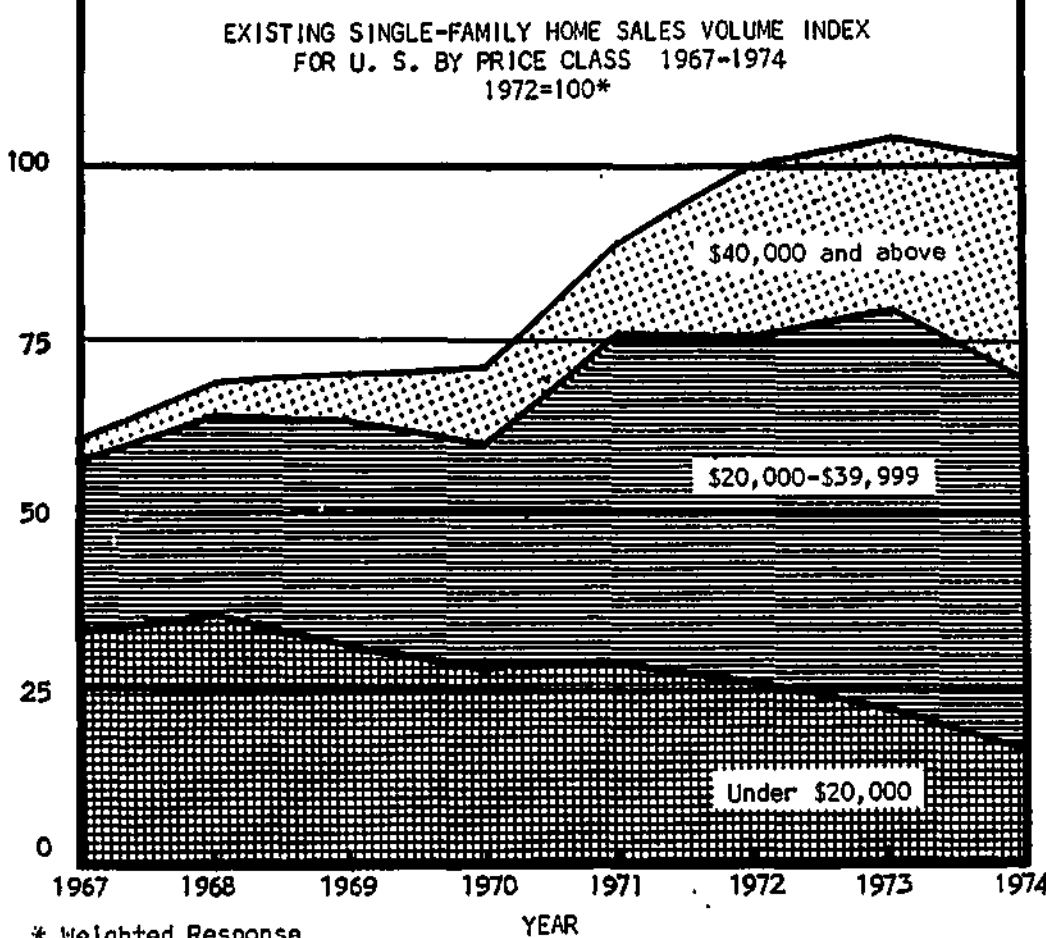

Berthold said homeowners who live in an area with only four to six inches of topsoil should check the possible need for added drainage. Otherwise, plants will drown. An important part of landscaping is learning to live with plants and learning their requirements, Berthold said.

READY FOR PLANTING, a tree is wrapped by a worker at Berthold Nursery and Garden Center, Elk Grove Village. Landscaping can add to the beauty and value of property, professionals say.

How the price tag for U.S. single-family homes is increasing.

Average price of home up $2,000 in year: broker

Home ownership is an investment that can bring a high rate of return to the buyer, said Lawrence A. Schwartz, sales manager for Stan Lieberman Realty Inc., Buffalo Grove.

Single-family housing values generally increase at an annual rate of 8 to 10 per cent or higher, said Schwartz, sales manager for the realty firm. "Buying a home should be looked at just like opening a savings account," he said.

As land and development costs continue to increase, the selling price of area homes will rise, Schwartz said. Homes priced between $45,000 and $55,000 are "the hottest market," he said.

A recent survey by the MAP multiple listing service indicates that the average sales price of Northwest suburban existing or used homes increased more than $2,000 during the past year. The average sales price for homes sold during March was $47,269 compared to $45,244 a year earlier.

March was $47,269 compared to $45,244 a year earlier.

HOMEOWNERS who are concerned about the resale value of a home should consider the value of improvements, Schwartz said. For items as a fireplace and air conditioning, the homeowner may expect to get back the full value of the improvements when the house is sold. Other items may be subject to the likes and dislikes of a buyer, such as a patio and landscaping. Decorating unless it is far fetched, should add to a home's value.

Landscaping that adds to privacy normally adds more value than the improvement cost, said Herb Carl, of Century 21 Arlington Realty Inc., Arlington Heights. "Years ago people wanted corner lots. Now people want more privacy for family activities," Carl said. Professional landscaping can add to the appeal of a house, Carl said, although any increase in value is a matter of judgment for appraisers.

Home buying also is an investment for the person who will rent the home as income property, Schwartz said. Buyers gain a tax shelter, income to pay off a loan on the property and an increase in the property value, he said. Schwartz advised buyers to investigate maintenance records for the property and to inspect the property for possible maintenance problems.

ANOTHER MEANS of seeking a high rate of return in the home-buying market is to purchase a "handyman's special" and fix it up for resale. Schwartz advised buyers to look for structurally-sound homes in good neighborhoods. "There still are some to be found, but as soon as they're on the market, they usually sell very fast," Schwartz said.

Homes that are in the middle and low-price range should be in demand as fewer new housing units are built within the reach of middle-income families, Schwartz said. He seconds a recent Library of Congress study that indicates new-housing-unit costs are outpacing family-income gains. A survey by the National Assn. of Realtors shows an increasing share of home sales in the U.S. are in the $40,000-and-above price range and homes priced under $20,000 account for a declining share of the market.

Coming up...

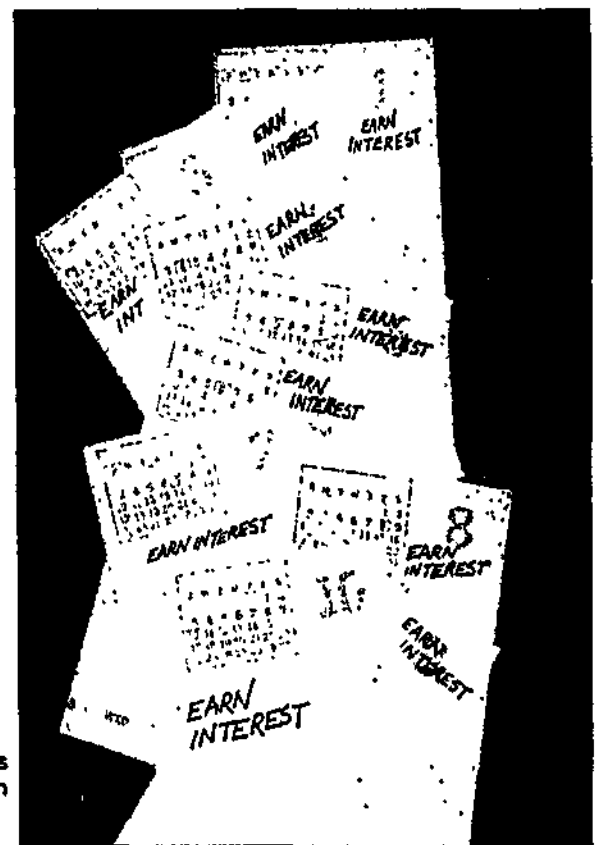

- May 8: The Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors will meet at the Casa Royale restaurant, Des Plaines, starting at 7 p.m. Speaker will be Karen Krieger of Oman Associates Inc., Skokie. She will discuss condominium-unit sales.

- May 8: The Businessmen's Breakfast Club of Northwest Suburban Chicago will meet at the Camelot restaurant, Des Plaines, at 7:30 a.m. Speaker will be Stan Wallgren.

- May 8-10: The Associated Beer Distributors of Illinois will meet at the Marriott Lincolnshire Resort, Lincolnshire. Approximately 500 persons are expected to attend.

- May 11: The Elk Grove Assn. of Industry and Commerce will meet at the Navarone Steak House, Elk Grove Village. George W. Dunne, president of the County Board of Commissioners, will speak at the noon meeting.

You get 10 free days every month when you save at First Federal Savings of Des Plaines. Because savings in by the 10th of the month earn from the 1st of the month, if on deposit at the end of the calendar quarter. Extra earnings is just one of the little things that mean a lot to First Federal savers. Free transfer of funds is another. So is saving by mail with the postage paid both ways. Perhaps most important is the high savings passbook rate—5½% per annum, compounded daily from date of deposit to date of withdrawal. So if little things—plus big earnings—mean a lot to you, start saving today at First Federal Savings of Des Plaines.

Baybrook Park offers additional living space

The two-bedroom two-bath condominiums at Baybrook Park in Palatine offer more living space than an average home.

The king-size master bedroom has a walk-in closet, the second bedroom has a wall-to-wall closet, the family-size kitchen comes complete with all appliances and informal eating area. The huge living-dining room is suitable for elegant social affairs. The Hollywood-style vanity bathrooms feature mirrored medicine cabinets, ceramic tile tub enclosures, overhead globe lighting. The 5-foot wide, 39 to 47 feet long balconies are large enough for outdoor entertainment on summer evenings.

Residents enjoy the Baybrook Park clubhouse with swimming pool, sun-deck, lounge for social gatherings, game room and health club with exercise equipment and lake for sailing.

There are only five homes in each wing per floor of the fire-resistant, sound-engineered buildings. Laundry room and storage space are located on each floor. Ample free outdoor parking serves residents and guests; indoor heated parking space is available.

Priced from $35,990, Baybrook Park offers a convenient "turn-around" package and good financing; immediate and future occupancies are available.

Located at 111 S. Baybrook Drive, on Palatine Rd., one stoplight west of Rte. 63, the models are open daily from 10 a.m. to 7 p.m.

Plan your move carefully

Moving to a new home can be a happy start on a new life.

"If you work it right, that is."

So observes Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

"Unless you approach moving day with calm forethought — it can be a most traumatic experience."

Goss believes in establishing the right mood for moving.

"Dreading it only makes it worse."

"A cheerful, optimistic outlook and a relaxed, thought-out plan help immeasurably," he says.

Goss offers a few suggestions:

Choose your mover with care. Get estimates from two or three — decide on the one you think will be most helpful. Compare factors other than the lowest cost.

Expect him to be fair with you — and be fair with him. Don't surprise his packing crew with added pieces on moving day.

Collect strong boxes plus cartons from the supermarket. Packing things yourself can help save you money.

Whether you or the movers pack — mark contents on each box. Indicate which room of the house the box should be placed in upon arrival.

Don't leave garbage and castoffs lying about on moving day. The crew, just to be safe, will usually pack everything in sight.

Be sure and make a note of the condition of each item.

Don't ship everything. Moving is an excellent way to get rid of old unwanted things you should have discarded long ago.

It is not wise to "put all your eggs in one basket." Take along a survival kit. You will need extra clothes, a few utensils and bedding — while you are getting settled.

By all means, take irreplaceable items with you. Furs, jewelry, coins and portable heirlooms are oft-times included in a floater insurance policy.

If your safe deposit box at your bank is overstuffed, arrange for the bank to ship such contents to your new bank where you are moving.

"Careful thought and planning are necessary for a truly smooth move," Goss concludes.

BAIRD & WARNER, INC. has arranged a long-term loan of $430,000 for the eight-year-old Northwest Office Center, a one-story office building at 4902 Toll-view Drive in Rolling Meadows.

Located just east of the intersection of the Northwest Tollway, and Rte. 53, the structure contains 14,100 square feet of rentable space.

Village on the Lake offers gift certificate program

A bonus gift certificate program is in effect at Village on the Lake in Elk Grove Village. In addition to giving gift certificates to referred buyers when they purchase their condominium homes in the new community, identical gift certificates also are given to the satisfied owners who refer the new buyers.

Village on the Lake is being developed by United Development Company, a subsidiary of Urban Investment and Development Co., a Chicago-based national real estate development firm.

"Aside from the monetary value to the recipients of the gift certificates at the new community," says Robert Frommer, president of United Development Company, "we've instituted the program in the belief that there's nothing like a satisfied homeowner to extol the virtues of the condominium homes and the new community."

Explaining how the bonus program works at Village on the Lake, Frommer notes that both a $50 Sears, Roebuck and Co. gift certificate and a $50 Marshall Field & Company gift certificate are given to both the referred buyer of a condominium home and to the condominium homeowner who made the referral.

How effective is the program?

"Since the first of the year, when the program began, many of our sales have come from such referrals," says Jack McGlinz, sales manager at Village on the Lake.

He believes that the gift certificates are a factor in the referrals, especially during this period of tight money.

But he also thinks the referrals, which involve friends and relatives, would not be made unless they were being made by satisfied customers.

The one-, two-, and three-bedroom condominium homes at Village on the Lake, in mid-rise buildings of fire-resistant steel, concrete, and brick construction, are priced from $26,350 to $42,350.

The community is located two blocks west of Arlington Heights Rd. just north of Bluesterfield Rd. in Elk Grove Village. Furnished models are open from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. Monday through Saturday and from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. Sunday.

Mortgage loan delinquencies up

Mortgage loan delinquencies at savings and loan associations increased slightly during the first quarter of 1975, the United States League of Savings Associations reported.

The trade associations said that the average delinquency ratio for January was 0.92 per cent as compared to 0.90 in January a year ago, but in February and March delinquencies exceeded one per cent for the first time since 1967.

The February ratio of 1.01 and March of 1.02 compared to 0.91 and 0.83 for the same months last year.

The League noted that while the one per cent delinquency figures represented an increase, it remains low by historical standards.

For instance in the 1960s, some first quarter average delinquencies were considerably higher. During the first quarter of 1962 delinquencies averaged 1.36 per cent; in 1963, 1.37 per cent; in 1964, 1.36 per cent; in 1965, 1.23 per cent; and in 1966, 1.09 per cent.

"Considering the widespread unemployment and the recession, the rise in delinquency ratios is not surprising," said Norman Strunk, executive vice president of the League. "Delinquencies on installment credit loans began rising some months ago."

When their daughter finally got married, Barbara and Bob Lewis sold their home and bought a Colony Country Condominium on beautiful Old Orchard Country Club.

WHY?

Barbara couldn't bear another empty bedroom and Bob enjoyed playing golf.

It's a new great life for the Lewises (almost a second honeymoon). At Colony Country they're still near their friends and Barbara can shop to her heart's content across the street at Randhurst Shopping Mall while Bob walks to his club (Old Orchard Country Club) where he has a year's free golf membership.

They're really enjoying the luxury of Colony Country. Indoor & Outdoor pools. Heated garage. Fresh air with a view of 230 acres (their country club). Complete recreational center including sauna. Free bus to the trains. And that's just the outside of a great life. Inside Barbara has her own color coordinated kitchen with a no-frost refrigerator, self-cleaning double oven range, automatic washer and garbage disposal. Luxury beyond compare with spacious rooms, closets and baths. Separate heating and air conditioning. Storm windows and screens plus sliding glass doors onto a private patio.

The Lewises compared other golf course locations for roominess, luxury and price and they found out nothing compares to Colony Country.

Meadow Edge offers five models

A spacious and open floor plan, in tune with its rolling country environment, is offered in the Dartmoor, one of five townhouse models at Meadow Edge, a new 60-acre community in the prestigious Plum Grove section of northwest suburban Rolling Meadows.

Priced at $33,500, the Dartmoor features three bedrooms, a family room, 2½ baths, an attached garage and a full basement. It is being offered by the Meadow Edge Company, a joint venture of Zale Construction Co. and First Savings Corporation, and was designed by the architectural firm of The Berkus Group in Rosemont.

The exterior of this two-story home is a contemporary blend of wood-grained siding and brick with natural wood trim. Modern-style dormers and varied roof angles add architectural flavor.

The raised foyer of the 1,603 square-foot Dartmoor may be entered either from the front porch through the main door or from the attached garage. A double-door guest closet is on the left beside the convenient powder room. To the right is the stairway to the second floor.

The Dartmoor's easy-care floor plan makes it possible to go directly from the foyer into the 10 feet 8 inches by 12 feet 6 inches family room or into the 12 feet 9 inches by 17 feet 6 inches living room with its soaring two-story cathedral ceiling.

Beyond the living room is the 9 feet 6 inches by 11 feet 4 inches formal dining area which is serviced by the 9 feet 4 inches by 9 feet 6 inches kitchen. The kitchen includes a continuous-cleaning built-in gas range with double oven and hood, Formica countertops in a choice of colors, solid oak cabinets, six-cycle Magic Chef dishwasher, garbage disposer, pantry closet, vinyl asbestos floor tile and a double stainless steel sink placed beneath a window looking out on the patio.

The Dartmoor kitchen has another special feature — a 7 feet by 8 feet breakfast area which is contiguous with the family room and has its own insulated sliding glass doors to the outdoor patio. Off the family room, which measures 10 feet 8 inches by 12 feet 6 inches, is the stairway to the full basement.

Upstairs, is the Dartmoor's 12 feet by 16 feet 2 inches master bedroom with its double-door wall closets, window-lighted sitting alcove and private bath. This and other baths at Meadow Edge feature overhead globe lighting, extra-large mirror with Hollywood lighting, oval sink with cultured marble vanity top, solid oak vanity net, medicine cabinet with lowered doors and tub areas with ceramic wallscoring.

Down the hallway from the master bedroom suite is the family bath, the linen closet and a 10 feet 10 inches by 11 feet secondary bedroom with wall closet. A third bedroom, measuring 11 feet by 13 feet 8 inches, can also serve as a very special den and features a solid wall of closets and a balcony that overlooks the living room.

Standard features of the Dartmoor and other townhomes at Meadow Edge, include a fenced and landscaped entryway, an attached one- or two-car garage with special 4 feet by 8 feet bonus storage area and automatic electric door opener, a full-width paved driveway, full basement with laundry tub, a patio area, central air conditioning, wall-to-wall shag carpeting, underground utilities, wiring for telephone outlets, gas forced-air heating, deluxe hardware and electric-eye outdoor lights which turn on automatically as the sun sets to illuminate the front yard and street.

Optional items available include sliding mirrored closet doors, parquet floors and one or more fireplaces with quarry-tile hearths which can be located in the living room, family room or, in some cases, the master bedroom suite.

As for recreational facilities, Meadow Edge includes a 4,000 square-foot California contemporary-designed clubhouse with resident lounge, dance floor, party room, fully-equipped kitchen and men's and women's locker rooms for the adjacent super-sized sun deck and heated swimming pool. Long-term plans at Meadow Edge call for the development of tennis courts and a large lake.

The Meadow Edge property is being enhanced by the development of a network of hilly greenbelts, heavily planted with hundreds of full-grown trees and thousands of shrubs and designed to add privacy and visual variety to the community.

To visit the models, which are open from 11 a.m. to 6 p.m. every day, take the Northwest Tollway to the Rolling Meadows exit (Route 53). Exit north and travel to the Euclid Avenue west exit. Go west a few blocks to Plum Grove Road. Turn left and go south on Plum Grove Road to Old Plum Grove Road. Turn right to models.

Condominiums gain commercial use

"The condominium, now being established as a prime residential resource, is beginning to enjoy increased commercial application as well."

So states Marshall C. Dennison, president and chief executive officer of Pennacore, Inc., a Philadelphia-based national real estate financing and servicing organization.

"Condominium office and professional buildings, shopping centers, and industrial parks," Dennison observes, "show good potential so long as they combine the special advantages of independent ownership of primary facilities with common ownership of related, subordinated facilities."

Dennison points to these specific examples:

A professional medical building as a condo structure can provide private, centrally located doctors' offices as well as common lobbies, elevators, basic utilities, laboratories and technical equipment.

An industrial park may allow unit owners to share roads, parking areas, loading platforms, warehouses, anti-pollution equipment and even, in some instances, computers.

"Under these circumstances," Dennison notes, "businesses can utilize an assortment of facilities which they might not otherwise be able to afford — and without the problem of burdensome leases."

He reports additionally that the commercial condominium arrangement serves to interest small investors — many of whom are attracted to the creative and well-secured financing available to this large-scale venture.

"Commercial condominium developments," Dennison comments, "also offer tangential economic dividends — potential investors know that a project has been pre-screened and analyzed for its long-term viability and that, generally, survey and title work has been completed at no cost to them."

As building and lending becomes ever more reliant on specialized financial expertise, he adds, the commercial condominium resource offers innumerable options to potential investors — including use of existing research and planning data.

"The market for commercial condominium space will expand nationwide in the coming months because it meets the immediate needs of our now-turning-upward economy," Dennison concludes.

Carlson attended annual convention

Harold J. Carlson was featured on the program of the annual convention of the International Council of Shopping Centers in Miami Beach May 4-7.

Harold Carlson

Carlson, an active member of the International Council of Shopping Centers, is a designated CSM (Certified Shopping Center Manager), was a State Director and is a member of the Board of Trustees of the ICSC. Carlson carries the title of MAI (American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers) and currently is President of the Illinois Chapter 6 of the A.I.R.E.A. He also carries the designation of CPM (Certified Property Manager). Carlson is vice-president and general manager of Randhurst and recently was awarded management of two shopping centers, Lincoln Mall in Matteson and Northwoods in Peoria.

The convention, which was attended by some 6,000 key shopping center executives from the U.S., Canada and 28 other countries, explored current developments in all aspects of the shopping center industry. Theme of the convention's program was "Planning for Shopping Center Profit and Growth: 1975-1980."

3 lead Palatine office

Mary Ann Falkenberg

Mary Jane Kohl

Grace Sullivan

Three real estate sales representatives are leading Quinlan and Tyson's Palatine area office in sales volume through the first quarter of 1975.

The leaders, in order of production, are Grace Sullivan, Mary Ann Falkenberg and Mary Jane Kohl, according to Beverly Ann Berry, office sales manager.

Mrs. Sullivan, who has been with Quinlan and Tyson for five years, is a licensed real estate broker and is a member of the Quinlan and Tyson President's Circle which cites sales representatives for exceptional achievement. She lives in Palatine, with her husband, Ed, and their eight children.

Mrs. Falkenberg is a Life Member of the Illinois Association of Realtors Million Dollar Club, having closed sales in excess of $1 million for these consecutive years, 1971-73. She also topped $1 million last year for the fourth time in a row. She is a licensed real estate broker and is a member of the firm's President's Circle.

Mrs. Falkenberg has been a sales representative for Quinlan and Tyson for almost six years. She and her husband, Charles, have 10 children. The family lives in Palatine.

Mrs. Kohl, a Quinlan and Tyson sales representative for five years, is a member of the Quinlan and Tyson President's Circle. She lives in Palatine, with her five children.

Mrs. Berry also announced that Mary Lou Mitchell is the top listing sales representative in the office for the first quarter of the year, she has been with Quinlan and Tyson for three years. Mrs. Mitchell and her husband, Joe, and five children live in Arlington Heights.

WAIT to honor Robert Walters

Radio station WAIT has named Robert G. Walters, senior vice president and general manager of the residential sales division of Baird & Warner, Inc., as its "Man of the Day" for April 24.

Frederick G. Harm, general manager of the station, said that Walters was selected in recognition of "his outstanding contribution to commerce and industry," and would be honored twice in a broadcast salute during the day.

Winner named

James Dusan, vice president of T. A. Bolger, Realtor's Rolling Meadows office recently announced the winners of the first anniversary celebration drawing of T. A. Bolger's office in Rolling Meadows.

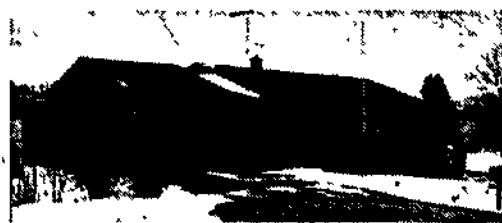

A certificate for a weekend for two at the Chicago Marriott Hotel was presented to the first place winners, Mr. and Mrs. David Hickey of Rolling Meadows. Second and third place winners were Mr. and Mrs. Havranek, also of Rolling Meadows, with a $50 gift certificate and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Lacey of Palatine, with a $25 gift certificate, both redeemable at Crawford's Department Store in Rolling Meadows.

Housing predictions made

Improved availability of mortgage money, generally lower interest rates and a somewhat tighter rein on inflation are expected to spur sales of existing homes during the remainder of 1975, but construction of new homes for the year may not surpass last year's depressed rate.

That was the forecast from Ken Kerin, director of the National Association of Realtors Department of Economics and Research, in a report issued for Realtor Week.

Kerin added two qualifying statements to his prediction for existing home sales: First, the pace of recovery from 1974 "will be modest and will not match the robust growth rates recorded during prior periods of expansion."

"And there still is a danger that the resurgence of inflation will cause reversal in monetary policy, sending interest rates back through the roof once again." If that should happen, he indicated, there would be little cause for even modest optimism concerning expansion in existing home sales activity.

He noted that the much-heralded improvement in mortgage credit during the final quarter of 1974 was slow in stimulating sales of either existing or new homes.

This, he said, was due primarily to consumer caution brought about by a number of factors:

The question of whether inflation could be brought under control still was paramount in the minds of most Americans.

Fearful of unemployment, many potential buyers were reluctant to assume the greater mortgage debt associated with moving up the housing ladder.

However, February marked the end of a year-long slump in existing home sales, and barring a reversal in the mortgage market, the sales outlook remains favorable for the remainder of 1975.

As for new home construction, the picture is not encouraging. Kerin anticipates that there will be no measurable increase in construction over the 1.35 million annual rate in 1974.

This is largely due to the fact that there was an inventory of about 400,000 unsold new homes at the end of 1974 to carry into 1975, he explained. However, he feels that the tax credit measure approved as part of the tax reduction bill should help eliminate that inventory.

The measure allows buyers of homes under construction by this past March 25 a tax credit of five per cent on the purchase price, up to a $2,000 maximum.

The picture for multi-family unit construction also is cloudy, Kerin says. "Despite a favorable rental market and improvements in the availability of mortgage money, multi-family starts this year will be slow in recovering from their extremely depressed level."

Single-family home starts in 1974 were off about 20 per cent from year-earlier totals, but multi-family construction dropped more than 50 per cent, Kerin noted.

"Problems plaguing this segment of the industry (multi-family) include concern over land use and environment, pending tax reform legislation and accelerating operating expenses," he added.

Although the total outlook for the near term is relatively uncertain, Kerin sees the long-term outlook as good.

"Once normal supply and demand relationships are restored, the market will put forth increased levels of housing production to provide for replacement of substandard units, and to accommodate the rising rate of household formation expected during the remainder of the decade."

"The fastest growing segment of the population will be in the 25-to-35-year-old group. Housing demand by this age group always has been strong and is a positive factor in the outlook for both the existing and new home markets," he added.

Finally, Kerin called attention to an expected trend in new home construction during 1975: Homes will be smaller with fewer bedrooms and more entertainment areas.

Factors influencing this change, he said, are:

The rapid growth of single-person households and smaller families.

Concern over the availability and cost of energy.

On this last point, Kerin added, "To a greater degree than ever before, now homes will feature energy-saving construction, and consumers will show an increased willingness to pay for these added features."

"Moratoriums on new connections to natural gas lines and concern over the availability of home-heating oil will cause more and more builders to install electric heating systems."

Such a trend already has begun, Kerin noted. "A joint report published by the Bureau of the Census and Department of Housing and Urban Development showed that the proportion of new homes with electric heat increased from 36 per cent in 1972 to 42 per cent in 1973, with a corresponding decline in the percentage of new homes using natural gas as fuel," he explained.

He also noted that the growing shortage of fossil fuels will increase the number of experiments with alternative sources of fuel, such as solar energy.

Adding up the potential pluses and minuses, then, 1975 will be a year of change — from a depressed housing situation to a moderately improved one; from large, rambling homes to more compact ones built to save energy. But whatever the outlook, Realtors stand ready to serve the public by providing information on mortgage loan availability and rates and by searching for the home to fit the buyer.

Victorian homes in vogue

Victorian "gingerbread" is back in vogue.

"The housing style spawned 100 years ago is once again achieving popularity."

So comments Jackson W. Goss, president and chief executive officer of Investors Mortgage Insurance Company, Boston, a leading organization in the private mortgage insurance industry.

"Victorian era housing influenced life styles then and may well do so again."

"The architecture was fancy and frilly, melodramatic and overly ornamental."

"But home buyers, eager to rehabilitate an 'oldie,' are presently eyeing these ornately columned and arched dwellings," Goss points out.

Built in the days when Papa sported a handlebar mustache — and Mama's various petticoats rustled — these elaborate mansions competed architecturally with other building styles of yesteryear.

"The houses were built high — high porches, high ceilings, turrets, windows and stairways. In gaudy splendor, they sat well back from tree-lined streets, casting an over-decorated face to those passing," he notes.

The overall purpose, seemingly was to imitate the great mansions of Europe.

"Influences of castles and cathedrals were in plentiful evidence. Lookout platforms, sometimes called cupolas, loomed on the rooftops — no true Victorian home was complete without a tower and stained glass windows," Goss states.

Inside, the homes were even more elaborately embellished. Rooms were literally crammed with heavy, overstuffed furniture, carved and gilded tables, and flowery bric-a-brac.

"A middle-class Victorian home — to be really in style — had to have a porte-cochere. The roof-like extension jutting from the side of the house protected — from rain and snow — visitors alighting from their buggies."

"It was, actually, a forerunner of today's carport," he explains.

The Victorian home — in a fairly deteriorated state — is often found today in neglected and run-down neighborhoods.

"But it won't be that way for long. Like most fine styles, Victorian is coming back," Goss concludes.

Read "Leisure" every Saturday in The Herald and you'll know what's happening in the northwest suburbs all weekend long.

Mock trial to be featured

A unique mock trial will be featured in a two-part, all-day seminar on real estate condemnation appraisal being presented by the Chicago Real Estate Board's Appraisers Council and the Illinois Chapter of the American Institute of Real Estate Appraisers.

The program will be held Wednesday, May 21 in the LaSalle Hotel in downtown Chicago.

According to CREB Appraisers Council Chairman John Lydon, the Mock Trial participants will include former U. S. District Attorney Thomas Foran, now in private law practice, and Cook County Circuit Court Judge Arthur Dunne.

The morning session of the seminar will begin at 9:00 o'clock, with the discussion of nine topics pertinent to the appraisal process in a condemnation proceeding. The subjects and lecturers will be: "The History of Condemnation," Earl L. Neal, Special Assistant Corporation Counsel, City of Chicago; "New Trends in Law and Procedure," Robert C. Thomas, Kennedy, Golan, Morris, Spangler and Greenberg, and Special Assistant Attorney General, State of Illinois; "D.O.T. Right-of-Way Procedures," John R. Bolden, District Land Acquisition Engineer, Department of Transportation, State of Illinois; "Is the Witness Qualified?" William R. Dillon, Concannon, Dillon, Snook and Morton; "Current Zoning vs. Probable Change," Thomas T. Burke, Burke and Weber; "Damages vs. Special/General Benefit," Calvert J. Gordon, attorney; "What is a Comparable Sale?" John T. McGarry, Assistant State's Attorney, State of Illinois; "Preparing Witness for Testimony," Donald T. Morrison, Morrison and Nemlinach; "Cross Examination of the Expert," Thomas A. Foran.

During the luncheon, the conference room will be rearranged to present a setting conducive to litigation proceedings. Explanatory material will be distributed during the lunch hour to prepare the audience to follow the mock trial proceedings with greater understanding.

A hypothetical property has been selected as the subject parcel for the mock trial. While some abbreviation will be made for the conservation of time, every effort has been made to demonstrate as many aspects of an actual condemnation problem as possible.

Judge Arthur L. Dunne will preside. Opposing trial counsel will be Foran and Donald T. Morrison. There will be the introduction of various visual exhibits, as well as witness testimony and cross examination.

Tuition for the seminar is $45 per person for reservations made in advance. If any spaces remain unfilled, tickets will be available for purchase at the door for $50 each. The tuition includes both parts of the seminar program, lunch, and a set of explanatory and reference material.

Checks made payable to the Chicago Real Estate Board in the full tuition amount should accompany reservations, and be directed to the CREB office, Suite 800, 18 South Michigan Ave., Chicago 60603.

2 join Nelson staff

Complaints voiced

Tenants of Gladstone Glen, formerly the Lamplighter Apartments, 1508 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling, were surprised recently when they were invited to a party by their new manager-owner, Gladstone, Realtors, and asked to report on their problems.

Gladstone purchased the 11-building residential complex with the intention of redecorating and refurbishing the apartments, resurfacing the indoor-outdoor swimming pool, providing new lighting fixtures for parking areas and entrances, and adding play equipment for the children's recreation areas. Tony Pagone, Gladstone's director of property management, outlined plans for the future before fielding questions from the crowd.

Gladstone has put 25 workmen on the job and work already has been completed on two buildings.

Venture holds seminar tonight

"Everything you wanted to know about buying a home but were afraid to ask" will be the topic of a free seminar sponsored by Venture Realty Co. Guest speakers will include Louis Scherbi, attorney at law and Carol Rucinski, executive mortgage loan officer of National Homes Acceptance Corporation.

They will discuss various government-sponsored programs to assist in buying a home.

The seminar will be held tonight at 7 p.m., at the Clayton Hotel, adjacent to Palwaukee Airport in Wheeling. Everyone interested can make a reservation by calling Venture Realty Co. at 298-2194.

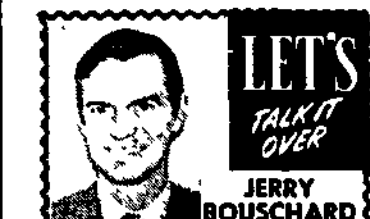

Realtors hold meeting tonight

The Northwest Suburban Board of Realtors will hold its regular monthly dinner meeting tonight at 7:00 p.m. at the Casa Royale, 783 Lee Street, Des Plaines.

Guest speaker will be Karen Krieger of Oman Associates, Inc. in Skokie. Ms. Krieger is a graduate of the University of Illinois. Prior to her association with Oman Associates, she owned a business in Belvidere, and then worked with Baird & Warner's Lake Shore office specializing in condominium apartment sales in the Gold Coast area and along Lake Shore Drive.

Ms. Krieger has taught Advanced Real Estate Principles and Property Management at the Central YMCA Community College and is a candidate for the M.A.I. designation.

Subject of Ms. Krieger's presentation will be "Selling the Condominium Concept." She will discuss the brokers' role in selling condominiums, from individual units to buildings for conversion.

JERRY BOUSCHARD

Being in the real estate business gives us the opportunity to meet lots of nice people. We enjoy being able to help them buy or sell homes or other property in such a way that their desires are accomplished. We realize that we're lucky to be in a profession that lets us perform a worthwhile service for those who need us.

In discussing real estate with people from all walks of life, we've come to realize that lots of folks consider real estate a pretty mysterious field. There's a great deal to be learned before you qualify as an expert, and there are lots of incorrect ideas floating around. So, we've thought of one more way that we can be of service to you... by sponsoring this little "column" on real estate.

We'd like to meet you here each week and share our ideas or explain some aspect of real estate for you. Your ideas and suggestions will be most welcome.

Handicapped day camp signup to end May 15

Registration will be taken until May 15 for the Northwest Suburban Special Recreation Assn. summer day-camp program for handicapped and learning-disabled children.

Day camp will include arts, crafts, swimming, sports, games, music, drama, dances and special events and will be June 23-Aug. 1, from 9 a.m. to 3 p.m. Separate camps will be offered for children with learning disabilities.

The summer camp program is sponsored by 12 Northwest suburban park districts — Arlington Heights, Buffalo Grove, Elk Grove, Hanover Park, Hoffman Estates, Mount Prospect, Palatine, River Trails, Rolling Meadows, Salt Creek, Schaumburg and Wheeling.

Persons who are residents of participating park districts will be charged $60 for the summer camp program. Nonresidents will be charged $75.

Children will be picked up and dropped off at their homes each day. Children should bring a labeled sack lunch; drinks will be provided. There also will be a one-week outdoor camp experience during the month of August at Sunrise Lake Camp.

Registration for summer camps can be mailed to NWSRA, 660 N. Ridge, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.

Registration also will be held Friday from 3 p.m. to 8 p.m. and Saturday from 9 a.m. to 1 p.m. at Olympic Pool, 660 N. Ridge, Arlington Heights; Elk Grove Community Center, 180 Kennedy Blvd., Elk Grove Village; Meineke Community Center, 220 E. Weathersfield Way, Schaumburg, and Heritage Park, 222 S. Wolf Rd., Wheeling.

For further information call 394-4948 or 394-4910.

Northwest Suburban Head Start will sponsor a parent-child activity day Friday at St. Mark's Lutheran Church in Mount Prospect.

All Head Start parents are invited to the program that begins at 10:30 a.m. at the church, 200 S. Wille St.

Food-service grants go to 3 at Harper

Three Harper College students in the food service technology program have received scholarships from the Northern Illinois Branch of International Food Service Executives Assn. and the local Harper junior chapter of the organization.

Steven Heald, Mount Prospect and William Pritts, Arlington Heights, will receive $200 scholarships from the two groups. John Leahy will receive $100.

Stocks rebound for small gain; Dow up 1.72

NEW YORK (UPI) — The stock market rallied late Wednesday to post a small gain.

The Dow Jones Industrial average, a 20.88-point loser Tuesday, gained 1.72 points to 836.44 in the late rally. The closely followed average was off more than 4 points at the outset, up around 2 points at noon and then dropped 5 before the rally.

Standard & Poor's 500-stock index also rallied, gaining 0.44 to 89.08. The average price of an NYSE common share increased by 14 cents. Advances topped declines, 763 to 634, among the 1,832 issues crossing the tape.

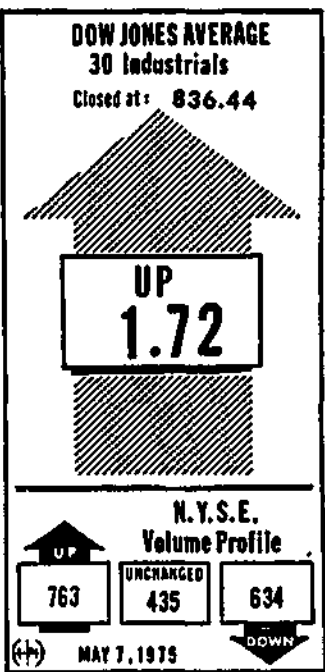

Volume totaled 22,250,000 shares, down from the 23,410,000 traded Tuesday.

U. S. STEEL, a 3 1/4-point loser Tuesday, fell another 3/8 in active trading. The company expects lower second quarter earnings. Inland Steel lost 1-1/8. Chemicals, which took a drubbing Tuesday, turned mixed.

A. E. Staley Manufacturing, producer of corn syrup sweeteners, climbed 6 following heavy losses the past week. The stock had been hurt by a decline in sugar prices. Coca-Cola, which reported higher earnings and should benefit from cheaper sugar prices, gained 2 1/8.

American Telephone & Telegraph warrants trading next-day delivery led the Big Board actives, off 1/32 to 9/32 on 731,500 traded. Transco Cos. followed, off 1/4 to 8 1/8 on 352,100 shares, including a block of 352,000 shares at 7 1/2.

Houston Lighting & Power was third most active, off 1/8 to 20 5/8 on 379,700 shares, including blocks of 250,000 and 100,000 shares both at 20 1/2.

Curtis-Wright, holder of North American rights to the Wankel rotary engine, was the fourth most active issue, up 2 1/8 on 303,800 shares. The A stock gained 5 1/2. General Motors added 7/8.

Energy issues were mixed. Prices closed higher in active trading on the American Stock Exchange. The average price of an Amex share increased by 4 cents. Volume totaled 2,460,000 shares, compared with 2,975,000 traded Tuesday.

Company officials see profits ahead

AMC tells $47.8 million loss for first quarter

DETROIT (UPI) — American Motors Corp. Wednesday said it lost $47.8 million in the first three months of 1975 — the biggest loss in its 21-year history.

Mississippi at flood stage far Downstate

ST. LOUIS (UPI) — The Mississippi River was at flood stage Wednesday as far south as Grafton, Ill., and a downstream crest is expected to move past St. Louis this weekend.

A crest was near Sabula, Iowa, Wednesday and near stages were predicted to be ranging as high as 5.5 feet above flood stage. Minor overflow is expected at Alton, Ill., and some points south of St. Louis.

A third Mississippi crest was at Helena, Ark., but below flood stage. Some light overflow is expected next week at a few places south of Vicksburg, Miss.

The Mississippi's major tributary, the Missouri River, has risen rapidly because of heavy rain in Central Missouri, and a few other streams are also rising. A crest of 17 feet, or two feet above flood stage, is expected today on the Bourbeuse River at Union, and a crest six inches over flood stage of 16 feet is expected at about the same time on the Big river at Byrnesville.

The Meramec River was leaving its banks, and a crest of 10 feet, one foot above flood stage, is expected today at Eureka.

history and the third straight quarterly deficit.

In the same three-month period last year, AMC turned a $8.9 million profit on sales of $498 million. The sales level fell only slightly to $482 million in the January-March quarter of this year.

The loss left AMC, the smallest of the major U.S. auto companies, with a $53.4 million deficit in the first six months of its 1975 fiscal year which began in October. That compares with a $15.6 million profit in the same six-month period a year ago.

THE AMC LOSS was the third reported by Detroit automakers for the first quarter of 1975 — the worst financial quarter for the industry since the Great Depression of the 1930s. Only General Motors reported a profit, and its $39 million income was the lowest in 29 years.

Despite the staggering loss, top AMC officials said the company would operate profitably in the next six months.

They said there were several encouraging signs, including an increasing share of the domestic market, strong sales of the new small Pacer and the continuing callback of workers.

As of this week, AMC has just 625 of its 24,000 hourly workers off the job.

Chairman Roy D. Chapin Jr. and President William V. Luneburg said the loss, even greater than the $27.8 million deficit in the July-September quarter of 1967, was due in part to the same reasons other automakers were hurt. In addition to being crunched by lower sales volume and increasing material and labor costs, AMC incurred large expenses to introduce the Pacer.

- | | |
|---|-------------------------|
| 1 pound frozen cod or pollock fish fillets, thawed | 1/2 cup minced onion |
| 3 cups cooked brown rice or bulgur | 1/2 cup snipped mint |
| wheat (1 cup raw rice) | 1/2 cup olive oil |
| 1 cup chopped fresh tomato | 1 cup fresh lemon juice |
| 1 cup diced cucumber | 1 teaspoon salt |

Cook fish fillets in boiling water 3-4 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Cool fish and flake. In a bowl, combine rice, tomato, cucumber, onion and mint. Mix together olive oil, lemon juice and salt and pour over rice while stirring to coat. Stir in flaked fish. Chill. Serve in avocado halves. May be garnished with lemon slices and fresh mint. Makes 6 1/2 cups.

DORYMAN'S FISH SKILLET

- | | |
|----------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1/2 pound salt pork, diced | 1/2 teaspoon pepper |
| 1/2 cup chopped onion | 1 package (10 oz.) frozen lima beans |
| 2 cloves garlic, crushed | 1 pound frozen sole or flounder |
| 1/2 pound smoked sausage, sliced | fish fillets, thawed |
| 1/2-inch thick (about 1 cup) | Salt and pepper |
| 1/2 cup dry white wine or | 1 tablespoon flour |
| 1/2 cup apple juice | 2 tablespoons water |
| 1/2 cup water | 2 tablespoons chopped parsley |
| 1/2 teaspoon salt | |

In a large skillet, cook salt pork until brown and crisp. Remove salt pork from skillet and reserve. Pour off all but 2 tablespoons fat. Add onion and garlic and saute until tender. Stir in reserved salt pork, sausage, wine, water, salt and pepper and add frozen limas. Heat limas to boiling, while breaking apart with spoon. Cover and simmer 5 minutes. Season fillets with salt and pepper and place on top of limas in skillet in a single layer. Cover and simmer 4-5 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Garnish with chopped parsley. Makes about 4 servings.

CAPTAIN'S CHOWDER

|-----------------------------------|-----------------------------|
| 2 tablespoons butter or margarine | 1 medium tomato, peeled and |
| 1 cup thinly sliced carrots | chopped (about 1 cup) |
| 1/2 cup chopped celery | 1 bay leaf |
| 1/2 cup chopped onion | 1/2 teaspoon leaf thyme |
| 1/2 cup chopped garlic | dash of cayenne pepper |
| 2 bottles (8 oz. each) clam juice | 1 pound frozen flounder |
| or 2 cups chicken broth | or sole fillets, thawed |
| 1 1/2 cups water | 1/2 cup chopped parsley |

In a 3 quart saucepan melt butter. Add carrots, celery, onion and garlic and saute until tender. Stir in clam juice, water, tomato, bay leaf, thyme and pepper. Bring to a boil, cover and simmer 15 minutes. Add fish fillets. Cover and simmer 4-5 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Break fish into pieces with a spoon. Garnish with chopped parsley. Yields about 6 cups.

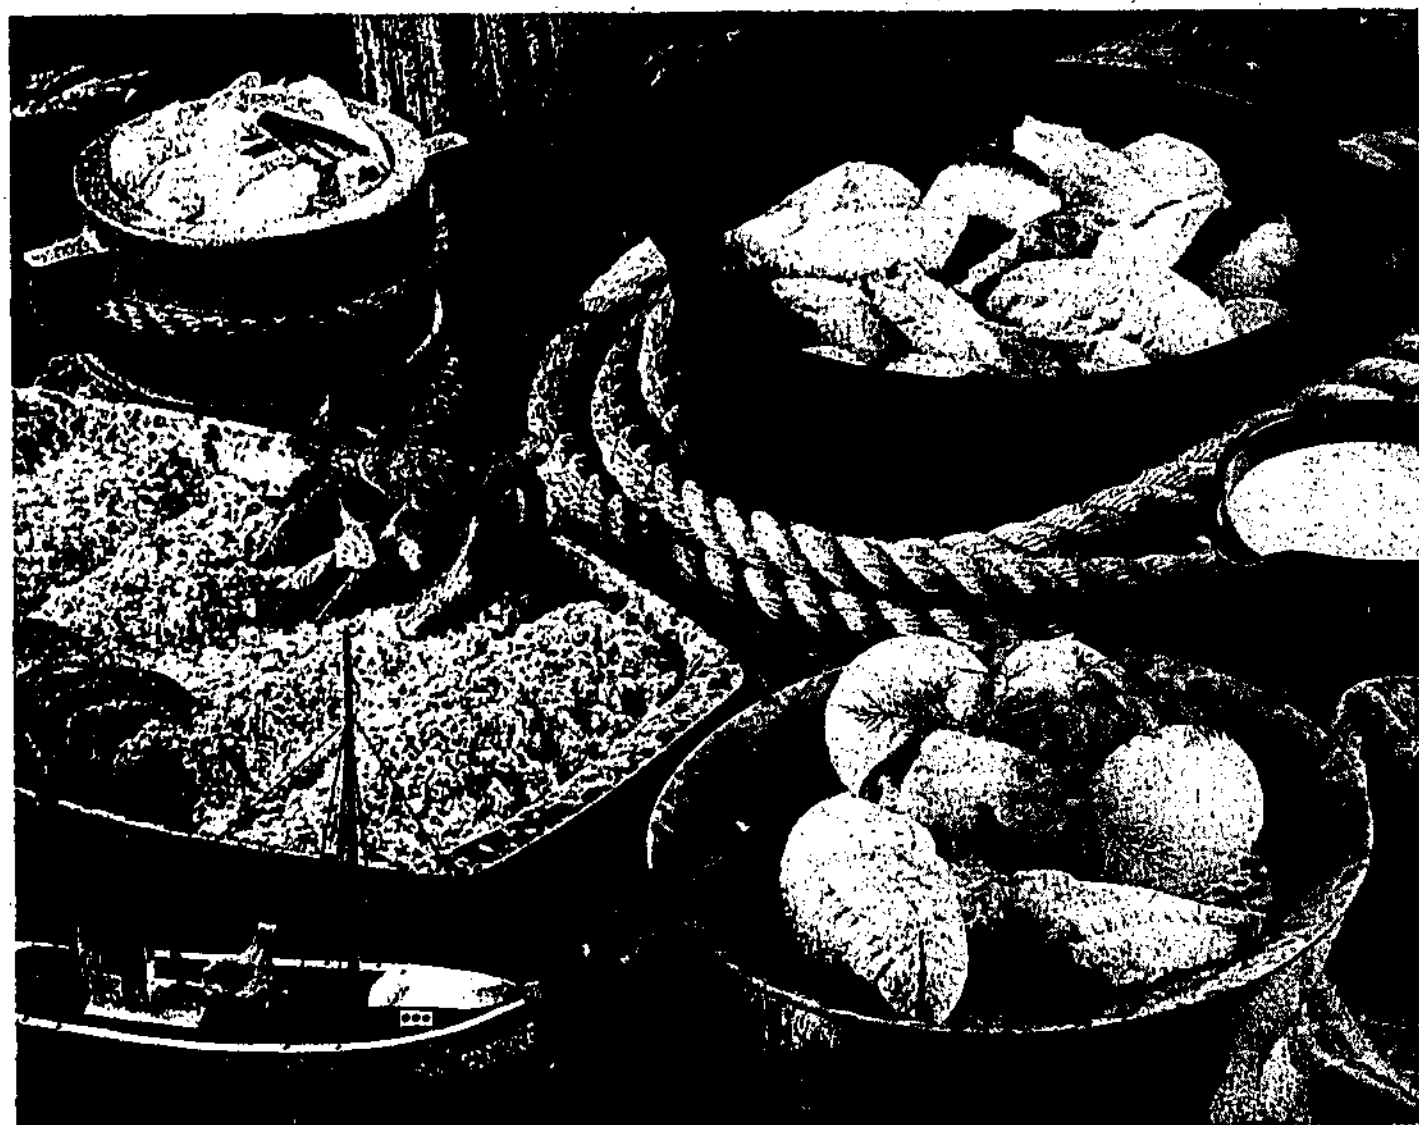

Discover North Atlantic Seafood

"There's no taste like it," brag the fishermen of Canada and Scandinavia when they describe soul-satisfying meals of fish captured from their icy North Atlantic. They have a right to be proud. Their ancestors were the adventurers who braved the stormy ocean and settled the New World. Father and son, they have built a modern fishing industry on the North Atlantic's rugged coasts where the firm, white-meated delicately flavored cod, sole, flounder, ocean perch and pollock (to name a few) are caught, cleaned and frozen, right off the boats.

Discovering the many simply but exciting ways fish can be prepared is an adventure to be enjoyed around your dinner table. Rich, steaming chowder or flaky, scalloped fillets make a memorable meal and what's more, a meal that provides protein-rich nutrition, very economically and conveniently.

As you look for good buys to stretch your budget, don't sail by the seafood section of your supermarket. Since supplies are abundant today, you'll find great values. And great possibilities for a new world of eating.

SEAMAN'S TEMPTATION

- | | |
|---|---------------------------------|
| 3 tablespoons butter or margarine | 1/2 teaspoon curry powder |
| 1 pound frozen cod or pollock | 1/2 teaspoon coriander, crushed |
| fish fillets, thawed | 1 bay leaf |
| 2 tablespoons vegetable oil | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 1 large onion, peeled and sliced | 1 cup vinegar |
| 1/2 cup firmly packed light brown sugar | 1/2 cup water |

In a large skillet, melt butter. Cook fish fillets in butter till lightly browned. Remove fish from skillet and drain on paper toweling. Sauté onion in 2 tablespoons vegetable oil until tender. Stir in brown sugar, curry powder, coriander, bay leaf and salt. Blend in vinegar and water. Break up fish and layer with marinade in a quart crock or covered glass jar. Cover and refrigerate at least 24 hours before serving. Serve with party crackers or toasted bread rounds. Makes about 1 quart.

VIKING FISH BOIL

- | | |
|------------------------------|---------------------------------|
| 10 cups water | Dill Cream Sauce* |
| 1/2 cup salt | 1/2 cup butter or margarine |
| 8 small red boiling potatoes | 1/2 teaspoon salt |
| 4 medium onions, peeled | 1 tablespoon dry mustard |
| 1 pound frozen ocean perch | 3 tablespoons all-purpose flour |
| fish fillets, thawed | 2 cups milk |
| | 1 teaspoon dill weed |

In a large pot, heat water and 1/2 cup salt to boiling. Pare 1/2-inch strip around middle of potatoes. Add potatoes to water along with onions and simmer 30 minutes. Potatoes and onions should be fork tender. Add fish fillets and simmer 3-4 additional minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. Drain and keep warm. For sauce: In a small saucepan, melt butter; blend in salt, mustard and flour until smooth. Gradually blend in milk until smooth. Heat to boiling, stirring constantly. Boil 1 minute. Stir in dill weed. Serve warm sauce with fish, potatoes and onions. Makes about 4 servings.

*If desired, Lemon Dill Butter Sauce may be served with fish instead of Dill Cream Sauce. In a saucepan, melt 1/2 cup butter. Stir in 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice and 2 teaspoons dill weed.

ESCALOPED FILLETS 'N CREAM

- | | |
|------------------------------------|--------------------------------------|
| 1 cup crushed saltine crackers | 1/2 teaspoon parsley flakes |
| (about 22) or cheese crackers | 1 pound frozen flounder, sole, or |
| 1/2 cup melted butter or margarine | ocean perch fish fillets, thawed |
| 1 tablespoon minced onion | 1/2 cup light cream or half and half |

In a bowl, combine crackers, butter, onion and parsley. Place fish in a single layer in a greased 2-quart baking dish. Pour light cream over fish. Sprinkle crumb mixture on top of cream and fish and bake in a preheated 350-degree oven 30 minutes or until fish flakes easily when tested with a fork. May be garnished with watercress and tomato wedges. Makes about 4 servings.

Her kitchen wafts

The aromas of Northern Italy

by LOIS SEILER

Italian cuisine reflecting the French influence is the specialty of Milena Troiano of Wheeling. A native of La Spezia, Italy, Milena came to the United States 17 years ago as the bride of an American of Italian ancestry. Anthony Troiano. She brought with her many culinary ideas from her region, which continue to delight her family and friends.

Milena chuckles about the guests who have come to her home expecting spaghetti and meatballs, a dish she never makes. Because of the close proximity of the two countries, the cooking of northern Italy is similar to French cuisine and quite different from the dishes prepared in southern Italy. The northerners use less spices and more herbs, more butter and less tomato sauce, and cook rice just as often as spaghetti and other pastas. Because Milena's home was near the shore, fish was served regularly, as was veal.

ONE OF HER ELEGANT dishes, Vitello Tonnato, is a boneless rolled leg of veal. Because the price of veal often makes its preparation prohibitive, Milena sometimes substitutes an eye of the round beef roast. The meat is cooked slowly in water and wine seasoned with a few vegetables and lemon until fork-tender. Cooled and sliced thin, it is spread with a tuna and anchovy-flavored mayonnaise. It is essential for the meat to marinate in the sauce several hours to absorb its flavor. It will keep well in the refrigerator for several days.

The Troiano children, Cindy, 15, who is studying in Italy this year, Jane, 12, and Paul 7, love leftover Vitello Tonnato on rye bread for lunch.

Milena prefers to prepare rice Milanese style. Onion and rice are sautéed together, but the liquid is added in small amounts and each addition must be absorbed before the next is added. The cooking is slow, to allow the flavors of the wine and hot chicken stock to be absorbed into the rice.

IT IS IMPORTANT that the rice not be overcooked or allowed to dry. "It should be what the Italians call al dente (slightly underdone)," Milena emphasized. At the end of the cooking period, saffron is stirred in to color the rice and cheese is added for flavor. The rice is not fluffy, but is firm, tender and moist.

An economical recipe common in the Genovese area of Italy is Spinach Frittata, an omelet which is served as the main course for a light supper or luncheon. It's usually made with frozen spinach, but escarole, swiss chard or cooked, sliced potatoes may be substituted. It is ideal for utilizing leftover vegetables.

VITELLO TONNATO

(Cold Veal with Tuna Fish Sauce)

- 2½ to 3 lb. boneless rolled leg of veal (or eye of the round beef roast)
- 1 onion, quartered
- 1 carrot, cut in pieces
- 1 celery rib, cut in pieces
- 1 lemon, peel and juice
- 1 cup white wine (sauterne)
- 2 cups cold water
- ¾ cup real mayonnaise
- 1 7-ounce can tuna fish in olive oil (Genoa brand)
- 4 anchovy fillets

Into a large pan, place the veal, onion, carrot, celery, lemon juice and peel, wine and just enough water to cover meat fully. Cover and simmer over low heat two hours or until meat is fork tender. Let cool in broth. Remove meat and cut it.

Strain broth and pour one cup into a blender. Add mayonnaise, tuna and anchovies. Blend until smooth. Sauce should be the consistency of a gravy. If too thick, add more broth.

Cut veal into thin slices. Spread each one with some of the sauce and arrange in a deep serving dish. Cover veal with remaining sauce and place in refrigerator, covered, at least 6 hours. Will keep well for several days. Serve cold garnished with lemon wedges. Serve with a fresh green salad. Serves 6 to 8.

RISOTTO ALLA MILANESE

(Rice Milanese Style)

- 6 tablespoons butter
- 1 medium large onion, sliced very thin
- 3 cups raw long grain rice
- 1½ cup dry white wine (sauterne)
- 1 teaspoon salt
- About 6½ cups boiling chicken broth
- 1/8 teaspoon saffron
- ½ cup grated Parmesan cheese
- ½ cup cubed Fontina cheese
- Melt 3 tablespoons butter in a large, heavy saucepan. Add onions and cook over low heat until onions are soft and golden. Stir in rice and saute gently until it begins to brown lightly. Add wine and salt; cook until absorbed.
- Pour in one cup boiling chicken broth, stirring carefully; cook until liquid has been absorbed. Continue this process, adding one cup of broth at a time, cooking until all broth is used up and rice is tender but firm. Do not overcook or allow rice to dry completely. It should be al dente — slightly underdone.
- Then add saffron, stirring it into rice to color it. If all rice does not change color, it doesn't matter as a two-color risotto is more effective.
- Turn off heat; gently but thoroughly stir in remaining butter and cheeses.

Treat Mom to breakfast in bed

Sunday is Mother's Day... and what better way to celebrate than with breakfast in bed for mom, made by the family. She can catch an extra forty winks while Dad and the kids prepare the meal.

Star of the occasion is Tabasco Baked Eggs, so easy to make that the youngest member of the family can participate.

Mix Tabasco with cream, add a little of the mixture to individual baking dishes and drop in an egg or two. Add salt, pepper and bake.

Baked Eggs with Cheese Sauce is a dish with just one more step. The eggs are arranged on cheese sauce and a layer of the sauce blankets the top.

With either egg dish, serve Mother her favorite hot bread — toasted corn muffins, English Muffins or Danish pastry.

TABASCO BAKED EGGS

Lightly butter individual baking dishes. Add 2 tablespoons light cream combined with 1/16 teaspoon Tabasco to each dish. Carefully break in one or two eggs. Sprinkle lightly with salt and paprika. Bake in a 325-degree oven 12 to 18 minutes until eggs are set. If desired, garnish with parsley or watercress.

BAKED EGGS WITH CHEESE SAUCE

2 tablespoons butter or margarine
2 tablespoons flour
1/4 teaspoon salt
1/4 teaspoon prepared mustard
1/4 teaspoon Tabasco
1 cup milk
1/2 pound process American cheese, grated
8 eggs

Melt butter; blend in flour and seasonings. Add milk and cook stirring constantly until mixture thickens and comes to a boil. Remove from heat; add grated cheese, stirring occasionally until cheese is melted. Pour 2 tablespoons of sauce into each of four individual buttered baking dishes. Break 2 eggs into each dish and top with remaining sauce. Bake at 350 degrees until eggs are set, about 12 minutes. Makes 4 servings.

Cover and let settle for three minutes. Serve at once; serves 6 to 8.

SPINACH FRITTATA (Italian Omelet)

1 pound fresh or frozen chopped spinach
2 tablespoons butter
6 eggs
1 teaspoon salt
1/8 teaspoon pepper
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1/2 cup chopped Italian parsley
3 tablespoons olive oil

Wash spinach well. Cook in 1/2 cup water until wilted. Squeeze water out with hands. Chop. If using frozen spinach, follow package directions, but cook one minute less. Squeeze out all water.

Melt butter in skillet. Add spinach and cook over high heat two minutes, stirring frequently. Cool five minutes. Beat eggs, salt, pepper, cheese and parsley. Stir into spinach.

Heat in a heavy, clean 9 or 10-inch skillet over high heat. Pour in oil, coating pan well. Put egg mixture into it. Cook over medium heat, shaking pan very often. Lift edges occasionally with spatula to allow uncooked egg to run under. When bottom is slightly brown, turn over to brown other side. (Do this by placing a plate over the pan and turning the omelet onto it. Then slide omelet back into skillet.) Cook over high heat one minute, always shaking skillet.

Slide out, flat, into a heated serving dish. Cut in wedges and serve at once. Serves 4.

PESCHE RIPIENI (Baked Stuffed Peaches)

6 large, firm peaches, freestone preferred
2 tablespoons butter
1 1/2 tablespoons sugar
1/2 cup cookie crumbs (macaroons preferred)

1 egg yolk, beaten
1/2 teaspoon pure almond extract
2 tablespoons finely-chopped almonds (optional)
1 tablespoon cognac
4 tablespoons Marsala or sweet sherry
1 tablespoon sugar
1/4 cup water

Peel peaches, cut in half and remove pits. Scoop out a little of the pulp with a grapefruit knife to enlarge the hollow. Mash pulp.

Cream butter and 1 1/2 tablespoons sugar. Mix in crumbs, peach pulp, egg yolk, almond extract, almonds cognac. Stuff peaches.

Put the 12 halves into a buttered baking dish. Sprinkle with a teaspoon of wine and a pinch of sugar. Put water into dish and bake at 350 degrees for 35 minutes or until tender but firm. Serves 6 or 12. If canned peaches are used, omit wine and water in dish and bake only 20 minutes.

GET BACK TO BASICS AS YOU HELP CONTROL FOOD PRICES AT THE . . .

BUDGET FOOD STORE

Golf And Meacham Roads, Schaumburg

GRAND OPENING

May 8th, 12 Noon

The Budget Food Store offers a brand-new approach to food shopping based on an old tried and true idea . . . "do it yourself and save". You see, by cutting operating expenses, food products can be sold at unusually low prices. And it really works! You do some of the work yourself, so you help control food prices! Sound good? Then read on and discover what the Budget Food Store is all about:

GROCERY PRODUCTS — You'll find a selection of the most popular foods brands to choose from in canned goods, dairy items and frozen foods (the ones that shoppers buy most often.)

BUDGET BREADS — There are extra savings when you select from "day-old" Budget Bread products — but, of course, there are also "fresh" breads to choose from, too.

PRODUCE — At the Budget Food Store you choose only what you need from bulk selections . . . then have it weighed and priced by our Produce man.

MEAT — Government Inspected Extra Lean Tender Cut beef is offered at the Budget Food Store. It's been specially tenderized with a unique new cutting technique which means you'll enjoy the level of tenderness you desire, and yet you'll pay less for beef. Naturally you'll find your favorite cuts of U.S.D.A. Grade "A" poultry and government inspected pork, too.

HEALTH AND BEAUTY AIDS AND HOUSEHOLD NEEDS — So as to offer you one-stop shopping, you'll find these necessities — the national brands you know and trust. There's also a nice selection of those handy gadgets that pop up so often on your lists.

BEER, WINE AND LIQUOR — Whether you're planning a party or just stocking up, you'll appreciate our Budget Food Store prices!

GREEN TAG SPECIALS — These are temporarily reduced prices, good for a limited period of time (made possible by special manufacturer's allowances and considerations.) Watch for the Green Tags as you shop.

The Budget Food Store offers an opportunity for YOU to fight higher food costs from the moment you step in the doors. And it's all so simple! Why not come in today and see what we're all about!

All prices effective Thursday, May 8 — Wednesday May 14th.

Herald monthly price survey

To keep readers posted on the fast-changing prices at local supermarkets, the format for The Herald's monthly food price survey has been revamped.

Items priced are the same, but stores have been added to the list to enable readers to compare overall trends. Other stores will be rotated into the survey each month and seasonal items will be added to the price list.

Prices at the four stores surveyed Monday indicate that Eagle was overall lowest in prices surveyed. Stores were almost even on dairy products. Cereals and dry groceries were about the same with the exception of a Domino 5-pound bag of sugar, at Eagle, for $1.50 and $1.75 a Folger's two-pound can of coffee at Dominick's. Meat prices were lowest at Eagle and highest at Jewel Food Stores.

GOOD FOOD buys for the month of May, according to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, include milk and dairy products. Milk production is rising seasonally, and supplies of most dairy products should be near seasonal peaks for May.

Pears are plentiful with cold storage stocks, mostly D'Anjous, 78 per cent above last year at this time. Apples are also in good supply. Citrus fruits and juices are plentiful with early, midseason, navel and Valencia orange output estimated at 10 per cent above last season.

Also available in quantity in the fresh category are dried prunes, raisins, potatoes and peanuts. Canned green beans, asparagus, sauerkraut and spinach are substantially above average in availability as are frozen potatoes and other vegetables.

Beef output rates are about the same as last May's record levels. Leaner beef — from cattle fed largely on forage — will account for all the increase. Pork production is down about 15 to 18 per cent from last year. Turkey and chicken supplies are adequate.

Freeze cheese?

Normally cheese should not be allowed to freeze as this may damage the characteristic body and texture and cause the cheese to become crumbly and mealy.

However, small pieces (one pound or less) not over one inch thick of certain varieties may be frozen satisfactorily for as long as six months if handled and stored properly. Since it is necessary that the cheese be frozen quickly, the temperature of the freezer should be zero degrees or lower.

Cut cheese should be carefully wrapped (foil or other moistureproof freezer wrapping should be pressed tightly against the surfaces to eliminate air and to prevent evaporation), then frozen immediately. Among the varieties of cheese which can be frozen in small pieces are brick, Cheddar, Edam, Gouda, Muenster, Port du Salut, Swiss, Provolone, Mozzarella and Camembert. Small sizes, as in the case of Camembert, can be frozen in their original package. When removed from the freezer, cheese should be thawed in the refrigerator and used as soon as possible.

Except for soft unripened cheese such as cottage and cream cheese, all cheese should be served unchilled in order to help bring out its distinctive flavor and texture characteristics. This usually requires 20 minutes to one hour or more at room temperature.

Barbecued back ribs on grill or in oven

Barbecued back ribs offer tasty fare either for a cookout or prepared in the oven. True back ribs are from the loin portion of the pork and should be distinguished from what are termed "country ribs" containing a high percentage of bone because the chine is not removed.

Whether baked in the oven or over an outdoor fire, the ribs should be cooked slowly. Allow at least ½ pound per person. I did 2 slabs, weighing about 2½ pounds in the oven to serve four people, in this fashion.

Wash ribs and wipe dry. Sprinkle with salt and pepper on both sides. Place on a rack and put into a preheated 300-degree oven for 1 hour, turning after half the time.

Meantime prepare this barbecue sauce which I recommended highly for any pork dish.

In a small saucepan blend 2 tablespoons vegetable oil ½ cup finely chopped onion, ½ cup catsup, ¼ teaspoon salt, 3 tablespoons brown sugar, 2 tablespoons fresh lemon juice, and a few grinds of black pepper. Bring mixture to boil stage, then reduce heat and simmer for 5 minutes. Remove from heat.

WHEN RIBS have cooked for an hour, begin brushing with sauce and continue to cook for another hour, turning each 15 minutes and basting with sauce. Test for doneness with a fork. The ribs will be a beautiful dark

Mostly for men

by Charles Flynn

brown when finished. Cut ribs and serve.

Here's an interesting beet dish which we find a pleasant change. Heat contents of a 16-ounce can of small whole beets in a saucepan, adding ¼ teaspoon dry mustard and ¼ teaspoon salt. When beets are heated through, drain.

Add 1½ tablespoons butter and toss beets gently to coat. Keep warm. Stir 1 tablespoon prepared horseradish into ½ cup dairy sour cream and spoon this over the beets just before serving. Serves 4.

And since it's the season, here's an excellent strawberry and rhubarb sauce. Clean about 1½ pounds rhubarb and cut into 1-inch pieces (about 4 cups). Place rhubarb in a saucepan with ½ cup water, 1/8 teaspoon salt and 3/4 cup sugar. Cover and simmer until tender, about 10 minutes. Stir gently once or twice. Just before removing from heat, add 1 pint cleaned and hulled strawberries.

CELERY WALDORF SALAD

Variations on a salad

A mathematician could tell us that celery, chicory, escarole and other salad greens plus myriad raw and cooked vegetables add up to thousands of combinations.

That's without taking into account flavoring ingredients such as vinegars, sprinklings of herbs and spices, snappy cheese, silvered meats, poultry and seafood. Not in years need an imaginative cook repeat the identical salad.

Here are two variations of salads that may already be high points of your recipe file.

CELERY WALDORF SALAD

¼ cup oil
3 tablespoons wine vinegar
½ teaspoon salt
½ teaspoon sugar
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
¼ teaspoon powdered mustard
4 cups thinly sliced celery
4 cups diced red apples
½ cup coarsely chopped walnuts
Lettuce leaves
¼ pound (about 1 cup) cooked ham, sliced
¼ pound (about 1 cup) Swiss cheese, sliced

In a medium bowl, mix together oil, vinegar, salt, sugar, black pepper and mustard. Add celery; toss well to coat. Cover and refrigerate for one hour. Stir in apples and walnuts. Spoon into a lettuce-lined salad bowl. Arrange ham and cheese on top.

Serve immediately. Makes four servings.

ROBERTA'S TUNA CELERY SALAD

4 cups diagonally sliced celery
½ cup chopped scallions or onions
½ cup mayonnaise
1 tablespoon lemon juice
1 tablespoon domestic soy sauce
2 teaspoons garlic powder
¼ teaspoon ground black pepper
2 cans (6 to 7 ounces each) tuna, drained and flaked
1 package (10 ounces) frozen French-style green beans, cooked and drained
1 can (3 ounces) Chinese noodles

In a large bowl, combine celery with scallions, mayonnaise, lemon juice, soy sauce, garlic powder and black pepper; mix well. Gently stir in tuna and green beans. Chill. Serve, topped with Chinese noodles. Makes 6 servings.

Soggy vegetables

Do not use unventilated plastic bags for room temperature storage of onions, potatoes and other produce. The bags trap moisture that leads to spoilage. A mesh bag is suitable, or the vegetables can be stored in a bin in a cool dry place.

Secrets of fondue success

Fondue is simple, a great crowd mixer and fun. You can make it fit into any part of the menu —appetizer, entree, dessert or all three.

Here are a few helpful hints to assure successful fondue cookery:

- Use low heat when adding cheese to heated mixture.

- Reheat fondues over low heat on surface of range before transferring to fondue pot and burner if you have made the fondue mixture ahead to be reheated.

- If fondues become too thick on standing, add a little warmed liquid of the type used in the recipe.

PARMESAN 'N CHEDDAR FONDUE

4 cups (1 pound) shredded Cheddar cheese
¼ cup grated Parmesan cheese
2 tablespoons flour
1 can (10½ ounces) condensed tomato soup
¼ cup dry sherry
1 teaspoon Worcestershire sauce

Toss together cheese and flour. In saucepan, heat soup and onion. Over low heat, add cheese and stir until cheese is melted. Add sherry and Worcestershire sauce. Transfer to fondue pot. Serve with vegetable dippers or bread.

suburban living

AT TREND MARKETERS, Elk Grove Village, supplier of sand craft kits to retailers, Vicki Truxell demonstrates how to fill clear container with sand using a paper cup to pour and a spoon to push sand toward center. Different colors of sand are poured in layers and a sharp tool such as a knife or knitting needle used to create the design.

Old Orient craft

Painting with sand

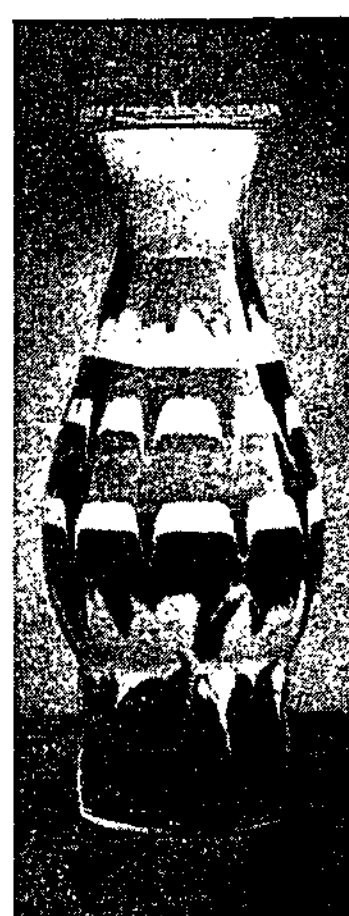

by MARY B. GOOD
Artsy-craftsy types may be becoming sandmen — by staying up nights drizzling with a new-found hobby.
Sand "painting," or creating colored sand designs in clear containers, appears to be the next big craft.
At a trade show for merchants in the hobby industry earlier this year, Trend Marketers of Elk Grove Village created a sensation with its introduction of sand crafting to the Chicago area. Trend's exhibit had buyers wide-eyed. Officials of the show had to ask onlookers to clear the aisles, according to Terry Eck, "the sandman of the suburbs."

ECK, ONE OF three partners at Trend, a firm which distributes sand crafting kits to retailers, said he first saw a demonstration of sand crafting at a New York Stationery Show last fall. The idea intrigued him, and he brought it back with him to suburban Chicago, where he learned quickly that sand crafting is lots easier to do than it looks.
About January, when orders from dealers started pouring in, Vince Fiduccia, partner No. 2, knew then that the firm was in on the ground floor of a big new craft boom.
Although Eck has no background in art, he found that sand crafting brought out latent artistic ability in himself. He says sand crafting teaches depth perception, especially to people like him, who never knew they have it in them, but always wanted to paint.
SAND CRAFTING, sand sculpturing or sand painting, whatever one chooses to call this revived art form, originated in the Orient centuries ago. Many of the simple designs have a very definite Far East look to them.

It was only natural that terrariums should run their course of popularity, and something like sand crafting should pop up to start, where terrariums left off.
Geometric designs are the simplest for a rank beginner to tackle. The technique consists of layering sand against the inside edge of a glass or clear acrylic container and forming patterns in the sand layers with a knife edge or a knitting needle. It's easy to become hooked on sand crafting after just one session of it.
ON TO BIGGER and more difficult projects: landscapes — including mountains, streams, grass, sunsets; seascapes — with birds flying amid cumulus clouds, curling waves, etc. Plowed fields, corrals and other interesting 'scapes are possibilities. Horizontal design is relatively easy. Glass containers are generally too inhibiting for vertical designs, so city scapes and portraits would be most difficult, if not nearly impossible.

Eck says the hardest design he's worked on is a bottle garden container. But it turned out to be the most beautiful. The larger the mouth of the container, the bigger the container, the easier it is to sand craft. Partner Fiduccia claims credit for assimilating sunbursts into Trend's sand crafting ideas.
THE BIGGEST problem with sand designs is shipping them, but Eck and Fiduccia along with their third partner, Tom Prickhardt, have devised a patented technique for keeping the sand designs intact during transit, so florists, garden centers and others can send finished sand designs, planted with greenery, out to customers without fear of all the sand falling out. (Sand crafted goodies are available at the Long Grove craft store called So What's New? Do-it-yourself craft sets can be purchased at Klehm Nursery and other local outlets.)
The how-to of sand craft goes something like this: Start with a dry container and dry sand. Sand is then poured from the center of the container using a small paper cup (two ounce size) or spooned towards the inside edge of the container. A lazy Susan helps to turn the container easily.
SAND-LADEN containers become very heavy, and since the design is only seen against the outside of the glass, sand crafters find that filling the center of the container with vermiculite, polyfoam or potting soil helps lighten the load. If using a very large container (like a 14-ounce bubble bowl, for instance) a heavy-weight crystal is suggested as a container. Thinner glass will shatter. The weight is not a problem on small bowls.
Waves of an ocean, for example, are formed by mounding sea-green sand, one mound at a time, in the container against the inside wall of the glass. With a bit of white sand drizzled over the top of the green mound, then making a series of sharp, quick jabs, white caps are created. Errors can be sanded over by pushing the mistake to the center of the container where it won't be seen. Creating a sky means using one solid color or a blend of pretty hues.

BRANDY SNIFFERS, water glasses, Mason jars, old-fashioned glasses or any open-topped container will do. Covered containers will rot cactus, and most other type plants are not suitable because their heavier roots need more room and planting may dislodge the sand design.
In time, the sands may sift due to gravity, but the effect is more like a blending of colors than a sandblast and not at all objectionable, to my way of thinking.
A layer of black sand should be placed between the design and the planting soil for a neater finish. A layer of fine, granulated charcoal is then placed atop the black sand liner. Sand design containers are customarily finished off with a planting of cactus.
Less than the top third of the container is necessary for soil and plants. Commercial cactus potting soil or a mixture of four parts sandy loam, one part sand and one part bird gravel or powdered brick gravel are excellent growing medium for cactus.
TERRARIUM-TYPE cacti which have a little height to them, flanked by shorter stubbier companions, seem to be the most attractive inhabitants of sand crafted containers.
For black thumbs, craft wax can be melted and poured into the top of a sand design container to make a candle finish. Instead of using green plants.

PWP regional meeting May 17 in Palatine

Northwest Chapter 168, Parents Without Partners, Inc., will host the Midwest Regional Council Conference of PWP to be held Saturday, May 17, at Howard Johnson's, Palatine.
All persons single by reason of death, divorce or never married who are parents of one of more living children are invited to the conference which opens with registration at 8 a.m. Attending will be representatives from Minnesota, Wisconsin, Illinois and Iowa.
Speakers will include Dr. Lambert of Forest Hospital discussing "What Happens to the Children following the Breakup of the Two-Parent Home?" and Ron Riffler of the Oasis Mental Health Center speaking on "First Impressions We Make on Meeting People."
ALSO SPEAKING will be Mr. and Mrs. Ben Doolittle from Forest Hospital. Their topic will concern growing without forgetting the children in adjusting to a new life.
Teens will give their view points on adjusting to a new life and Rev. Thomas DelRe will sum up the day with "What Will Be the Harvest of Our Lives?"
Cocktails, dinner and dancing will follow the programs.

Where Army stands on equal rights

by GAY PAULEY

This is the Army, Miss and Mrs. Jones. And if you're in it, there's no coddling, except for the fact you're not allowed in combat if there is another skirmish, another war.
Otherwise, in almost all respects the U.S. Army today treats women as equal with men. But as for combat, Secretary of Army Howard H. Callaway has this to say:
"You know the attitude toward women today compared to five years ago is changing, so I can only speak of the present. The Army leadership today would take the position that we are not going to put women in combat until required by the law or the courts.

"WE DON'T THINK the county is ready for it.
"We don't think when Israel tried it, it worked as well as they thought it was going to and backed off.
"We don't think it's a more effective army by doing that (putting women in the front lines). But of course, if required to by presidential order, by the courts, by ERA (Equal Rights Amendment), of course we're going to do it. But we don't intend to get ahead of it and do it...
"If ERA passes, I will be in favor of whatever the courts say because I'm in favor of the law of the land."

Secretary Callaway's views on women's role in the Army were expressed in an interview with the United Press International Editorial Board. He went into the equal rights matter in answer to a question concerning those critics of the amendment who say that its passage would mean women subject to the draft, subject to combat duty.
"I'M NOT PRO or anti-Era," he said. "If ERA is passed, the courts will decide or interpret. I myself don't have any problems with the ability of a woman to serve in combat, if it is an extremely strong woman... a fairly substantial percentage of women I think could do that."

Army Sec'y. Callaway

Certainly the secretary took a giant step in the direction of women bearing arms when he announced that as of July 1, all enlisted women would be required to take defensive weapons training — that is, to train with, shoot and take qualification tests on the M16 rifle in order to defend perimeters and stand guard like men in the behind-the-lines field units.

THE SECRETARY said that more than 24,000 women serve in today's Army with plans to have about 60,000 by 1979. ROTC also has opened its program to women and Secretary Callaway said the move had caused "no problems."
Callaway said one thing is certain — the women "are going to get paid precisely the same as men. They have promotion opportunities precisely the same as men. They are going up in grade precisely the same as men..."
(United Press International)

P&G denies two antiperspirants unsafe

Are they Sure? Procter and Gamble, makers of "Sure" antiperspirant, as well as "Secret," says charges that these two aerosol products can cause lung disease are "pure speculation not supported by scientific data."

The charges, issued by an advisory board of the Food and Drug Administration, are that zirconium, a metallic compound in these products, may enter the lungs via the spray particles and cause tumor-like growths.

Beautification? A Chicago used car dealer is sending out letters to the neighbors of recent customers telling them, "Your neighbor, Joe Schmoeley, has done his part to beautify your neighborhood by buying a preloved used car from us. Won't you do your part?"

INVOLVED IN what? Environmentalists question such advertising slogans as "At United States Steel, we're involved." But the Federal Trade Commission has refused to require companies to prove their "image advertising" on grounds the companies are protected by First Amendment guarantees of free speech.

by Monica Wilch Perin

Six members of Congress had asked the FTC to make companies back up their statements dealing with environmental political and public policy issues — a kind of advertising that has proliferated with the environmental and energy crises. But the FTC says their regulations only apply to product claims.

PLEASE DON'T eat the daisies: The FTC has launched a major investigation to determine whether it should require care labels on plants.

To which FTC Commissioner Mayo J. Thompson has retorted: "Care tags on plants will have about as much usefulness to the American public as a pair of socks on a rooster."

Declaring that the problems of gardeners can be more than adequately answered by the Agriculture Department, the land-grant colleges and universities, the agricultural extension services of the states, and numerous other sources, Thompson admonished his colleagues to "stop these frivolities and get on with the serious economic work this agency was designed to do."

Birth notes

NORTHWEST COMMUNITY
Michelle Dorann Werstland, born April 23, is a daughter for the David Werstlands, Arlington Heights. Jennifer, 4, and Suzanne, 2, are sisters of the 5 pound 15 ounce. Grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas, McHenry, and Mr. and Mrs. George Werstland, Stoughton, Wis.

Weevil ridden cookbooks go into freezer

Dear Dorothy: After my pantry became infested with weevils that even invaded my cookbooks which had flour all over the pages, I threw out all infested cereals and food packages and cleaned up and sprayed the shelves.

But what to do with the cookbooks? I finally put them in the freezer (along with food items from the shelf that looked okay but about which I was doubtful) and left them there for a couple of weeks. This did the trick and I have not had any further trouble.

Your column is a great help. After 25 years of keeping house there is still a lot to learn. — Alice Richardson

You are so right. I've been keeping house longer than that and never heard the one about freezing those little "varmints." You can put suspected packages in a low oven for a few hours, but it wouldn't help the books with their glue.

Dear Dorothy: Maybe the reader whose poinsettia didn't last very long had a poor plant to start with. Ours is almost four months old, just as beautiful as the day we purchased it — and in full bloom. I placed it on a low table on an inside wall about four feet from the heat register. I water it well once every 10 days. We keep our temperature 68 degrees during the day and 64 at night. Have never used fertilizer. It's a constant joy to all visitors. — Mrs. Clifford Smith

Dear Dorothy: I haven't been married long and a friend told me to always bake potatoes wrapped in foil. It didn't appeal to my husband or me. Is there a trick to it? — Grace Robertson

You just don't like your potatoes steamed. Potatoes baked in foil automatically come wetter and waxier. Without foil they are dry and fluffy — the way we like them, too.

(Mrs. Ritz welcomes questions and hints. If a personal reply is required, please enclose a stamped, self-addressed envelope. Write to her in care of Suburban Living, Padlock Publications, Box 280, Arlington Heights, Ill. 60004.)

Next on the agenda

ST. FRANCIS NAIM
St. Francis Chapter of Naim, a group of Catholic widowed, will meet at 8:30 p.m. Friday in the Knights of Columbus Hall, 15 N. Hickory, Arlington Heights. The social hour will include square dancing and refreshments will be served. Information, 358-7958.

RIVERVIEW HOMEMAKERS
Riverview Homemakers meet at 10 a.m. Friday in South Park Field House, White and Howard, Des Plaines, to hear Shirley McCann, Extension adviser in home economics, speak on the responsibility of reading and understanding warranties and guarantees and explaining the difference between them. A plant sale and craft session are also scheduled.

HOME ECONOMISTS
"The Art Of Home Wine Making and Tasting!" will be presented by Clarence Steichmann at Saturday's meeting of Home Economists in Homemaking of Greater Chicago. The luncheon meeting will be at the home of Orpha Miller, 1002 Boesch Pl., Ingleside.

Members will bring a craft or hobby for display. Graduate home economists are invited. Information, 253-1289.

It's boom year for garden gadgets

Attention, clever inventor-types! This is the year of the garden gadget boom. Get those wheels turning and, hop on the money-making bandwagon.

Never before have there been so many garden gimmicks flooding the market. I could kick myself for not dreaming up something that would make me rich so I wouldn't have to write garden columns anymore.

This year's favorite of mine is a little $1.59 item that looks like a 12-inch green plastic ruler with air vents at both ends. It is designed to remove excess water from closed bottom plant containers. For years we have been struggling to salvage over-watered drowning victims. This is a lifesaver — if it works!

NEXT, THERE IS something that looks like a piece of heart transplant equipment, left over from Dr. Christian Barnard. Inplant Spa ($1.98) waters and feeds plants automatically. This sophisticated water wick consists of a spike-like bottom to plunge in a flower pot, covered by a capsule to hold water, attached to a length of plastic tubing that reminds me of an I.V., for sucking up water from an outside source.

For people who can't tell if their plants need water by looking at them, by sticking their finger in the soil, tapping the pot or any of the usual simple measures, $9 to $10 will buy one of two types of battery-operated moisture-measuring devices new this year. One called Moisture Probe has lights in the handle which either turn red if water is needed or green to indicate sufficient moisture, when the probe is pressed in the soil.

THE OTHER PRODUCT, Plant Communicator, has annoying "beeps" which beep faster or slower, depending on the amount of moisture in the soil. It's a matter of whether you want flashing or beeping to tell you when to water your philodendron.

The Wrap-On Company has come up with a soil-heated flat — a plastic foam seedling flat with a built-in heating cable — one very efficient item, if one can afford it at $9.95. Free seeds enclosed come in handy if you're broke.

I save the "horticultural-housecall-in-a-bag" for last. This item is something new — the Plant Doctor and it contains a pair of rubber gloves, cotton balls, pills, atomizer, a few other fillers and a prescription blank for

by BOB LAHEY

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines officials will begin a crackdown on businesses that have not paid their 1975 city business-license fees.

Ald. Charles Bolek, 3rd, said only about 40 per cent of the businesses in the city purchased licenses during the first four months of 1975.

Robert Ladendorf, city license officer, said the stepped-up efforts will involve sending letters to 1,800 businesses that did not respond to the city's initial mailing.

LADENDORF SAID he will begin making inspections of businesses to determine how many square feet they occupy. The license fee schedule is based on square footage. The initial forms mailed by the city requested the square footage information so the city could determine the fees.

"Once we begin making the inspections, I am sure the businesses will begin filing for the licenses," Ladendorf said.

The city instituted a controversial licensing program this year which would require nearly every commercial establishment in the city to purchase a license.

The program is designed to give the city nearly three times the revenue it received in 1974.

BOLEK, WHO was chairman of the license and inspection committee, proposed the program and argued that the increased fees were necessary to pay for the cost of inspections by building, health and fire prevention departments.

Bolek estimates the city will collect about $250,000 in license fees. In 1974, the city received about $71,000. The city has taken in about $130,000 this year.

Some businessmen, especially doctors and lawyers, have complained about the new fee system, but Ladendorf said he does not believe the businessmen are resisting the program.

City officials in March said that some delay in collection the licensing fees could be attributed to the first form used for the program. The form requested businessmen to list the owner of the property they occupied. Ladendorf said this required businesses to research the ownership of their property, and said it was later determined this information was not necessary.

BOTH BOLEK and Ladendorf expressed confidence that the remaining fees can be collected in the near future, but they were unable to estimate how long the stepped-up efforts would take.

The new licensing program was developed after Bolek's committee determined that the city was spending about $200,000 per year to make inspections in commercial and industrial areas, but was only receiving about one-third that amount in license fees.

Bolek said the increased fees were enacted so the city would not be subsidizing the inspection program with other tax revenue.

Two plead guilty to dozen burglaries, get jail terms

Two Maine Township men were given prison sentences Tuesday after they pleaded guilty to a total of 12 burglaries in the Northwest suburbs. Charles N. Hardt, 30, of 9250 Noel Dr., was sentenced to 1 to 7 years in state prison and his roommate, Robert L. Clark, 21, was sentenced to 1 to 5 years. Both appeared before Judge Anton A. Smigiel in the Niles branch of Circuit Court. Police said the pair pleaded guilty to a combination of the 12 charges against them. They each were charged with eight burglaries in Hoffman Estates, two burglaries in Schaumburg, one in Mount Prospect and one in Elk Grove Village.

Hardt and Clark were arrested early last October after Mount Prospect police interrupted a burglary in progress at 717 S. William St., Mount Prospect, and traced the two men to their apartment.

Chief pleads hit-run court case for secretary's kin

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Gutilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Gutilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Gutilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Gutilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of... they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday. Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Gutilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Gutilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Gutilla told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

$475,000 administration building

Schools drop plans for addition

The East Maine Dist. 63 Board of Education has reversed an earlier decision and dropped plans for construction of a $475,000 administration building.

About 150 parents, teachers and administration office staff members watched Tuesday night as the board voted 4 to 3 to change its February decision to build an administration center as an addition to Apollo Junior High School, 10100 Dee Rd., Des Plaines. In February the board voted 5 to 2 to construct the center.

The administration center was an issue in the April school board election when newcomers Philip Deckowitz and Howard Lessin were elected, defeating incumbent Jerry Abern, who voted in favor of the center. Former board member Irene Luck, who also voted for the center, did not seek reelection.

Deckowitz, Lessin, Penny Larson and Larry Reiss Tuesday voted to reverse the February decision against strong opposition from Board Pres. Arlene Nidetz and board members Barbara Kipnis and William Allen. The board refused to recognize the audience for comments.

ALLEN SAID IT is "bad procedure to rescind an action by a board which was duly elected. We are much in error if we take the recent election as a referendum."

Mrs. Kipnis called the board's action Tuesday night the "height of irresponsibility to rescind an action before alternatives were brought up."

Larry Reiss

William Allen

The administration presented five alternatives at the meeting, but the vote was taken before alternatives were discussed.

ALTHOUGH NO ACTION was taken

Client won't drop lawsuit against schools: attorney

A lawsuit seeking to prevent East Maine Dist. 63 from building a district administration center will not be dropped despite the district's decision to halt construction.

Stephen Murray, attorney for Richard Stone, 10101 Meadow Ln., who filed the suit last month, said the suit will remain in effect in case the board of education renews plans to build the center. Murray said he will not actively pursue the suit, however, unless the board again attempts to build the center.

The suit charges that the $475,000 cost of the center, planned as an addition to Apollo Junior High School, 10100 Dee Rd., Des Plaines, would exceed the $2.35 million limit voters approved in a 1967 referendum to build Apollo.

The suit also charges that the special education funds, which were to be used to build the center, would be improperly spent.

The board voted 4 to 1 Tuesday to stop construction of the center.

Stone said the only reason he would drop the suit would be if the board passed a resolution saying a center would not be built without holding a referendum.

The board has not stated that an administration center would never be built or that a referendum would be held.

Stone's suit is being supported by the Oak Meadows Homeowners Assn.

on a suggestion to build the administration center as an addition, Mrs. Nidetz demanded before the vote that the board act on an alternative if it voted to rescind the earlier decision.

"I personally don't feel we are under the gun" to make a decision at the meeting, Reiss said. He requested the administration present alternatives that would provide adequate space for overcrowded schools west of Milwaukee Avenue and make use of facilities east of Milwaukee Avenue.

Mrs. Nidetz said the board and administration have been looking at these alternatives for 10 months.

SUPT. G. ALLAN GOGO said the administration must find adequate space for 32 central office staff members, printing service, more than 100 filing cabinets and files stored in Ballard School where the administration office is maintained.

He also said Twain, Stevenson and Nathanson schools will be overcrowded next year.

"We have more children west of Milwaukee than we can house," he said.

The rejected plan, which included building an administration center, also provided for remodeling administration offices at Ballard into classrooms which would allow 85 students to be transferred into the Ballard attendance area.

One alternative discussed

Tuesday night would involve changing boundaries of schools east of Milwaukee Avenue and placing administration offices in space vacated through the boundary changes. The plan also would require splitting administration services among different school buildings.

During public hearings earlier this year, parents strongly objected to any boundary changes.

In a 4-to-3 vote the board directed the administration to continue with the $56,000 renovation of Ballard and to place the administration offices into schools east of Milwaukee Avenue. The board also said no action will be taken until a hearing is held on the recommendations. No date has been set.

Alternatives will be presented to the board by the administration during a special meeting at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at Ballard School, 8250 Ballard Rd., Niles.

The board also will discuss the proposed lunchroom program which offers options to the schools for either a modified closed campus under which students would stay for lunch and a plan by which most students would go home for lunch.

Hymn writer church guest 2-day religious festival

Avis B. Christiansen, hymn writer, will be the guest at the Sunday services at 7 p.m. at Des Plaines Bible Church, 948 Thacker St., Des Plaines.

Mrs. Christiansen began to write poems at the age of 10. Many of her works have been set to music by notable composers such as Merrill Dunlop and Wendell Loveless.

Some of Mrs. Christiansen's best known hymns are: "Only One Life," "Blessed Redeemer," "It Is Glory Just To Walk With Him," "Blessed Redeemer" and "Stranger of Galilee."

The Rev. Craig Massey will bring a message on the subject of "What is a Mother?" and will contrast the myth of motherhood with the reality.

Each mother attending the service will receive an autographed copy of one of Mrs. Christiansen's hymns. Mothers also will receive an appropriate poem printed on parchment, suitable for framing.

Special music will be provided by the Des Plaines Bible Church choir and there will be a preservice concert starting at 6:30 p.m.

The two-day major festival of Shavuot will be celebrated at Maine Township Jewish Congregation, 8800 Ballard Rd., Des Plaines, with a full schedule of religious services beginning at 7 p.m. Thursday, May 15. A Torah study session from 10 p.m. to midnight (Mishmar) will highlight the evening service.

Friday morning the Schachrit service will begin at 9:30 a.m., the junior congregation at 10 a.m., and will be followed by a blintzes luncheon at noon.

Fifteen young people who have completed the high school department religious school, will be honored at 8 p.m. Friday at a special convocation ceremony during the Confirmation-Sar Torah service. A presentation, "The Ten Commandments," will highlight the program.

The final day of Shavuot, Saturday, will feature the Yizkor Memorial Service at 9:30 a.m.

The annual Sisterhood culminating luncheon is scheduled for Sunday, May 18 at noon at the Flying Carpet.

Oakton College wrapup

Program changed to retain funds

The Oakton Community College Board of Trustees acted Tuesday to avoid losing $200,000 in state money for adult-education programs in Maine and Niles townships.

The board approved a revision to the agreement among the college, Maine Township High School Dist. 207 and Niles Township High School Dist. 219 that creates the Maine-Oakton-Niles Adult and Continuing Education Program, a cooperative offering adult education classes in the two townships.

Under the revised agreement, Oakton will take over administration of the program and include funds for the program as part of its own budget. The change will satisfy a requirement by the Illinois Community College Board so state funds will continue to finance some of the classes offered.

The state board had threatened to cut off the state money because under the old adult education administrative set-up, the program budget did not show a direct financial contribution to the program from the college.

Dist. 207 has been administering the program since it was started five years ago. Oakton officials said the change will not affect the day-to-day operations.

The revised agreement has been approved by the Dist. 207 board and is expected to receive approval from Dist. 219 Monday.

Professor retires

The Oakton board Tuesday approved the retirement of a "founding faculty member" of the college, Leonard Holstad.

Holstad, 64, an associate professor of business, was one of the first members of the Oakton faculty when the college started five years ago. He said he is planning to move to Crosslake, Minn. where he will teach in the state prison system.

Holstad became a college teacher at Oakton after working as a corporate officer for Northwest Airlines, RCA, the Olin-Mathieson Chemical Corp. and a New York City consulting firm. Before joining the Oakton faculty, he taught part-time at Harper College for one year.

Council scuttles plan

Bid for Mill-River road linkup stalled

Efforts to build a connecting road between Mill and River streets in downtown Des Plaines have been dealt another setback by the Des Plaines City Council.

The controversial proposal would allow for an access road at the east end of the two streets, which dead-end one block east of River Road.

The city council turned back a move by Ald. Joseph Szabo, 1st, to permit Mayor Herbert H. Behrel to negotiate for property that would form a portion of the right-of-way for the street.

However, several aldermen balked at the move and questioned the tactics used to obtain about one-half the right-of-way from Paul Kron of Harmony Builders, which is constructing a condominium apartment building at 1702 Mill St. The north half of the proposed street is owned by the Moehling family.

Kron granted the city a 14-foot easement for a water main, but Szabo said the property also will be used for a street.

ALD. GEORGE OLEN, 2nd, and

Ald. Arthur Erbach, 5th, said they were unaware anything besides a water main was planned for the easement.

"What kind of con is putting on this city council?" Erbach asked. Szabo said the street is needed to continue the city's planning practices.

The effort to allow the mayor to begin negotiations was defeated by a 10-to-6 vote.

Ald. Richard Ward, 8th, asked if a petition against the plan signed by many residents of that area would affect the plans.

ALD. THOMAS KOPLOS, 1st, said he doubted the credibility of the petitions.

"I talked with one man whose name was on the petition and he said that he signs everything," Koplos said. He said he has not been able to determine who circulated the petition.

Original plans for the connector street were proposed several years ago when the city was attempting to build an overpass for River Road at the Chicago and North Western Ry. tracks and Miner Street.

The street would have been necessary because Mill Street would have been blocked by the overpass. Plans for the overpass were shelved because the city could not obtain the necessary right-of-way from the Forest Preserve District.

Township's welfare rolls triple 1974 first quarter

The number of persons receiving general-assistance welfare in Malne Township in the first three months of this year was more than triple the number for the same period last year, a Malne Township official said Wednesday.

James J. Dowd, township supervisor, said 1,247 persons received public aid between Jan. 1 and March 31, compared with 401 for the first three months of 1974, an increase of 211 per cent. The first quarter figures for 1975 are 431 per cent higher than for the same period in 1973, when 235 persons received aid, he said.

The number of public assistance cases handled, which includes individuals and families, increased to 490, up 180 per cent from the same period in 1974. Dowd said the increase represents a 315 per cent increase over 1973 figures.

The township supervisor said he attributes the increase in requests for township aid primarily to the rapid increase in unemployment of township residents and delays in transferring assistance recipients to county rolls.

He said he expects the number of persons applying for township public assistance to continue to increase for the remainder of the year.

Malne Township auditors anticipated the increasing demand for public assistance, Dowd said, when they prepared the current township budget, the first in excess of $1 million.

Real estate-review panel to be revived by council

City officials are taking steps to reinstate a panel established in 1970 to review complaints against real estate brokers.

Ald. Alan Abrams, 8th, chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, asked City Atty. Charles Hug to draw up an ordinance that would reestablish the Real Estate Brokers Review Board.

The Herald disclosed in April that the board was abolished inadvertently when the city council made many changes in its licensing ordinance.

Most city officials, including Abrams and Mayor Herbert H. Beh-rel, were unaware of the move until The Herald questioned them about it.

"I don't think the council intended to abolish the board," Abrams said, adding that he envisioned problems when the "licensing scheme was proposed."

Abrams suggested that the city attorney determine if any other types of business establishments were left out of the ordinance.

Only one complaint was filed with the board since it was created in 1970 and that charge was withdrawn after the real estate firm agreed to correct the problem mentioned in the complaint.

Mushroom-farm apartments get green light

by STEVE BROWN

Des Plaines and Mount Prospect officials have apparently reached an agreement to allow construction of an apartment development on a 9.8-acre site at Elmhurst Road and Dempster Street known as the Dawn Fresh Mushroom Farm.

Development of the land, owned by Kenroy Inc., Skokie, has been delayed for several years because of an annexation dispute between the two municipalities.

They have been in court for nearly six years. Des Plaines at first annexed the property, but a Circuit Court judge ruled the annexation improper and ordered that a later annexation by Mount Prospect was proper.

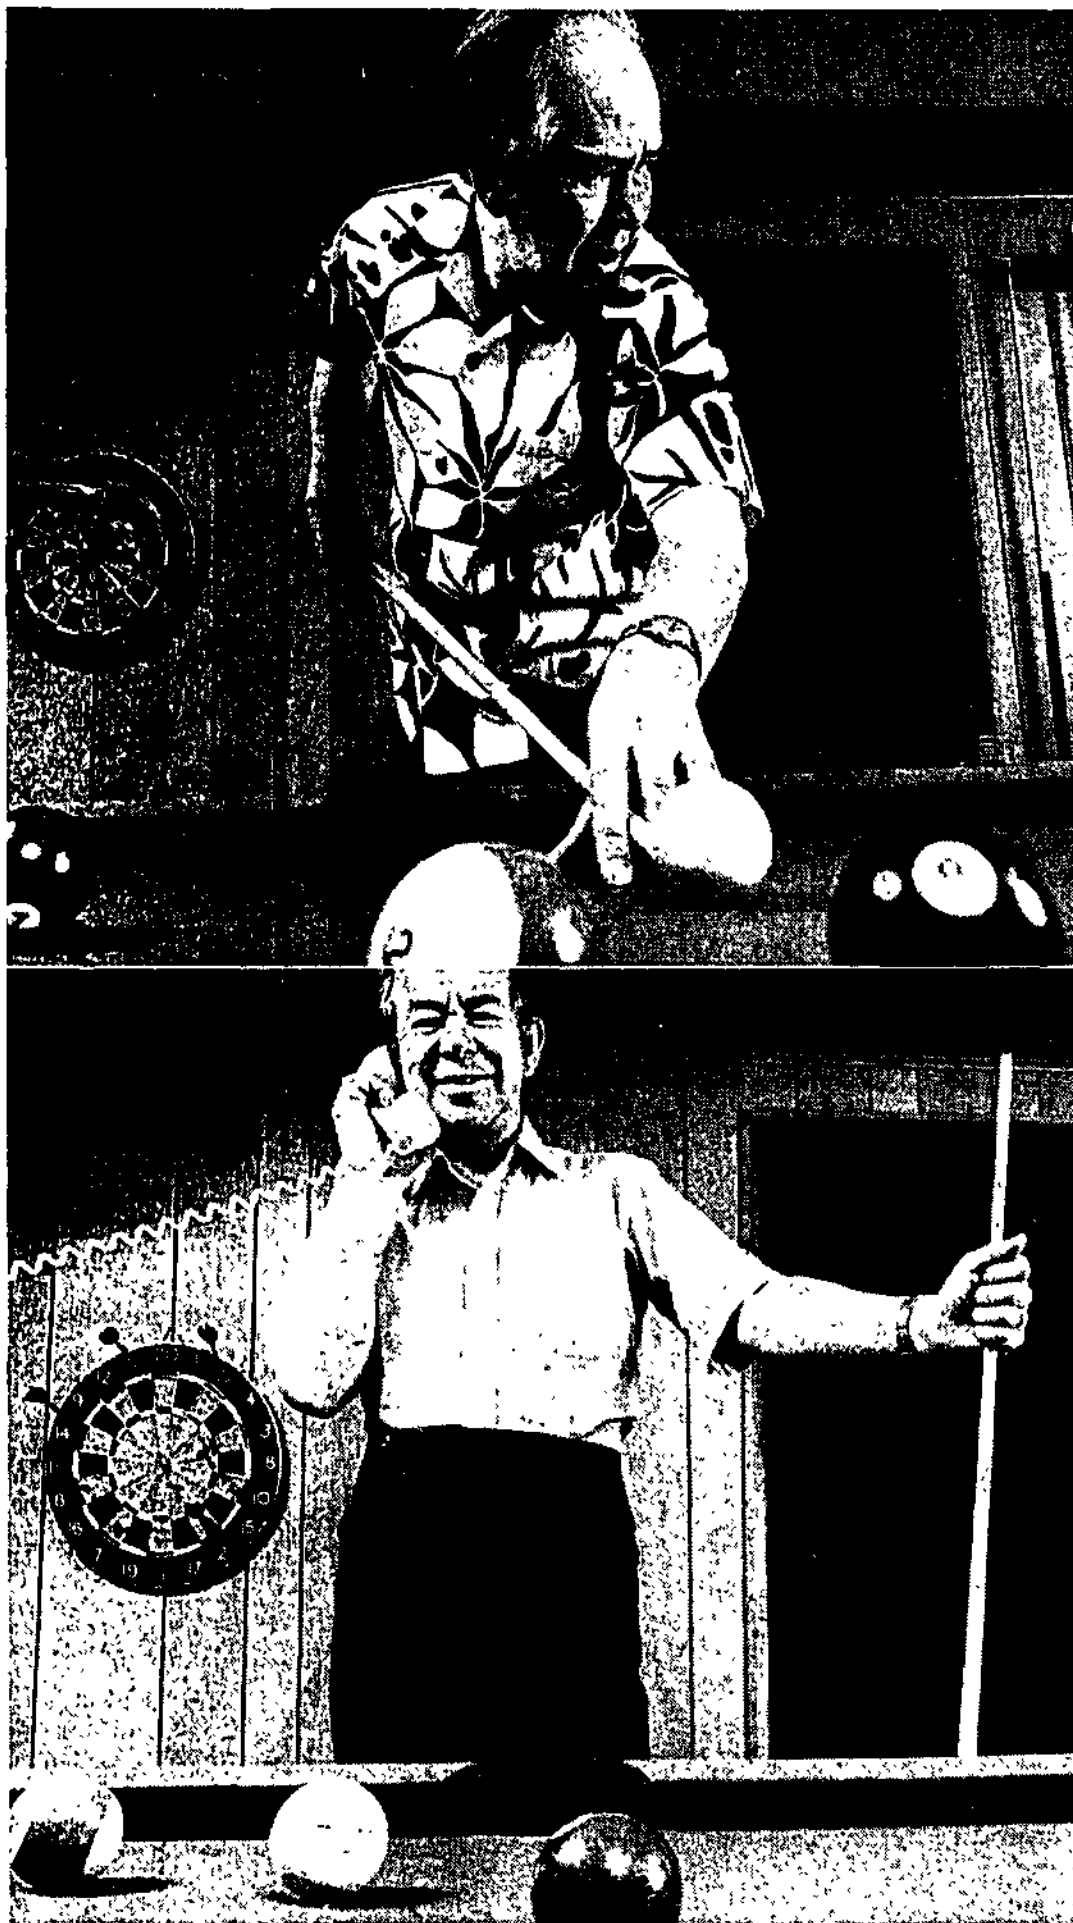

The case is before the Illinois Appellate Court.

ALD. ALAN ABRAMS, 8th, chairman of the city code and judiciary committee, said the agreement between Des Plaines and Mount Prospect would allow the development to begin. Generally, the plans call for construction of about 150 apartment units. The developer has reviewed his plans for the project with both communities.

Abrams said the agreement would call for the developer to follow the strictest code which applies to the project. He also noted all permit fees would be put into an escrow account to be given to the community that wins the law suit.

The dispute over the property is part of a 10-year legal battle over annexation of land along Elmhurst Road.

Deficit will be cut to $60,000

River Trails schools cut 7 teachers, trim program

by MARILYN McDONALD

River Trails Dist. 26 board members reduced but did not eliminate deficit spending in the budget for the coming school year by voting to drop six full-time and one part-time teacher and slightly trimming one district program.

The board, which had considered an administration proposal to cut eight full-time teachers and one part-time teacher and several program cuts to hold next year's deficit to $31,900, approved a deficit of about $60,000 to finance additional elementary school teachers and to retain one full-time teacher for the gifted. The deficit will increase if teachers are given raises or if operating expenses go up.

The district's junior high French program was cut by one full-time teacher to one full-time and one part-time teacher despite many protests from parents, teachers and students in the audience at Tuesday night's board meeting.

BUT THE JUNIOR high's popular CORE program — a teaching method that groups the same students and teachers together for basic subjects — was not cut.

Faced with decreasing state aid because of declining enrollment Dist. 26 is now spending its cash reserves. "We will have drained it down to $100,000 by July," said Ralph Beaudoin, Dist. 26 business manager. The district will spend $40,000 of its cash reserves this year, he said.

"The question isn't negative numbers. It really is that we can't forever spend more than we're getting," Beaudoin added. "We haven't arrested that problem yet."

Board members heard several hours of discussion about the merits of the junior high school French program, but chose to make the elementary schools their main priority. Board member Lloyd Demel presented a motion to add teachers at the sixth grade level at Park View and Feehanville schools and at the third grade level at Euclid School to reduce class sizes.

"IT IS MY feelings we should put our priorities in the kindergarten through sixth grade and force the district to make cuts elsewhere," he said.

Although Demel's motion originally was defeated, each teacher addition was approved in separate motions later in the evening.

"I suspect that people on our board feel more comfortable evaluating individual programs by their components. When you do that you really get into the pros and cons on a detailed basis," Demel said.

Board Pres. Michael Sheyker believes Demel's original motion was defeated because "board members felt strongly about some schools." Board members originally did not

Teacher assignments told by school board

Staff and program changes approved by the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education this week will result in the following classroom teacher assignments next year:

- Bond School, 350 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 11 teachers, will keep those teachers and receive an extra aide for the fifth grade.
- Euclid School, 1211 Wheeling Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 20 teachers, will lose a part-time kindergarten teacher but will gain a third teacher for 60 third-graders.
- Feehanville School, 1400 E. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 16 teachers, will lose one fourth-grade teacher but will gain one sixth-grade teacher.
- Indian Grove School, 1340 Burning Bush Ln., Prospect Heights, which has 17 teachers, will lose a third-grade teacher, a fourth-grade teacher and a sixth-grade teacher. It will gain a sixth-grade aide.
- Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, which has 17 teachers, will lose one first-grade teacher but gain one sixth-grade teacher.
- River Road School, 1150 N. River Rd., Des Plaines, which has 18 full-time and one part-time teacher, will gain at least two full-time and one part-time teacher to staff a new school building which opens in the fall.
- River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 45 teachers, will lose one French teacher, one reading teacher, one learning disabilities teacher, and a part-time speech teacher.

District Supt. John Fidlund said staffing cuts are subject to change should educational needs arise.

want to authorize three teachers for the 65 sixth graders at Feehanville, Sheyker said, but parent pressure later caused them to change their minds.

SHEYKER SAID he believed the 59 sixth graders at Indian Grove School did not receive a third teacher while the 65 sixth graders at Feehanville did because Feehanville had a vocal delegation of parents and Indian Grove did not.

William Haase, another board member, agreed that the board as a whole bowed to parent pressure.

"I think most of the board members believe the final implications of doing all that (adopting Demel's motion) was undesirable and their first vote was correct," he said.

"But getting down to the nuts and bolts of specific pressure groups, the board members were less willing to bite the bullet on specific schools," Haase added.

"While we effected some cuts, we sure as heck didn't make enough cuts to get us out of a deficit. I'm in opposition to the total result because I think we are indulging in some luxuries we can't afford," Haase said.

BOARD MEMBERS expressed sympathy for the district's 10-year-old French program, but cut it in favor of elementary staffing.

"I agree that taking a foreign language makes you a more well-rounded person," said Sheyker, "but we use the same French book that Hersey uses. If our students don't take French at River Trails, they can take it at Hersey. But if a student misses something in sixth grade, he can never pick it up."

"It's a trade-off kind of thing and that's unfortunate," Sheyker said. Sheyker said it appears the district's deficit will increase during the coming school year, "but we're trying to get ahead of it."

"It appears that somewhere down the road we're going to have to make a change, but hopefully that's three or four years away yet. Hopefully there'll be changes by then to offset it," he said.

"We're going to go through the same thing next year," said Sheyker, referring to staffing and program cuts. "At the district level we'll have to examine every program in the calm of the next few months to see which can be curtailed, reduced or expanded."

"We'll really have to knuckle down," he added.

Prevent further disturbances

'More guidance needed at Camelot'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated on their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said.

Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As for the incident in January, I think the police overreacted to a situation that was not that damaging."

SCHLOSSER ADDED that the evaluation was not done as an investigation and that the state evaluates all its child-care facilities each year to point out strengths and weaknesses to the center directors.

The evaluation also recommended encouraging youths to make better use of their free time, developing a peer-support program to give the youths an incentive to do "constructive things" and continuing remodeling the center's facilities, he said.

The evaluation "positively noted" the program and staff improvements that the directors James and Shirley Spicer have made since they purchased the 18-acre ranch in November 1973, Schlosser said.

Refugees need us: Reagan

by BOB LAHEY

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

by BETTY LEE

Buffalo Grove residents want expensive park facilities such as ice rinks, indoor tennis and ski hills, but appear unwilling to pay for them, a park district survey shows.

The questionnaire, designed to determine the community's attitude and interest in park programs, services and facilities, was distributed to about 700 households.

Of the 38 per cent who responded, 33 per cent said they would like park facilities to include artificial ice-skating rinks in future park plans. Nineteen per cent said they would like to see bicycle trails and 16 per cent said they would like an indoor tennis building and sledding and skiing hills.

BUT 10 PER CENT of those who answered the survey said they would not be willing to have real estate taxes increased to pay for the facilities. Thirty-two per cent said they were willing to pay extra taxes and 25 per cent said they didn't know.

Smaller percentages of residents said they would like handball courts, picnic areas and fishing and boating areas. Some mentioned a golf course, snowmobile trails, a theater, model airplane course and cross-country skiing facilities.

Although park officials said they were pleased with the response to the survey, park district superintendent Stanley Crosland said he was surprised by the "superlative" park facilities suggested by residents.

"I don't think they realize that the population is not large enough to support these things," Crosland said. "It is a difficult thing to do when the community is young."

THE SURVEY was conducted to evaluate the needs and desires of residents and what areas of improvement the park district can attend to, Crosland said.

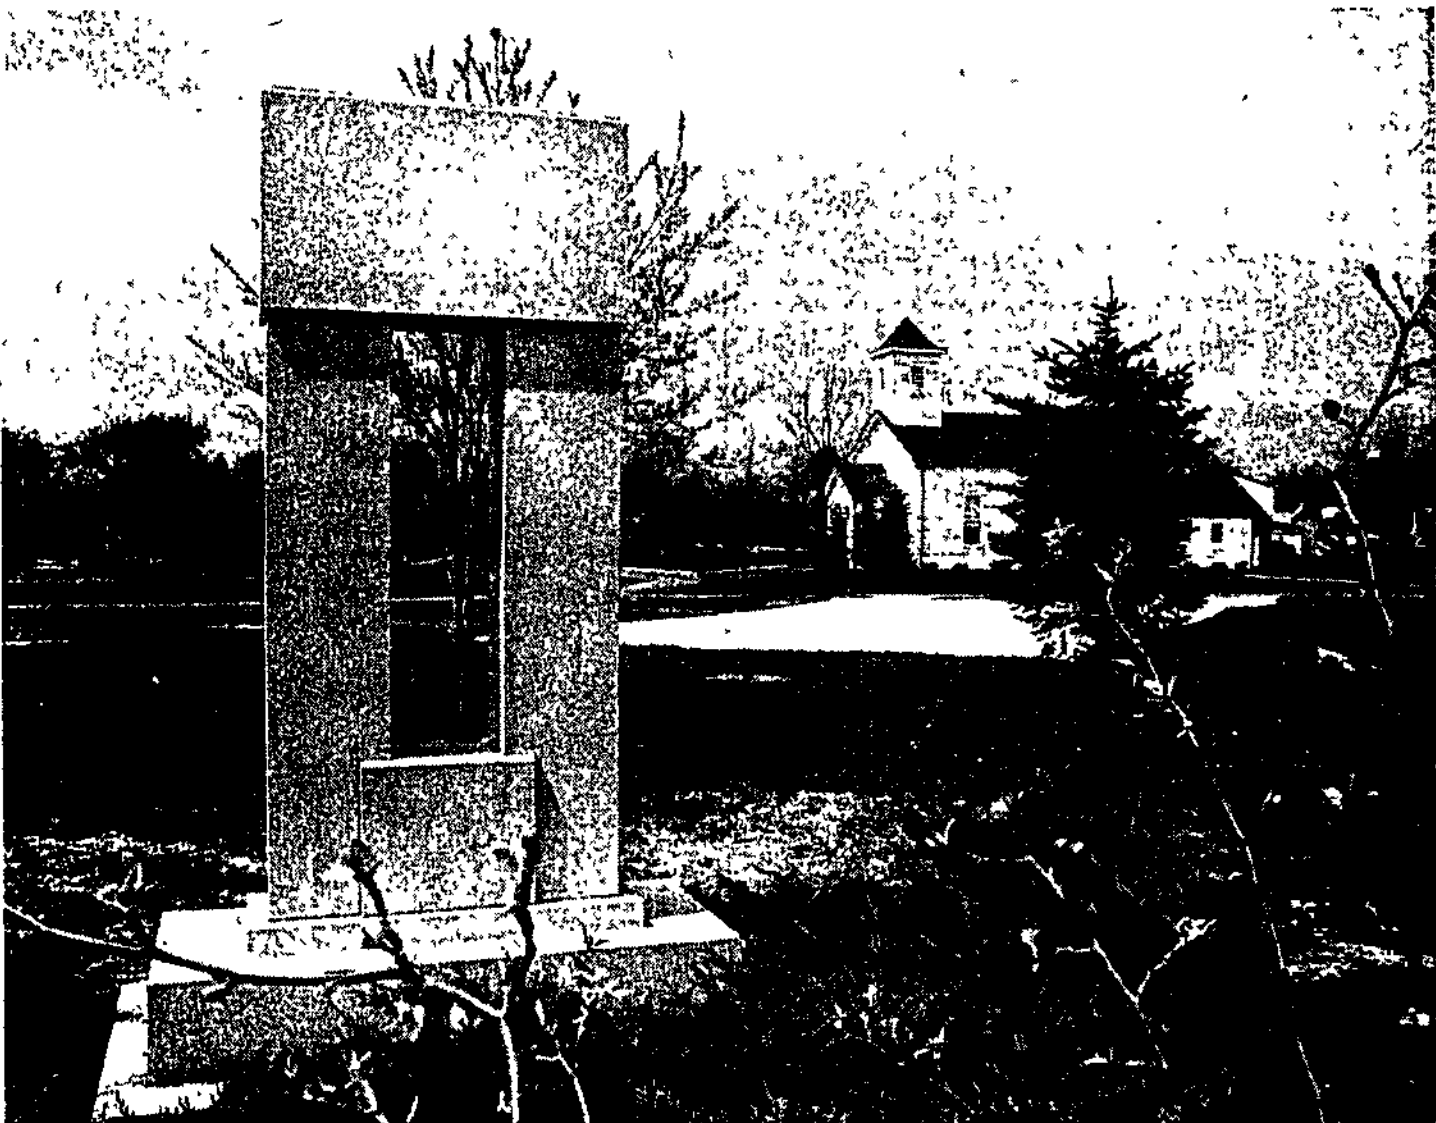

Residents said they thought park facilities were well maintained, clean and attractive, with adequate police protection.

The data from the survey will be used to determine what park district programs will be offered next fall, he added.

"I think the bulk of the people who responded were extremely objective in their responses," Crosland said. Park officials will examine each item, map out trends and improve programs, he said.

Again, residents said they were not willing to pay a tax increase to improve recreational facilities and programs. Only 22 per cent said they were willing, 18 per cent said they did not know and 57 per cent opposed more taxes.

Chief pleads hit-run court case for secretary's kin

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Guttilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1330 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Guttilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Guttilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of... they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday. Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Guttilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Guttilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Guttilla told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

Parents rally to save swim coach's job

A group of parents plans to rally support at a Buffalo Grove Park District meeting today for a swim coach whose job is in jeopardy.

Ann Mostafi, a spokesman for the parents, said they have prepared a statement directed to park district officials.

The statement includes an endorsement of the present swim team coached by Virian Wadford, whose job is threatened, Mrs. Mostafi said. The statement also contains a plea for better communications between residents and park officials.

Mrs. Mostafi said they want to know why Wadford's job as swim coach and pool manager remains uncertain, and when park officials will make a decision.

Wadford, 30, and park officials discussed the matter in a private meeting Monday, apparently not arriving at any conclusion.

PARK OFFICIALS said Wadford's job is threatened by budgetary cutbacks and refused to comment further.

Wadford, an Elk Grove resident, Wednesday declined to discuss the situation until all talks with park officials are completed.

"I will say that I was flattered," Wadford said. "I was pleased with the parent support. I didn't expect it."

There are about 79 active swimmers on the team and many of their parents are expected to attend tonight's meeting, Mrs. Mostafi said. The meeting will start at 8 p.m. at 150 Raupp Blvd.

"We just want to show the board how strongly we feel as citizens," Mrs. Mostafi said. "With the (park) elections over, we feel we have no other recourse."

Man hurt in crash in good condition

A 36-year-old Prairie View man was injured Tuesday night in a Wheeling traffic accident.

Carl Pease, Rte. 1, Box 47, was admitted to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, and then transferred to Edward G. Hines Memorial Hospital, Illinois, for treatment of a possible back injury. A Hines hospital spokesman said Wednesday Pease's condition was good.

Details of the accident, which occurred at 9:31 p.m., were unavailable from Wheeling police. The accident, which reportedly involved only Pease's vehicle, occurred near McHenry and Weiland roads, Wheeling.

Prevent further disturbances

'More guidance needed at Camelot'

by DIANE MERMIGAS
A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated on their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said.

Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As for the incident in January, I think the police overreacted to a situation that was not that damaging."

SCHLOSSER ADDED that the evaluation was not done as an investigation and that the state evaluates all its child-care facilities each year to point out strengths and weaknesses to the center directors.

The evaluation also recommended encouraging youths to make better use of their free time, developing a peer-support program to give the youths an incentive to do "constructive things" and continuing remodeling the center's facilities, he said.

The evaluation "positively noted" the program and staff improvements that the directors James and Shirley Spicer have made since they purchased the 18-acre ranch in November 1973, Schlosser said.

THE CENTER was originally named the MRB Ranch after its founder, Milroy R. Blowitz.

The center is licensed to offer short-term treatment to 17 youths who are abandoned, neglected or troubled, ranging in age from 7 to 17.

Spicer, who has reviewed the evaluation of Camelot, said he and his wife will continue to make improvements in the facility and programming.

A NEW CULVERT under the driveway entrance to Harmony Village will eliminate flooded ditches such as the one above. The village of Wheeling ordered the developer to fix the blocked culvert to prevent flooding along a Wolf Road ditch from Manchester Drive to Hintz Road.

New culvert ends flood threat

A blocked culvert under a driveway of the Harmony Village development has been replaced eliminating the threat of future flooding problems in a ditch along Wolf Road between Manchester Drive and Hintz Road.

Thomas Markus, village administrative assistant, said officials at Harmony Village tore up the driveway to replace the damaged culvert, which was causing water to back up in the ditch, flooding property north of the development. Markus said the culvert work was completed Friday and the ditch was dredged to improve the water flow. He said the situation appears to be corrected because water is running through the culvert.

MARKUS ORDERED Harmony Village to correct the problem last week after the village received a complaint from Theodore Melzer, 511 Wolf Rd., who owns property bordering the ditch. Melzer said his 7.2-acre site fronts the ditch and is continually flooded when heavy rain falls.

Markus said Wednesday Melzer should not have further problems as a result of the culvert replacement.

"There is a depression in Melzer's property which means there always will be a certain amount of water in the ditch but it shouldn't be as drastic a flooding situation as existed before," Markus said. Melzer said Wednesday he is pleased that the problem has been corrected and added the flooding in the ditch has been reduced by at least 85 per cent.

Melzer said he hopes the culvert replacement will mean the problem is corrected permanently.

Community services panel to meet Friday

The Buffalo Grove Community Services Commission will meet at 7 p.m. Friday in the Village Hall, 50 Raupp Blvd. to discuss the May 31 health fair.

The event will include information on diseases and tests for diabetes and heart, vision and hearing conditions.

cent, thought the district provides good programs only 30 per cent indicated they participated in park activities last fall.

Residents also indicated they did not know whether park district commissioners were doing a satisfactory job (48 per cent) or if parks are properly supervised (60.5 per cent).

Crosland said he thought the response to the survey was good. "I expected that there would be much more critical comments, but they were down to earth," Crosland said.

Copies of the survey and responses are available to residents by calling the park district office at 537-0356.

Jaycee, Jaycette art fair May 24

The Buffalo Grove Jaycees and Jaycettes will present their annual art fair, Saturday, May 24, in the Buffalo Grove Mall, Dundee and Arlington Heights roads. Hours for the fair will be 10 a.m. to 5 p.m.

Artwork will be displayed by students from Cooper and Jack London junior high schools along with Twin Groves and St. Mary's schools of Buffalo Grove.

Both groups urge apartment limitations

Planners, trustees back houses

Buffalo Grove should push for more houses and fewer apartments, members of the village board and plan commission agreed at a joint meeting Wednesday night.

Members of both groups agreed the village should emphasize more low-density residential projects and should hold developers to high construction standards.

"There are some developers who do not have a good reputation and we should want the ones who stand behind what they do," said Plan Comr. Howard Mendenhall.

Trustee John Marienthal said officials should check other work in the Chicago area by developers seeking permission to build in Buffalo Grove, "to see what kind of a job he did and if he fulfills all his promises."

Rodney Jacobs, a plan commissioner, said he also favors more houses over apartments. But he said, "The village is doing itself a disservice if they foreclose out on any developer, on any development—some multi-family developers do good work." He said proposals that come before officials "must rise and fall on their merits."

Some plan commissioners also said they were concerned about past instances where plan commission findings on certain projects were revised or reversed by the village board.

Plan Comr. Stanley Haar said that in the past, some development projects seem to have been "nalled down" for approval by the time they came to the plan commission for review. "I don't know who nalled it down, but I think we should take his hammer away."

Planners suggested the board spell out more specifically what the commission's role should be in evaluating project proposals, by increasing communication between the two groups.

Keep wells if you get lake water, village urges

Buffalo Grove officials called on other communities Wednesday not to abandon wells if they get a share of Lake Michigan water.

Testifying at state hearings on allocation of the water Illinois will be allowed to take from the lake, the Buffalo Grove officials put in a plea to other communities not to consider the lake as a sole future of water.

"In our opinion Lake Michigan water will eventually become a necessity not only for Buffalo Grove but for many if not all communities in the Chicago area... Hopefully if all communities using wells can make cooperative use of Lake Michigan water to reduce or stabilize their pumping rates, the life of these wells can be greatly extended and the cost of supplying adequate water can be kept less than that of a 100 per cent well supply system," the village's application for lake water said.

THE WATER levels in Buffalo Grove's wells are dropping by as much as 19 feet a year, and by 1980 the village will have to find additional sources of water to support a population expected to reach 35,000, village officials testified at the state hearing.

Village Mgr. Daniel T. Larson, Village Engineer Arnold Seaberg, and Public Works Director Charles R. McCoy told state officials of Buffalo Grove's projected growth and the need for Lake Michigan water to supplement well supplies.

The village spokesman submitted an application for the village to be allocated 1.82 million gallons of water per day, in 1980.

Without a Lake Michigan allocation the village would have to extend the depth of a fourth well within two years at a cost of more than $100,000 and extend each of its wells at least every five years after that.

THE TWO HOURS of Buffalo Grove testimony included a short period of questioning by attorneys for other agencies vying with the village for a share of the limited Lake Michigan water allocation.

In addition to the Metropolitan Sanitary District and the Lake County Public Water District, village officials were questioned by an attorney for the DWP water commission which is seeking lake water allocations for Arlington Heights, Mount Prospect and Palatine.

Larson chronicled Buffalo Grove's sharp population climb in explaining his anticipated population of 35,000. A population of 33,000 for the village was projected with the completion of developments already zoned and ready for construction, Larson said. The village's lakewater request didn't take into account population of areas to be annexed and developed in the future.

He gave tentative final boundaries for the village as Ill. Rte. 22 on the north, Milwaukee Avenue on the east, Dundee Road on the South and Arlington Heights Road on the west.

THE VILLAGE'S water rates of $10.50 for the first 5,000 gallons and $1.20 for each additional thousand gallons up to 30,000 "force residents to conserve water," Larson said.

He said if the village is given a lake water share Buffalo Grove will use one of four alternatives to get the lake water to the village. The Lake County Public Water District, the Lake County Public Works Dept., the Village of Northbrook and the DWP commission are all possible sources of lakewater supply the village is considering, Larson said.

Seaberg told the state about the drops in village wells each year and pointed out the village has had to dismantle and lower three wells in the last three years.

He estimated that Buffalo Grove will need 120 gallons of water per person per day in 1980, and said the increase over the current use rate of 85 gallons per person per day is based on anticipation of industry in the village and on a pattern of increased water use by residents.

McCOY TESTIFIED the village also has sprinkling bans and alternative sprinkling days for lawn watering to help conserve water.

The village's application seeks to have the village begin using lake water in 1977 at a rate of .5 cubic feet per second with increases to .9 in 1978, 1.5 in 1979 and 2.8 in 1980.

Currently the village uses 1.7 million gallons of water per day, but by 1980 the need will increase to between 3.5 and 4.3 million gallons per day, Seaberg said.

Larson told the state that if the village is denied well water and has to drill additional wells to seek water "it will be a 'Catch 22' when we get beyond the point of ever being able to recharge the aquifers."

He admitted the village hasn't investigated the use of shallow wells for water, but said the one standby village well which is shallow isn't used unless necessary because the water smells and tastes of sulfur.

Village officials discounted any use of water from Buffalo Creek because of pollution and the variability of water levels in the creek.

PETER T. GUTILLA

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT
Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Gutilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Gutilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Gutilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Gutilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of... they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday.

Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Gutilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Gutilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Gutilla told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

Local committee says FAA lax at Palwaukee

by LUISA GINETTI
The Wheeling Environment Advisory Commission Wednesday night chided Federal Aviation Administration officials for failing to strictly enforce safety regulations at Palwaukee Airport.

Commission members questioned FAA officials about the location of landing lights from the Hintz-Wolf road intersection and the weight limitation of planes allowed to land at the airport.

William Rogers, commission chairman, questioned officials about the potential hazard of the lights too close to the road creating the possibility of an aircraft descending too low over the road before landing.

Rogers also asked FAA officials if they were aware of regulations set down by the county, limiting the weight load of aircraft to be allowed at the airport when Palwaukee was granted a special use permit 12 years ago.

FAA OFFICIALS said they are not empowered to enforce the county regulations, which limit a plane's gross weight load to 60,000 pounds, and cannot tell the owner of a private airport where he should locate landing lights.

"The question of safety is one which we look to you to provide for us," Rogers told the officials. "We look to you for leadership. What would be the harm in the FAA moving the lights down the runway further from Wolf Road?"

Trustee John C. Cole, a retired Navy pilot, said he also believed the position of the runway lights presented a hazard not only for motorists but for pilots.

Cole also questioned the proximity of the airport's longest runway, 34-16, to the Wolf-Hintz intersection.

"I'm afraid one of these days a pilot is going to have to abort his take-off and he's going to slide off that runway into a school bus," Cole said.

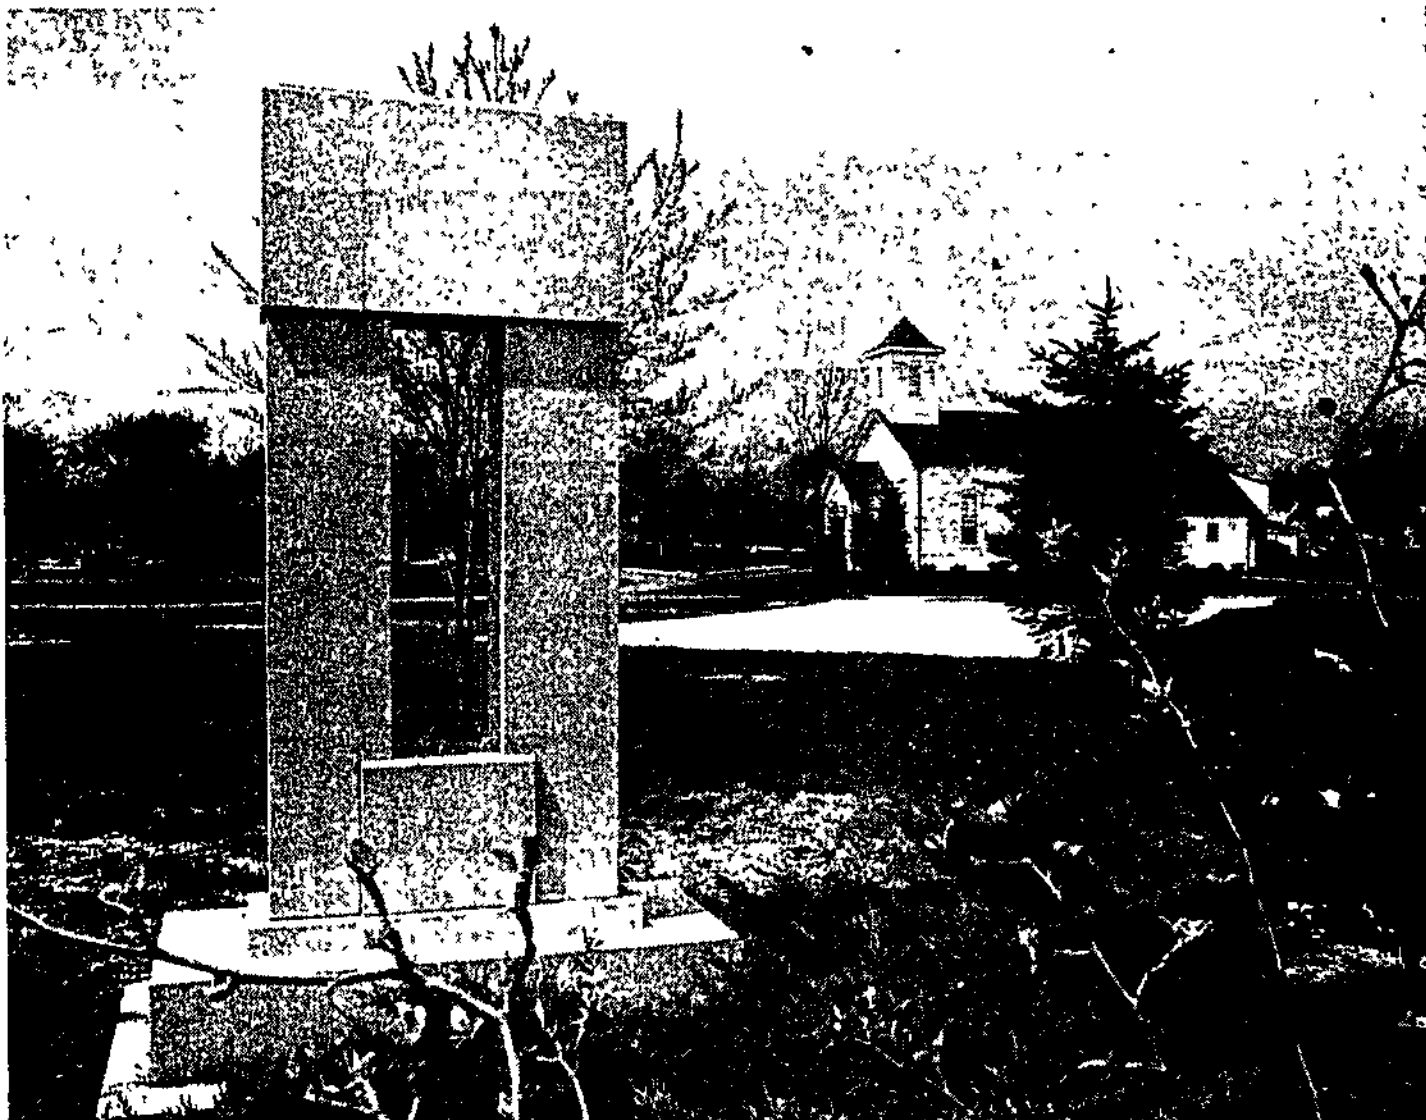

COUNCILMAN JAMES GREEN said the fact that the FAA cannot enforce the county's special use permit regarding Palwaukee points up a serious problem.

"There seems to be a tremendous lack of communication between government agencies here which is presenting a problem for the Village of Wheeling," Green said.

Rogers questioned how the FAA could disregard basic safety concerns imposed by the special use permit yet continue to operate at Palwaukee.

"If the FAA is not going to afford the citizens of this community the

Refugees need us: Reagan

Must back President, he urges at Crane fund-raiser in Chicago

by BOB LAHEY
Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

BOTH REAGAN and Crane received enthusiastic receptions from the 12th Congressional district residents.

Park budget hearing set for May 27

A public hearing on the Prospect Heights Park District's proposed $1,182,645 budget is scheduled for 7:30 p.m. May 27 at the Prospect Heights Public Library, 12 N. Elm St.

The budget, the largest in the park district's history, is available for public inspection from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. weekdays at the park district office, 13 Prospect Ct.

Most of the budget pertains to the $1.1 million park-improvement referendum passed last year. The budget includes $993,186 for capital improvements approved as part of the referendum and $68,588 for the bonds and interest account.

The general fund is up $8,628 from last year to $42,090. However, $4,000 is a grant from the county which will be used to hire a maintenance man for 10 months. The recreation fund is up $8,505 to $47,485.

The budget also includes Social Security benefits for the first time for the park district's two full-time employees. No pool account is included since Lions Pool will not open because it is too near the community center/sports complex construction site.

Parents rally to save swim coach's job

A group of parents plans to rally support at a Buffalo Grove Park District meeting today for a swim coach whose job is in jeopardy.

Ann Mostafi, a spokesman for the parents, said they have prepared a statement directed to park district officials.

The statement includes an endorsement of the present swim team coached by Virian Wadford, whose job is threatened, Mrs. Mostafi said. The statement also contains a plea for better communications between residents and park officials.

Mrs. Mostafi said they want to know why Wadford's job as swim coach and pool manager remains uncertain, and when park officials will make a decision.

Wadford, 30, and park officials discussed the matter in a private meeting Monday, apparently not arriving at any conclusion.

PARK OFFICIALS said Wadford's job is threatened by budgetary cutbacks and refused to comment further.

Wadford, an Elk Grove resident, Wednesday declined to discuss the situation until all talks with park officials are completed.

"I will say that I was flattered," Wadford said. "I was pleased with the parent support. I didn't expect it."

There are about 79 active swimmers on the team and many of their parents are expected to attend tonight's meeting, Mrs. Mostafi said. The meeting will start at 8 p.m. at 150 Raupp Blvd.

"We just want to show the board how strongly we feel as citizens," Mrs. Mostafi said. "With the (park) elections over, we feel we have no other recourse."

8-story hot air balloon on display

An 8-story, 7,000-cubic-foot hot air balloon will be displayed Saturday from noon to 3:30 p.m. at Tom Todd Chevrolet, 700 W. Dundee Rd.

The balloon is operated by airline pilots who have appeared at various other demonstrations throughout the country. The demonstration is sponsored by Fantastical Productions, Inc., Glen Ellyn.

Prevent further disturbances

'More guidance needed at Camelot'

by DIANE MEINIGAS

A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated on their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said.

Man hurt in crash in good condition

A 56-year-old Prairie View man was injured Tuesday night in a Wheeling traffic accident.

Carl Pease, Rte. 1, Box 47, was admitted to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, and then transferred to Edward G. Hines Memorial Hospital, Hines, for treatment of a possible back injury. A Hines hospital spokesman said Wednesday Pease's condition was good.

Details of the accident, which occurred at 9:31 p.m., were unavailable from Wheeling police. The accident, which reportedly involved only Pease's vehicle, occurred near McHenry and Weiland roads, Wheeling.

Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As

Planners to study Pine Hill changes

The Wheeling Plan Commission tonight will review site-plan changes for the proposed Pine Hill apartment development.

The village board last week refused to approve a final plat for the proposed 264-unit project because it had not received a recommendation on the project from the plan commission. Zoning for the project, planned for Old McHenry Road, was granted in 1973.

The project is being reviewed by the plan commission because it was originally designed as a condominium project but was subsequently changed to an apartment development.

The board will meet at 7:30 p.m. in the Village Hall, 235 W. Dundee Rd.

Liquor-control unit to be named in Elk Grove

Elk Grove Village Pres. Charles Zettek has ordered establishment of a liquor-control commission to advise him in his capacity as village liquor commissioner.

Zettek termed the power he wields as liquor commissioner "a terribly woeful power."

He asked Village Atty Edward Hofert to draw up an ordinance establishing a commission, consisting of the village president and two trustees. Zettek said a commission would act as an advisory group and could be helpful in hearing and deciding complaints.

As liquor commissioner, Zettek, according to state law, has sole power to grant or revoke liquor licenses.

Hofert said that as village president, Zettek cannot relinquish the power. Zettek said he did not plan to give up the responsibility but wants the commission to help him hear complaints and advise him on issues.

Charles Zettek

"I think it's fairer to have, say, two trustees and myself hear a complaint and make decisions than for just myself or any one man make a decision without any advice," Zettek said.

Zettek called an advisory liquor commission a means of eliminating the possible abuse of the liquor-control commissioner's power.

Liquor sale to minor charged

A clerk at the Foremost Liquor Store, 767 W. Dundee Rd., has been charged by Wheeling police with selling liquor to a minor and two Prospect Heights youths have been charged with possession of liquor in the same case.

Police said one of the two youths,

Bruce Lytle, 18, of 18 Glenbrook Dr., Prospect Heights, bought a bottle of wine and two six-packs of beer at 8:40 p.m. Saturday from the clerk, John W. Cox, 46, of 1012 Woodland Dr., Wheeling. The youth told police he was not asked by Cox for identification, police said.

Lytle and a companion, Mark Filip, 17, of 19 W. Glenbrook Dr., Prospect Heights, were then picked up and charged with possession of alcohol by a minor, police said.

All three will appear June 17 in the Arlington Heights branch of Circuit Court. Information on the incident was unavailable from police until Wednesday.

A NEW CULVERT under the driveway entrance to Harmony Village will eliminate flooded ditches such as the one above. The village of Wheeling ordered the developer to fix the blocked culvert to prevent flooding along a Wolf Road ditch from Manchester Drive to Hintz Road.

New culvert ends flood threat

A blocked culvert under a driveway of the Harmony Village development has been replaced eliminating the threat of future flooding problems in a ditch along Wolf Road between Manchester Drive and Hintz Road.

Thomas Markus, village administrative assistant, said officials at Harmony Village tore up the driveway to replace the damaged culvert, which was causing water to back up in the ditch, flooding property north of the development.

Markus said the culvert work was completed Friday and the ditch was dredged to improve the water flow.

He said the situation appears to be corrected because water is running through the culvert.

MARKUS ORDERED Harmony Village to correct the problem last week after the village received a complaint from Theodore Melzer, 511 Wolf Rd., who owns property bordering the ditch.

Melzer said his 7.2-acre site fronts the ditch and is continually flooded when heavy rain falls.

Markus said Wednesday Melzer should not have further problems as a result of the culvert replacement.

"There is a depression in Melzer's property which means there always will be a certain amount of water in the ditch but it shouldn't be as drastic a flooding situation as existed before," Markus said.

Melzer said Wednesday he is pleased that the problem has been corrected and added the flooding in the ditch has been reduced by at least 65 per cent.

Melzer said he hopes the culvert replacement will mean the problem is corrected permanently.

Two plead guilty to dozen burglaries, get jail terms

Two Maine Township men were given prison sentences Tuesday after they pleaded guilty to a total of 12 burglaries in the Northwest suburbs.

Charles N. Hardt, 20, of 9250 Noel Dr., was sentenced to 1 to 7 years in state prison and his roommate, Robert L. Clark, 21, was sentenced to 1 to 5 years. Both appeared before Judge Anton A. Smigiel in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Police said the pair pleaded guilty to a combination of the 12 charges against them. They each were charged with eight burglaries in Hoffman Estates, two burglaries in Schaumburg, one in Mount Prospect and one in Elk Grove Village.

Hardt and Clark were arrested early last October after Mount Prospect police interrupted a burglary in progress at 717 S. William St., Mount Prospect, and traced the two men to their apartment.

Boy who lived in car in mother's custody

A 12-year-old Hoffman Estates boy who suffered frostbitten feet after living outside his home 17 days in January has been placed in the custody of his mother, who now lives outside the county.

After a hearing Monday in Juvenile Court, the boy was permitted to live with his mother, and a probation officer has been assigned to check his welfare. He was in the custody of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

The boy reportedly lived in a car belonging to a friend's brother and in a treehouse. During the time he was missing from home, he attended classes at Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg.

His guidance counselor took the boy to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment of frostbitten feet.

Book-rental fees school board topic

Book-rental fees are expected to be discussed tonight by the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education.

Some board members have expressed an interest in abolishing book rental fees. The district now charges $8 a year per student in Grades 1-8 for book rental. Kindergarteners are charged $5 per year.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

same regulations that apply to Midway Airport, why has the FAA invested $2 million (in an instrument landing system and operation of the control tower) in the airport yet allow it to continue to violate FAA regulations," Rogers said.

FAA OFFICIALS, who had asked to appear before the commission to discuss recently implemented noise control measures at the airport, said they were empowered only to enforce existing federal regulations, not to change them.

The officials agreed, however, to consider the commission's concerns and look further into the problems which were discussed.

Rogers said the commission would send a letter to George Bergmark, FAA flight standards director, outlining the concerns discussed at the meeting.

Watershed project

Trailer residents face relocation

by JERRY THOMAS

"Nobody gives a damn about trailer trash — that's what I've been called since I was 5 years old."

The statement was not made in anger, it just notes a voice of resignation developed from 20 years of being pushed around.

Judy (not her real name) just could not understand why anyone would be interested in where she or the other 750 residents of the Elk Grove Mobile Home Park, 651 W. Higgins Rd., Elk Grove Township, move when their homes are flooded by the Upper Salt Creek Watershed Project.

THE WATERSHED project is designed to alleviate flooding and create a large recreational area. It also will eliminate the trailer park that Judy and her neighbors call home.

A 470-acre lake is planned to occupy the Busse Woods site where the trailers are parked.

The construction is forcing the trailer park's 750 tenants to find new locations for their trailers or other housing.

"We've watched the construction all around us and the lake is filling and coming close to our trailers, but we still don't know where or when we will be going," said another trailer home owner S. A. (Slim) Gowen.

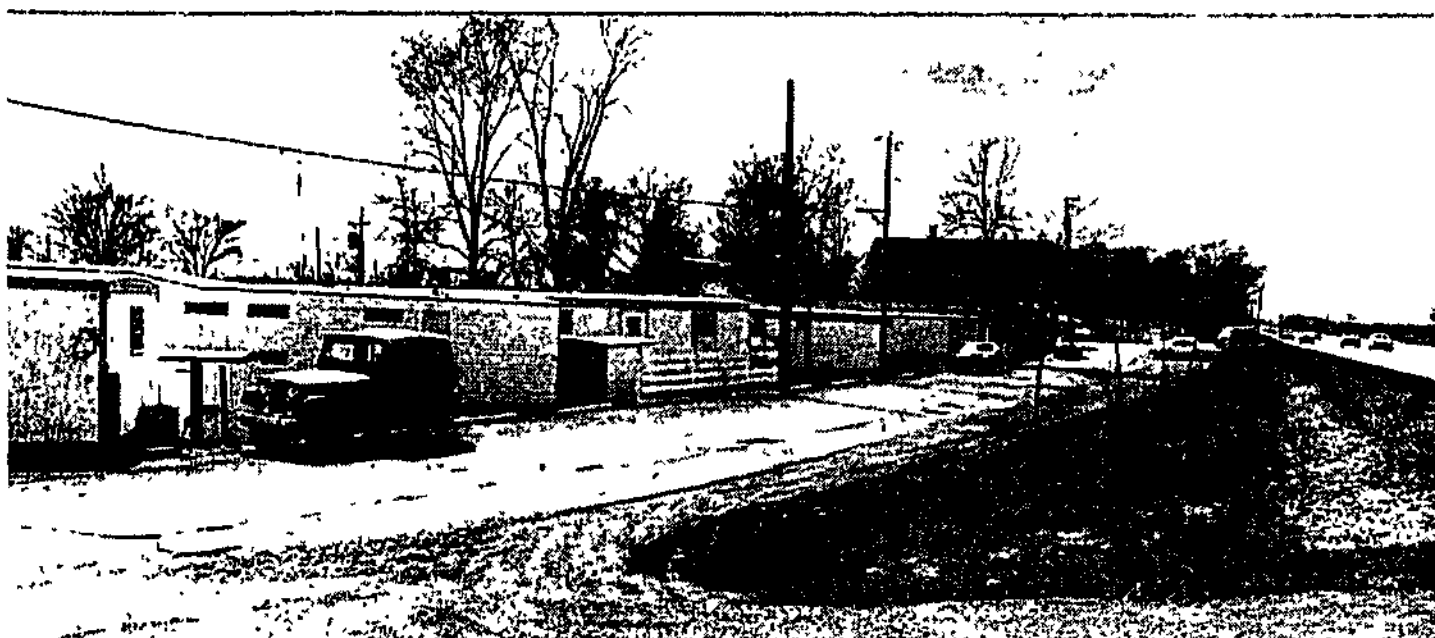

Gowen said he and other tenants of the park have been notified by letter that they will be "relocated."

The letter from the Illinois Dept. of Transportation's Division of Waterways states that when the trailer park is sold, state officials "will discuss in greater detail each tenant's eligibility to obtain financial help to move."

"It's unsettling to get a letter that says you will be relocated, when we can't find out when and a hell of a lot of us don't want to move," Gowen said.

GOWEN SAID he wants to stay in the trailer park because he leases a store on the property.

"In my case they are making me close up a business I like and move away from a trailer home I love. It doesn't seem like they should have that right."

NOBODY KNOWS WHERE or when these mobile homes will be relocated. The 750 residents are finding the Elk Grove Mobile Park an unsettling place to live now, as the Upper Salt Creek Watershed project construction works brings the flood water basin closer to the park's boundaries. Tenants have been notified they will be relocated, but officials don't know when or where.

One older couple who live in the park admit their trailer home "isn't worth buttons — it's old. But it's our home and we really can't afford to live anywhere else."

The park charges $75 a month for trailer space with tenants paying their own electric and gas bills.

The man said he is thinking about living with his married son. "I don't think mother and I will find a $75-a-month apartment in the neighborhood," he said.

JUDY SAID she's not really worried about relocating because she inherited some property Downstate. "But it bothers me to move because I love this area. My folks brought me here as a little girl and now I live here with my husband and daughter."

"Nobody's got a chance against all the big-shot government groups and especially us trailer people. I'll still fight it, but probably just like when I was in high school and the teacher called me trailer trash; I'll lash out and fight and then just drop out and run away."

Gowen said that for a few trailer owners relocation will mean a slight inconvenience. "Those who have a pretty new trailer will be accepted in most of the parks and maybe the state will help them pay the average $600 relocation or park entrance fee. It's the old ones and the ones with little money that will have it rough," he said.

If Mary Sher, who owns the trailer park, has her way, the park tenants will stay where they are.

"I'm fighting the County Forest Preserve in behalf of my tenants," she said.

MRS. SHER said she has refused to sell her land. As she put it: "How are they going to pay me for the 17 years of sweat, blood and guts it took to make a go of it?"

Mrs. Sher called the relocation move "a political thing and an attempt to force out the needy to make a playground for the greedy. My tenants are not all rich people, they are people who prefer the life-style of the trailer park and in a lot of cases could not afford to live anywhere else."

"It's a good home in the country for the retirees and families with children at a price they can afford," she said.

ROBERT CLEM, spokesman for the Division of Water Resources, said he cannot provide a timetable or any further information than what was provided in the initial letter.

"Generally we don't get involved in relocating people until the County Forest Preserve District buys the property and in this case we aren't sure how the negotiations for the purchase of the site are coming along," he said.

"We certainly plan to help those people. We will relocate them in decent, safe and sanitary housing," he said.

Clem said an outside service organization would probably set up headquarters in the area shortly to begin interviews with each tenant.

"I can't know for sure if we will be able to move each trailer to a different park," he said, "but we will take each case separately and see what we can do to relocate them."

A HOMEMADE HAT worn by David Robman is the envy of fellow beer-can collectors who trade "doubles" for new cans.

Beer-can mania new kids' craze

by JILL BETTNER

A 1936 dimple-bottom Budweiser can will beat a Hank Aaron baseball card any day for kids in Elk Grove Village.

Man, beer cans are in — hundreds of 'em — in the closets, in the basements, in the bedrooms of junior high school kids all over town.

It's a fad that requires a lot of help from moms and dads; and some parents say they're just glad it's beer cans and not bourbon bottles their offspring are collecting.

"We went to Texas over Easter and my husband drank more beer in one week than he has in the 16 years we've been married," one woman laughed. "He had to drink a bunch of different kinds because our son wanted the cans for his collection."

THE BEER-CAN craze apparently began sweeping the village last fall and may have gotten its start with Greg Pawlak, a teacher at Salt Creek School. Several of Pawlak's students took up the hobby. They told their friends at other schools about it, their friends told their friends and the fad was born.

Pawlak and his wife, Jan, have been collecting beer cans or seven years and have amassed a wall-to-wall collection of more than 1,000 domestic brands and 200 foreign brands.

The Pawlaks belong to the Beer Can Collectors' Assn., a status many younger collectors are hoping to gain.

"I'm saving up to join the BCCA, but the dues are $15 a year," said Jim Iverhouse, a sixth-grader at Grove Junior High. It's tough to swing a fee that high when he sometimes has to shell out up to 90 cents for a "really good can," he said.

LOTS OF KIDS will tell you, though, that besides cajoling parents into buying unusual beer brands, the next best way to get valuable cans free is to look for them in the Centex Industrial Park. Another approach is to contact relatives in Chicago or, better yet, Milwaukee, where the city alleys are beer-can collectors' gold mines.

More than 150 youngsters took advantage of an opportunity to trade beer cans and turn over some of the stock in their collections at a swap meet on the lawn of the Elk Grove Village Public Library last week.

Carting their beer cans to the library in wagons, shopping bags or in boxes balanced on the handlebars of their bikes, the kids set up shop for some serious trading.

Most know what to look for after attending two previous sessions conducted by Pawlak at the library. He offered tips on identifying valuable cans and restoring them.

THE MAJORITY OF youngsters said they had been collecting cans for about six months, but realize they've only just begun.

"That's why beer cans are a lot better than baseball cards," said Alan Bosslet, a fifth-grader at Salt Creek. "You can get a lot more stuff."

The "stuff" in beer-can collecting circles includes acquiring not only various brands of domestic and foreign beers, but several sizes, colors and shapes of cans.

Then, too, beer companies are always coming out with something new and that means the list of cans to have in any good collection constantly grows.

"The first day Old Style aluminum came out everybody was trying to get it and I was one of the first kids to have one. That was the day before yesterday, I think," said Don Landise, sixth-grader at Grove Junior High. "But now, all the companies are making them and aluminum won't be anything special."

DIMPLE-BOTTOM or rocket-bottom? It makes a difference to avoid beer-can collectors, who include a growing number of children in Elk Grove Village. Giving in to the craze, the Elk Grove Village Public Library recently sponsored a "swap meet" attended by nearly 200 youngsters.

Refugees need us: Reagan

Must back President, he urges at Crane fund-raiser in Chicago

by BOB LAHEY

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

RONALD REAGAN

'Airport expansion feasible'

by STIRLING MORITA

A proposed $8.4 million expansion of Schaumburg Airport is economically feasible and should in the long run net the village at least $2 million.

Those were the estimates given to the Schaumburg Mass Transportation Committee Wednesday night by a representative of the consulting firm of Howard, Needles, Tammen and Bergendoff.

Curtis Wehling, senior urban planner for the firm, presented the sixth installment of the preliminary airport expansion report and said issuance of municipal revenue bonds for the village's share of the project should be no problem as it might be for downstate airports.

THE VILLAGE'S probably share of the cost is estimated to be $2.109 million for land acquisition and addition of taxiways, terminal, pads and pavement for the airport on Irving Park Road south of the Centex-Schaumburg Industrial Park.

The report placed the Federal Aviation Administration's share of the cost at $5.145 million and the state's at $1.055 million. Wehling said proposed land acquisition of 120 acres to the east and west of the airport would cost about $5.4 million. Fencing for security purposes was estimated at $100,000.

Airfield improvements were placed at $1.1 million and terminal area improvements at $1.8 million.

Wehling said this was one of the few airports for which a bond issue would be feasible. He noted that its proximity to a large metropolitan area created demand and would draw revenue for the airport.

THE FINANCIAL benefit of about $2 million would come in 2005 or 2010 depending on the type of revenue bond issued. It was estimated that the village at the start of the payment schedule would run into deficits in paying off improvement bonds, but that incoming revenues later in the schedule would heavily outweigh bond retirement and operating expenses.

When asked the possible status of private aircraft with the energy crisis and economy crunch, Ken Wollmer, airport manager, said, "It is on an extremely sound basis more so than when I started 15 years ago."

He explained single-engine aircraft are as economical as cars in fuel consumption and that the 55 m.p.h. speed limits have spurred more businessmen to learn how to fly.

NORTHBOUND TRAFFIC on Meacham Road is being rerouted to allow for reconstruction and expansion to four lanes. After completion by the Illinois Dept. of Transportation, the road will be turned over to the village of Schaumburg. Completion is expected by fall.

Keller eighth graders stay away from classes

Kids 'strike' over canceled picnic

by KATHERINE BOYCE

Eighth graders at Keller Junior High School in Schaumburg refused to attend classes for a brief time Wednesday morning protesting the cancellation of the annual eighth-grade picnic.

The picnic was not scheduled this year because the school calendar was shortened according to a provision in the contract between teachers and the Schaumburg Township Dist. 54 Board of Education.

Schools in Illinois are allowed five emergency days in addition to the number of regular school days required by law. The extra days are set aside for school closing due to snow, power failures or other emergencies.

TEACHERS IN Dist. 54 last year negotiated a three-year contract with the board that calls for the elimination of unused emergency days. One of the extra days is set aside for teachers for end-of-year bookkeeping. The contract states that half of the remaining days must be taken off the end of the school year.

Dist. 54 did not use any of its five emergency days this year. As a result school will be dismissed June 11 instead of June 13. Because of the shortened school year eighth-grade outings in each of the four Dist. 54 junior high schools were not scheduled.

For the past five years one of the extra school days at Keller has been set aside for a picnic for eighth graders in honor of their graduation from junior high school, said principal Curtis Casey. The junior high school principals this year decided they "could not justify taking another day of school" for an outing, he said.

KELLER STUDENTS decided Wednesday to protest the decision by refusing to go to 11 a.m. classes. About four classrooms of students remained in the hall after the bell rang for the period, Casey said. The students had "good intentions" and they were not "disruptive," he said.

Once teachers explained the reason for the cancellation of the picnic, the students returned to classes, Casey said. Many students were tardy as a result of the protest, he said, but only those students who had been tardy twice this semester will be given a detention.

Casey said he is now meeting with the student council to arrange an eighth grade class outing, either after school hours or on a weekend.

PETER T. GUTTILLA

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Guttilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Guttilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Guttilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of . . . they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday.

Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Guttilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Guttilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Guttilla told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

Alexian seeks Elk Grove funding

by JILL BETTNER
Alexian Brothers Medical Center is asking Elk Grove Village to issue $22.5 million in tax-exempt municipal bonds to refinance the hospital's debts and pay for expanding its facilities.

The low-interest bonds being sought by the medical center would be sold by the village without referendum and paid off entirely by the operating revenues of the hospital.

Richard Harrell, Alexian Brothers' first vice president, refused to discuss details of the bond proposal or the hospital's financial situation.

"This is one of the most economical ways for us to obtain capital," Harrell said as his only comment on the request.

VILLAGE PRES. Charles Zetek said hospital officials suggested the bond sale to village trustees in an executive session Monday night. The meeting was in apparent violation of the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

Zetek said based on the discussion at the meeting, it is his understanding that the hospital is not in serious financial trouble.

"The hospital merely wishes us to offer bonds on the market to improve their financial position and finish the expansion and renovation they've started," Zetek said.

Alexian Brothers has undertaken a $13 million improvements program that includes a partially-completed wing.

ZETEK SAID hospital representatives have indicated they would use $14 million in proceeds from the proposed bond sale to refinance current debts, $5 million to cover costs of the expansion program and to put the remaining $3 million in escrow to meet "a financial crisis should one arise."

Harrell would not confirm the figures cited by Zetek, saying plans for the bond sale and its proceeds are only in the "very beginning stages."

The first public disclosure of the plan came Tuesday night when a letter was read at the village board meeting from hospital administrator Brother Felix Bettendorf.

THE LETTER SAID the medical center would assume all costs of arranging and conducting the bond sale.

"In our continuing attempt to provide the highest quality of care as economically as possible to all people who use the medical center, we are asking Elk Grove Village to assist us in issuing approximately $22.5 million of tax-exempt bonds through its municipal bonding power," Bettendorf said in the letter.

"The proceeds from these bonds are to be used to complete the medical office building, numerous out-patient departments, education facilities, parking lots, intensive care and coronary care units, and a surgical recovery room.

"We will also refinance our present debt so that its repayment is distributed over a longer period of time so that each patient using the facility will bear only his equitable portion."

CONCLUDING THE letter, Bettendorf said, "We request that the village work with its hospital in this venture enabling us to upgrade the medical center and minimize costs to the patients we serve."

The Alexian Brothers' request is similar to one made last year by Northwest Community Hospital to the Village of Arlington Heights. The Arlington Heights Village board agreed to lend its name to the hospital for a $20.5 million bond sale.

Zetek has called a meeting for 7 p.m. Tuesday prior to the regular village board meeting to discuss the bond proposal.

"Hopefully, we will be able to give them a conditional 'yes' that would allow them to go ahead on it," Zetek said. "It is a rare opportunity that a municipality might be able to cooperate and lend its municipal authority to help its hospital. In the long run, we would be helping the people of Elk Grove Village and the immediate area."

Volunteer lack stalls Hoffman health survey

A health survey planned in Hoffman Estates has been temporarily postponed.

Health Director James Demos said he has stopped plans for the survey because of a lack of volunteer support to distribute and conduct the study.

Demos said the survey was planned for distribution to 500 households. Its aim would have been to help the department prepare for future health needs, he said.

"We were trying to set up some long-range goals for the department and for community health needs," he said. "Hopefully we would have gotten ideas for programs, what new programs might be needed and what could be eliminated."

Preparation for the survey began in March when Demos said he contacted several community and civic organizations on assisting with the survey. He said the groups said they would assist in the effort, but he said Tuesday he has not heard anything from the groups since March.

Demos said the survey may be rescheduled later, possibly to be conducted by telephone if volunteers are not available to distribute questionnaires. He said if the survey is not conducted in June, it may be held in September.

Boy who lived in car in mother's custody

A 12-year-old Hoffman Estates boy who suffered frostbitten feet after living outside his home 17 days in January has been placed in the custody of his mother, who now lives outside the county.

After a hearing Monday in Juvenile Court, the boy was permitted to live with his mother, and a probation officer has been assigned to check his welfare. He was in the custody of the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

The boy reportedly lived in a car belonging to a friend's brother and in a treehouse. During the time he was missing from home, he attended classes at Helen Keller Junior High School, Schaumburg.

His guidance counselor took the boy to Northwest Community Hospital, Arlington Heights, for treatment of frostbitten feet.

Kessell establishes

'semi-regular' hours

Village Pres. Raymond Kessell said this week he has established "semi-regular" office hours at Schaumburg's Civic Center.

Kessell expects to be available to citizens in his office each Monday and Tuesday morning and will keep afternoon hours the second and fourth Tuesday of each month when 8 p.m. village board meetings are scheduled, as well as most Thursday afternoons.

Kessell said he also will be available at village offices from 8:30 a.m. to noon each Saturday.

Thirty years before we developed Peak Toothpaste, you probably used our secret ingredient.

It's baking soda.

Baking soda: the natural cleanser and sweetener that people used to brush with, and that dentists still recommend. Both for cleaning teeth and as a soothing rinse for mouth and gums.

Be prepared. Peak is 97% natural ingredients, principally pure baking soda. It tastes pleasant, but different. Be prepared. Peak leaves your whole mouth—not just teeth and breath, but even mouth tissues and gums—feeling different. Feeling naturally cleansed and sweetened. Naturally refreshed.

Uncomplicated.

Try Peak. Peak: the first modern toothpaste with the natural goodness of baking soda.

Prevent further disturbances

'More guidance needed at Camelot'

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated on their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said. Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As for the incident in January, I think the police overreacted to a situation that was not that damaging."

SCHLOSSER ADDED that the evaluation was not done as an investigation and that the state evaluates all its child-care facilities each year to point out strengths and weaknesses to the center directors.

The evaluation also recommended encouraging youths to make better use of their free time, developing a peer-support program to give the youths an incentive to do "constructive things" and continuing remodeling the center's facilities, he said.

The evaluation "positively noted" the program and staff improvements that the directors James and Shirley Spicer have made since they purchased the 18-acre ranch in November 1973, Schlosser said.

THE CENTER was originally named the MRB Ranch after its founder, Milroy R. Blowitz.

The center is licensed to offer short-term treatment to 17 youths who are abandoned, neglected or troubled, ranging in age from 7 to 17.

Spicer, who has reviewed the evaluation of Camelot, said he and his wife will continue to make improvements in the facility and programming.

"We are trying to do a respectable, honest job here at the center. We are in the process of making changes, but we want people to realize that what goes on here is really not any different than what goes on in most homes with children," Spicer said.

Refugees need us: Reagan

by BOB LAHEY

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

May get more in sales-tax rebates

City to get 'bonus' U.S. revenue-sharing funds

Rolling Meadows will receive several thousand more dollars in federal revenue-sharing money and possibly also in sales tax rebates than last year.

The city was informed it will receive $213,110 in federal revenue sharing funds in the federal fiscal year that starts July 1. The city had expected only about $170,000 for that period.

The "bonus" money won't all come during the city's fiscal year, which started May 1, because the federal government distributes the funds in four equal payments. The last payment under the federal calendar will come after the city's 1976-77 fiscal year is underway.

The increase will mean about $12,000 more during the city's current fiscal year. In a total budget of about $4.5 million revenue, the $12,000 "won't make that much difference," said City Mgr. James Watson, who also is financial officer.

ROLLING MEADOWS has been penalized during the past year for a federal fiscal error the preceding year. The federal government had overpaid the city about $50,000 in federal revenue sharing accounts during 1973-74. Because of the overpayment, the city got $120,000 instead of the $170,000 it had anticipated for 1974-75.

The city also has been notified to expect delivery within days of its monthly sales tax check from the state, and that check will be roughly 30 per cent higher than the one received last year for the same time period.

The city receives its share of sales taxes about three months after the money is collected from consumers. The check that is now due is for taxes collected in stores and industries in February. For that month, the city will receive $132,114.

For February 1974, the city received $101,737, a drop of $23,000 from the same month in 1973.

WATSON PREDICTED, in preparing this year's budget, the city would receive about $125,000 in sales taxes this month. Although he predicted varying figures throughout this year, the monthly average was $125,000.

Mayor Roland J. Meyer saw the excess receipts as a promising sign, and said the city could receive as much as $1.8 million in fiscal 1975-76. If the first month trend continues, the sales tax total for 1974-75 was about $1.5 million.

If the national and local economy return to a solid healthy position, Meyer said, the city could receive about $2 million in sales tax.

Finance committee chairman Ald. James A. Huddleston, 4th, Wednesday said "I think it's entirely possible we'll have that ($2 million) or more."

WATSON WAS LESS willing to com-

Erroneous pay hikes 'no worry': Watson

A technical error that raised salaries for Rolling Meadows employees without formal city council authorization will not cause the city any liability and should not cause any future problems.

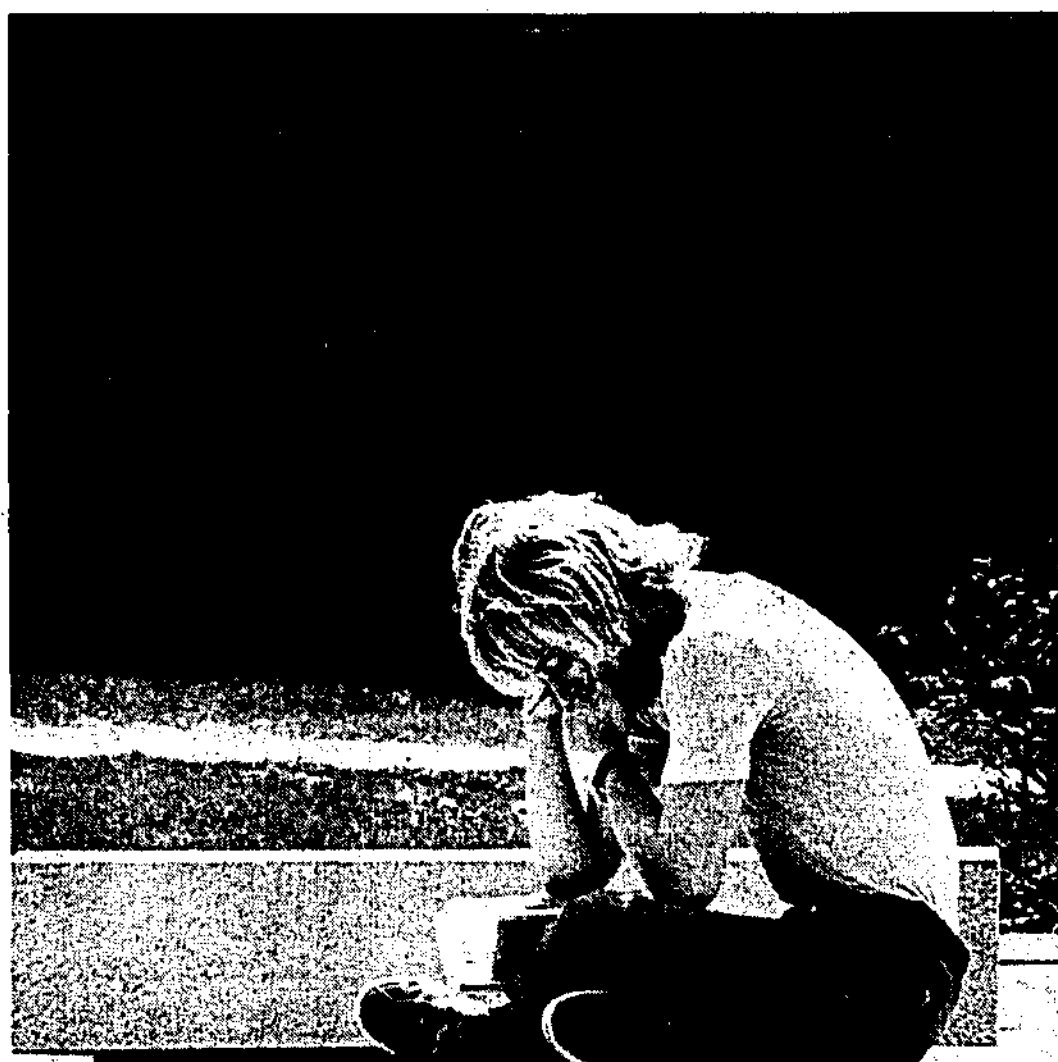

That was the assessment Wednesday of City Mgr. James Watson and Ald. James A. Huddleston, 4th, finance committee chairman.

Watson said he consulted City Atty. Donald M. Rose, who "pooh-poohed" the situation and advised bringing a corrective ordinance amendment to the city council next week. Watson took responsibility for the error, saying it was "just an oversight on my part, I suppose."

The "oversight" resulted in the city's payment of an estimated $60,000 in salary raises in the past two years that had been approved, but under the wrong procedure. Watson said city auditors probably did not spot the error because they examine most city accounts on a spot-check system.

mit himself to "crystal balling" a dramatic 33 per cent boost in city sales taxes. "I'm just playing wait and see. It's going to depend entirely on the economy," he said.

Some local businesses are showing an upturn, said Harry O'Brien, executive director of the Rolling Meadows Chamber of Commerce. He cited companies that supply materials to the construction industry, and said they generally feel both positive and negative economic influences three to nine months before other segments of the economy.

FINAL EXAMS are just two weeks away at Harper College in Palatine, but that doesn't stop students from taking advantage of the sunshine when they pursue their studies.

PETER T. GUTTILLA

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Guttilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1630 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Guttilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Guttilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of... they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday.

Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Guttilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Guttilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Guttilla told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

20th-birthday parade outgrows city's bounds

The parade for Rolling Meadows' 20th anniversary May 23 has become so large that planners have had to move the starting point to Arlington Park Race Track and set a new route.

Carmen Vinczeano, chairman of the subcommittee planning the parade, said Wednesday more than 4,000 persons will be marching in a line that could take as long as three hours to pass reviewing stands.

About 30 floats will be featured as well as a variety of entries ranging from a herd of mini-mules to mammoth Westphalian horses, six of which will be hitched in a team pulling a brewery display wagon. Other horses and hitches and even a stagecoach will travel the parade route.

NINE BANDS from area high and junior high schools will compete with drum and bugle corps from around the area. Many clowns are slated to entertain in the parade, including Huffo and Halfo of Rolling Meadows, the Schaumburg Jaycees Clowns and Schaumburg Rotary Rascals. Medinah Shrine will add their Flying Carpets and Minicars.

The parade originally was to form at Rolling Meadows High School, but the number of entries made that site inadequate, Vinczeano said. The starting point will be the parking lot of the race track, where entrants will be able to use grandstand facilities to don costumes and make last-minute preparations.

The parade will leave the track grounds at about 2 p.m., using the gate at Euclid Avenue and Wilke Road, proceed south on Wilke to St. James Street, west to Meadow Drive and southwest to Kirchhoff Road. It will turn west on Kirchhoff past the reviewing stand at the entrance to Rolling Meadows Shopping Center.

2 sergeant promotions sought

Rolling Meadows Police Chief Lewis R. Case will ask the city police committee tonight to recommend city council approval of the promotion of two patrolmen to sergeants.

The committee will meet at 8 p.m. today in the city hall, 3600 Kirchhoff Rd., with Ald. William D. Ahrens, 2nd, as acting chairman.

The promotions will not result in any manpower increases in the police department because the budget allows only for pay increases for the two men involved. It did not provide salaries to fill the positions the patrolmen will vacate.

The council approved the promotions in the city budget, but did not indicate a time schedule, Case has said he would like the promotions made as soon as possible.

The city's police and fire commission last month posted a list of six men eligible for the promotions.

'More guidance needed at Camelot Center': State

by DIANE MERMIGAS

A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1302 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated on their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said.

Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As for the incident in January, I think the police overreacted to a situation that was not that damaging."

SCHLOSSER ADDED that the evaluation was not done as an investigation and that the state evaluates all its child-care facilities each year to point out strengths and weaknesses to the center directors.

The evaluation also recommended encouraging youths to make better use of their free time, developing a peer-support program to give the youths an incentive to do "constructive things" and continuing remodeling the center's facilities, he said.

The evaluation "positively noted" the program and staff improvements that the directors James and Shirley Spicer have made since they purchased the 18-acre ranch in November 1973, Schlosser said.

THE CENTER was originally named the MRB Ranch after its founder, Milroy R. Blowitz.

The center is licensed to offer short-term treatment to 17 youths who are abandoned, neglected or troubled, ranging in age from 7 to 17.

Spicer, who has reviewed the evaluation of Camelot, said he and his wife will continue to make improvements in the facility and program.

"We are trying to do a respectable, honest job here at the center. We are in the process of making changes, but we want people to realize that what goes on here is really not any different than what goes on in most homes with children," Spicer said.

Two plead guilty to dozen burglaries, get jail terms

Two Maine Township men were given prison sentences Tuesday after they pleaded guilty to a total of 12 burglaries in the Northwest suburbs.

Charles N. Hardt, 20, of 9250 Noel Dr., was sentenced to 1 to 7 years in state prison and his roommate, Robert L. Clark, 21, was sentenced to 1 to 3 years. Both appeared before Judge Anton A. Smigiel in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Police said the pair pleaded guilty to a combination of the 12 charges against them. They each were charged with eight burglaries in Hoffman Estates, two burglaries in Schaumburg, one in Mount Prospect and one in Elk Grove Village.

Hardt and Clark were arrested early last October after Mount Prospect police interrupted a burglary in progress at 717 S. William St., Mount Prospect, and traced the two men to their apartment.

Fire chief at home for recuperation

Rolling Meadows Fire Chief Thomas Fogarty is recuperating at home from surgery nearly two weeks ago. Fogarty can receive visitors, and is expected to return to work in one to two weeks, Mrs. Fogarty said.

Cicero youth gets probation

Franklin Park man gets jail term for bad checks

A 23-year-old Franklin Park man was sentenced to the state penitentiary and an 18-year-old Cicero youth was placed on felony probation in unrelated Mount Prospect bad-check cases heard this week in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Joseph J. Beneventi, 2338 Emerson, Franklin Park, was sentenced to 1 to 3 years in prison after he pleaded guilty to theft by deception. Police said Beneventi falsely identified himself as a Mount Prospect man last August, then asked for some new checks drawn to the Mount Prospect man's account and then cashed the checks.

Police said the checks were passed at the Countryside Bank, 1190 S. Elm-hurst Rd., Mount Prospect.

Beneventi, who was sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Anton A. Smigiel, will start serving his prison term Tuesday.

In the other case, Smigiel placed Daniel D. Tryba, Cicero, to three years' felony probation after Tryba pleaded guilty. Tryba also must make restitution, police said.

Tryba tried to cash a stolen check Nov. 4, 1974, at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect drive-up window, 999 N. Elmhurst Rd., police said.

Thirty years before we developed Peak Toothpaste, you probably used our secret ingredient.

It's baking soda.

Baking soda: the natural cleanser and sweetener that people used to brush with, and that dentists still recommend. Both for cleaning teeth and as a soothing rinse for mouth and gums.

Be prepared. Peak is 97% natural ingredients, principally pure baking soda. It tastes pleasant, but different. Be prepared. Peak leaves your whole mouth—not just teeth and breath, but even mouth tissues and gums—feeling different. Feeling naturally cleansed and sweetened. Naturally refreshed. Uncomplicate.

Try Peak. Peak: the first modern toothpaste with the natural goodness of baking soda.

Refugees need us: Reagan

by BOB LAHEY

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

Service-fee change may save residents $40

by JOE SWICKARD

Palatine Trustee Bryan P. Coughlin Jr. called Wednesday night for a change in municipal service fee structures that could mean a $40 annual savings to the average homeowner.

Coughlin's plan received a warm reception from about 50 members of the newly formed North Central Neighborhood Assn. in a meeting at Community Park.

The plan calls for replacing separate fees for water, sewer and refuse services with a higher property tax. The switch would mean a $40 saving, Coughlin said, because property taxes may be deducted from federal income taxes, while the special service fees cannot.

He said the plan "simply goes back to the original concept of property tax" in providing basic municipal services to the residents. The concept is not to tax the residents more, he said, but to tax them differently and in a way that is cheaper.

HE SAID THAT by using federal income tax deductions, "Uncle Sam will be paying $40 for you (based on the average village tax bill)."

Some overhead costs also could be eliminated, Coughlin said. Billing clerks, key punch operators and mailing expenses needed for the special service bills could be done away with, he said.

Other overhead expenses that could be cut include the water meter and the meter readers, he said.

One drawback to his proposition, he said, is $275,000 in revenue bonds tied to the sewer and water fund. He said if the conversion were accepted by the village board, a referendum should be held to issue general obligation bonds to meet those costs.

COUGHLIN WAS somewhat surprised by his reception from the homeowners. "I really expected to get bombarded with some hard questions tonight," he said.

Coughlin said his proposition was designed "primarily to benefit the homeowners. . . . If a couple of big businesses get hit — well, c'est la guerre."

Different rates might have to be established for some businesses in the village, Coughlin said, such as car washes which have a low assessed valuation but use a high volume of water.

"I've had this idea in the back of my mind for about 20 years," Coughlin, vice president of the Midwest Stock Exchange, explained. "I've just been waiting for the right forum."

He said he planned to introduce his plan to the village board soon and said he has the support of Village Pres. Wendell E. Jones.

6 juveniles must pay for vandalism

Six Palatine juveniles have been ordered to make restitution for vandalism to six houses in March.

The youths were arrested late last week after allegedly causing $2,000 damage to the homes by throwing rocks, bricks and pipes through the windows of the houses located in the Hunting Ridge, Winston Park and Heatherlea subdivisions.

The youths are working to pay off the damages and will be required to go through a periodic check with police while on probation, Palatine police officers said.

The arrests were part of a major crackdown on juvenile crime in the village that will continue throughout the summer months, said Police Chief Jerry Bratcher.

FINAL EXAMS are just two weeks away at Harper College in Palatine, but that doesn't stop students from taking advantage of the sunshine when they pursue their studies.

Zoners give Prairie Brook OK

The County Zoning Board Wednesday unanimously approved revised plans for the Prairie Brook Apartments in Palatine Township.

The 95-acre project plans were revised in a joint effort by the developer, Palatine village officials and residents of the Splunker Cove subdivision south of the development.

The proposed project, at Baldwin Road south of Rand Road has been reduced to 1,550 apartment units compared to the 2,200 units approved by the County Board several years ago.

Developer Michael Krutzner received the original zoning and approval for the project from the County Board in 1970. Krutzner returned to the zoning board of appeals in January with several change requests in an attempt to appease Palatine officials and nearby residents who were opposed to the density of the original project plans.

CHANGES IN the project approved by the zoning board Wednesday include:

- Changing the zoning of the 95-acre project.

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Guttila interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Guttila appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1530 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Guttila told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Guttila, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of . . . they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

MAHER refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday. Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Guttila's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Guttila denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Guttila told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

Palatine High's future on the line tonight?

High School Dist. 211's new school will be given a name by the board of education tonight, in a decision that may forecast the fate of the district's oldest building, Palatine High School.

The district's sixth high school, under construction north of the Winston Park subdivision in Palatine, is scheduled to open in 1977.

At the board's most recent meeting, Board Pres. Robert Creek said he was "very close to saying the new building is Palatine High School." During his campaign for reelection last month, Board Member William Stenstrom said he was ready to name the new building Palatine High School and sell the old school to the village.

PALATINE HIGH SCHOOL, 150 E. Wood St., was built in 1929 and is in need of major repairs and renovation. An administrative committee is studying possible uses of the old school, including selling or renting the building to another community agency, making it into an alternate day school, an enrollment overload school or a vocational or continuing education center.

The board does not plan to make a decision on the fate of the old school for at least another year. It has decided that the school will be closed, at least temporarily, in 1977 and students will be transferred to the new building. The old building will then be remodeled and reopened as a high school or it will be sold or used for another purpose.

The board is scheduled to name the new school when it meets at 8 p.m. at the district administration center, 1750 S. Roselle Rd., Palatine Township.

The board also will discuss changing class schedules from an eight-period day to a nine-period day next year to relieve overcrowding.

ENROLLMENT PROJECTIONS for Palatine Township show that both Palatine and Fremd high schools will be overcrowded in the next two years. The capacity of Fremd is 2,800 students; enrollment is expected to be 2,740 next year and 2,830 by the fall of 1978.

Palatine has a capacity of 1,800 students and now houses 1,960. Next year the enrollment is expected to be 2,000 and will reach 2,050 by the fall of 1978.

The board will consider remodeling some offices at Fremd for extra classroom space and stagger class periods at Palatine next year so juniors and seniors will start classes at 7:30, sophomores at 8:25 and freshmen at 9:20 a.m..

Man loses 2 fingers in accident on job

A 22-year-old Palatine man severed portions of two fingers early Wednesday in an industrial accident at Ekco Products Inc., 777 S. Wheeling Rd., Wheeling.

The worker, Jesus Quiroja, 433 N. Smith St., was taken to Holy Family Hospital, Des Plaines, where doctors completed a partial amputation on the two fingers. Quiroja's condition was satisfactory Wednesday afternoon.

Details of the accident were unavailable both from police and Ekco Products. Quiroja reportedly was working with a machine when the accident occurred.

'More guidance needed at Camelot Center': State

by DIANE MEUNIGAS

A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated on their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said.

Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As for the incident in January, I think the police overreacted to a situation that was not that damaging."

SCHLOSSER ADDED that the evaluation was not done as an investigation and that the state evaluates all its child-care facilities each year to point out strengths and weaknesses to the center directors.

The evaluation also recommended encouraging youths to make better use of their free time, developing a peer-support program to give the youths an incentive to do "constructive things" and continuing remodeling the center's facilities, he said.

The evaluation "positively noted" the program and staff improvements that the directors James and Shirley Spicer have made since they purchased the 18-acre ranch in November 1973, Schlosser said.

THE CENTER was originally named the MRB Ranch after its founder, Milroy R. Blowitz.

The center is licensed to offer short-term treatment to 17 youths who are abandoned, neglected or troubled, ranging in age from 7 to 17.

Spicer, who has reviewed the evaluation of Camelot, said he and his wife will continue to make improvements in the facility and programming.

"We are trying to do a respectable, honest job here at the center. We are in the process of making changes, but we want people to realize that what goes on here is really not any different than what goes on in most homes with children," Spicer said.

acre property from R-6 to R-5 which will require the developer to build a less dense project. The project will have 17 units per acre compared to the original 23 units per acre.

• 214 townhouses will be constructed along the southern end of the development near Spinnaker Cove. The plans originally called for the construction of six-story apartment complexes near the subdivision.

• The developer will build 162 two-story garden apartment units, 638 three-story units, 432 four-story units and 108 six-story apartment units.

• A 45-foot landscaped buffer will separate the development and the Spinnaker Cove area.

• The developer will be required to have all of his specific project plans reviewed and approved by the Palatine village officials and the Spinnaker Cove homeowners before the entire project is considered by the County Board.

• The developer will be required to cooperate with the village while the project is under construction by allowing an engineering study to be made every five years to make certain that storage of flood water is being properly taken care of. The developer also will allow the village and homeowners to review plans for lighting and sewage.

The Spinnaker Cove homeowners have negotiated with the village to close off Williams Drive to keep traffic from the apartment project from flowing through their subdivision. Homeowners and village officials met with the project developer to make a final revision of the new plans Tuesday night.

Village trustees voted 4 to 1 in favor of the revised plans in an informal vote on the revised project plans Tuesday night. Homeowners also responded positively to the new plans, said Paul Marcy, secretary of the County Zoning Board.

Several homeowners and two village officials were present Wednesday for the hearing, he said.

Refugees need us: Reagan

by BOB LAHEY

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask Ameri-

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

Committee talks Tuesday

$3.2 million library vote nears reality

by LYNN ASINOF

The Mount Prospect Village Board is moving closer to a referendum on the proposed $3.2 million public library.

The board has scheduled two meetings to discuss the possibility of a referendum on the project. The library was a central issue in the recent village election, which swept five independents into office.

The previous village board last year decided to skip a referendum and build the library with bonds issued through home-rule powers.

TRUSTEE LEO FLOROS called for the meetings, saying he favored an advisory referendum on the issue. "Such a referendum, I believe, could be held in a matter of three weeks," he said, noting that most voters are familiar with the issue.

"Taxpayers should have a say in how their money is spent," Floros said.

Floros, however, said he wanted to wait until the board receives legal and financial opinions on the impact of cancelling the library project or recalling the $1 million bond issue, which included purchase of the Mount Prospect State Bank building.

VILLAGE ATTY. John J. Zimmermann said it would take about three weeks to get reports back from the legal and financial firms contacted.

Mayor Robert D. Teichert, however, said the board should not wait for the reports to take action.

"If it is the intent of the board members to have a referendum then I suggest they do it promptly," Teichert said. "For those who feel that referendums are necessary for them to make their decisions, let's get at it. It's a simple matter of allocating $10,000 or $15,000."

Independent trustee Rhea named finance panel head

Mount Prospect Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr., who won election as an independent opposing incumbent trustees, has been named chairman of the powerful finance committee.

Trustees Leo Floros and Richard N. Hendricks were named to serve on the committee.

Other committee appointments announced this week by Mayor Robert D. Teichert:

Building: Hendricks, chairman; Floros and Trustee Michael H. Minton, members.

Public works: Trustee Theodore J. Wattenberg, chairman; Minton and Trustee E. P. Richardson, members.

Judiciary: Minton, chairman; Hendricks and Wattenberg, members.

Public health and safety: Richardson, chairman; Rhea and Wattenberg, members.

Police and fire: Floros, chairman; Rhea and Richardson, members.

One of the first matters assigned to committee by the new village board is the possible tightening of village carnival regulations.

The Mount Prospect Jaycees requested a study of carnival regulations, saying that carnivals can be scheduled too closely. Jaycee Joseph Vals said this diminishes the profit and makes it difficult to arrange carnival contracts.

Vals asked that the village board develop a policy that protects local organizations, instead of giving outside organizations the same privileges.

The matter was assigned to the judiciary committee, which also has been charged with the study of village regulation of recreational vehicles and boats.

The board will take up the matter after discussing employee salary negotiations. A special board meeting has also been set for May 27 for a full discussion of the referendum proposal.

Trustee Edward B. Rhea Jr. said he is in favor of a full review of the progress of the downtown redevelopment commission prior to any discussion on the library. A meeting to discuss that issue will be at 8 p.m. Monday.

Two plead guilty to 12 area thefts

Two Maine Township men were given prison sentences Tuesday after they pleaded guilty to a total of 12 burglaries in the Northwest suburbs.

Charles N. Hardt, 20, of 9230 Noel Dr., was sentenced to 1 to 7 years in state prison and his roommate, Robert L. Clark, 21, was sentenced to 1 to 5 years. Both appeared before Judge Anton A. Smigiel in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Police said the pair pleaded guilty to a combination of the 12 charges against them. They each were charged with eight burglaries in Hoffman Estates, two burglaries in Schaumburg, one in Mount Prospect and one in Elk Grove Village.

Hardt and Clark were arrested early last October after Mount Prospect police interrupted a burglary in progress at 717 S. William St., Mount Prospect, and traced the two men to their apartment.

PETER T. GUTILLA

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Gutilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Gutilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1630 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Gutilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Gutilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of... they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday.

Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizbeth Fenlon, Gutilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Gutilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Gutilla told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

Parents, teachers, educators

Citizens' group lists school goals

An Elk Grove Township Dist. 59 citizens committee has drawn up a preliminary list of school goals ranging from an elementary-level foreign language program to behavior guidelines for students.

The committee, appointed by the board of education in January, includes parents, teachers, administrators and board members. They will present their goals to the public during community meetings at the five district junior high schools.

The committee is looking into eight areas: special programs for students and staff, transition between schools and testing for students entering school, communications, materials, educational programs, classroom environment, discipline and teaching techniques.

Recommendations include:

- Adding specialists to help children who are underachievers or who have social, physical or motivation problems.
- Beginning a foreign language program starting in the elementary grades.
- Starting a program for gifted students.
- Increasing after school activities.
- Expanding the reading clinic.

• Adding a remedial math program.

• Hiring assistants for band directors.

• Creating a program for early entrance into kindergarten.

• Holding more workshops for teachers.

• Offer training for volunteer parents and senior citizens.

• Testing preschool children before they enter kindergarten and better preparing students to enter junior high and high school.

• Improve communication between the schools and parents including more parent-teacher conferences and open houses.

• Include different levels of reading materials in all subjects.

• Review the curricula in all basic subject areas as well as consumer training, safety, sex education, drug education and ecology.

• Give children rules of conduct and guidelines of behavior to improve discipline.

Golf lessons signups

The Mount Prospect Park District is taking registration for women's beginning and intermediate golf lessons offered during June.

The classes meet for a half hour every Wednesday for four weeks. After class the women can practice with nine free holes of golf. Classes are limited to 15 and cost $12. Clubs may be rented from the park district.

The intermediate classes are scheduled to begin at 9 a.m. and the beginning classes are scheduled to begin at 10 a.m.

Interested persons can register at the Lions Park Recreation Center, 411 S. Maple St.

Henry L. Coco of Mount Prospect has been elected to the Crusade of Mercy's board of trustees.

The secretary-treasurer of the Chicago Allied Printing Trades Council, Coco helped establish the Castle Heights Homeowners Assn.

cost up 65%

A long-awaited addition to the Prospect Heights Fire Station, 8½ E. Camp McDonald Rd., will be built this year, although the projected cost has risen 65 per cent.

When initial plans for the three-bay addition were drawn up and approved in a May 1971 referendum, the cost of the project was estimated at $130,000. The projected cost today, with work scheduled to begin next month, is $215,000, according to project agent-general contractor Randall F. Stephenson of Prospect Heights.

Stephenson said the increase is due to rising material and wage costs. The addition is to be built on the east side of the existing station.

The project was originally scheduled for completion before fall 1973, but building plans were held up because of complicated legal matters, primarily involving the relocation of an alley adjacent to the fire station.

The addition is slated to be completed by December. Bids for the work are to be opened May 20 at an 8 p.m. meeting of the fire protection district board. The meeting will be at the fire station.

The land on which the addition will be built was purchased more than two years ago for $35,000.

Book-rental fees

school board topic

Book-rental fees are expected to be discussed tonight by the Wheeling-Buffalo Grove Dist. 21 Board of Education.

Some board members have expressed an interest in abolishing book rental fees. The district now charges $4 a year per student in Grades 1-8 for book rental. Kindergartners are charged $5 per year.

The board will meet at 8 p.m. in the district administration center, 999 W. Dundee Rd., Wheeling.

Library to hold annual meeting

The annual meeting of the Mount Prospect Public Library Board will be at 8:15 p.m. today at the library, 14 E. Busse Ave.

Before the meeting, the outgoing library board will meet briefly. After the annual meeting, the new library board will meet with newly elected trustees. Those recently elected were newcomer Samuel Hess and incumbents John A. Parsons and Helen Marie Viger.

Deficit will be cut to $60,000

Schools trim 7 teachers, program

by MAURELYN McDONALD

River Trails Dist. 26 board members reduced but did not eliminate deficit spending in the budget for the coming school year by voting to drop six full-time and one part-time teacher and slightly trimming one district program.

The board, which had considered an administration proposal to cut eight full-time teachers and one part-time teacher and several program cuts to hold next year's deficit to $31,900, approved a deficit of about $60,000 to finance additional elementary school teachers and to retain one full-time teacher for the gifted. The deficit will increase if teachers are given raises or if operating expenses go up.

The district's junior high French program was cut by one full-time teacher to one full-time and one part-time teacher despite many protests from parents, teachers and students in the audience at Tuesday night's board meeting.

BUT THE JUNIOR high's popular CORE program — a teaching method that groups the same students and teachers together for basic subjects — was not cut.

Faced with decreasing state aid because of declining enrollment Dist. 26 is now spending its cash reserves. "We will have drained it down to $100,000 by July," said Ralph Beaudoin, Dist. 26 business manager. The district will spend $40,000 of its cash reserves this year, he said.

"The question isn't negative numbers. It really is that we can't forever spend more than we're getting," Beaudoin added. "We haven't arrested that problem yet."

Board members heard several hours of discussion about the merits of the junior high school French program, but chose to make the elementary schools their main priority.

Teacher assignments told by school board

Staff and program changes approved by the River Trails Dist. 26 Board of Education this week will result in the following classroom teacher assignments next year:

- Bond School, 350 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 11 teachers, will keep those teachers and receive an extra aide for the fifth grade.
 - Euclid School, 1211 Wheeling Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 20 teachers, will lose a part-time kindergarten teacher but will gain a third teacher for 60 third-graders.
 - Feenhanville School, 1400 E. Kensington Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 16 teachers, will lose one fourth-grade teacher but will gain one sixth-grade teacher.
 - Indian Grove School, 1340 Burning Bush Ln., Prospect Heights, which has 17 teachers, will lose a third-grade teacher, a fourth-grade teacher and a sixth-grade teacher. It will gain a sixth-grade aide.
 - Park View School, 805 Burning Bush Ln., Mount Prospect, which has 17 teachers, will lose one first-grade teacher but gain one sixth-grade teacher.
 - River Road School, 1150 N. River Rd., Des Plaines, which has 18 full-time and one part-time teacher, will gain at least two full-time and one part-time teacher to staff a new school building which opens in the fall.
 - River Trails Junior High School, 1000 Wolf Rd., Mount Prospect, which has 45 teachers, will lose one French teacher, one reading teacher, one learning disabilities teacher, and a part-time speech teacher.
- District Supt. John Fidlund said staffing cuts are subject to change should educational needs arise.

Board member Lloyd Demel presented a motion to add teachers at the sixth grade level at Park View and Feenhanville schools and at the third grade level at Euclid School to reduce class sizes.

"IT IS MY feelings we should put our priorities in the kindergarten through sixth grade and force the district to make cuts elsewhere," he said.

Although Demel's motion originally was defeated, each teacher addition was approved in separate motions later in the evening.

"I suspect that people on our board feel more comfortable evaluating individual programs by their components. When you do that you really get into the pros and cons on a detailed basis," Demel said.

Board Pres. Michael Sheyker believes Demel's original motion was defeated because "board members felt strongly about some schools." Board members originally did not want to authorize three teachers for the 65 sixth graders at Feenhanville, Sheyker said, but parent pressure later caused them to change their minds.

SHEYKER SAID he believed the 59

sixth graders at Indian Grove School did not receive a third teacher while the 65 sixth graders at Feenhanville did because Feenhanville had a vocal delegation of parents and Indian Grove did not.

William Haase, another board member, agreed that the board as a whole bowed to parent pressure.

"I think most of the board members believe the final implications of doing all that (adopting Demel's motion) was undesirable and their first vote was correct," he said.

"But getting down to the nuts and bolts of specific pressure groups, the board members were less willing to bite the bullet on specific schools," Haase added.

"While we effected some cuts, we sure as heck didn't make enough cuts to get us out of a deficit. I'm in opposition to the total result because I think we are indulging in some luxuries we can't afford," Haase said.

BOARD MEMBERS expressed sympathy for the district's 10-year-old French program, but cut it in favor of elementary staffing.

"I agree that taking a foreign language makes you a more well-rounded person," said Sheyker, "but we use the same French book that Hersey uses. If our students don't take French at River Trails, they can take it at Hersey. But if a student misses something in sixth grade, he can never pick it up."

"It's a trade-off kind of thing and that's unfortunate," Sheyker said.

Sheyker said it appears the district's deficit will increase during the coming school year, "but we're trying to get ahead of it."

"It appears that somewhere down the road we're going to have to make a change, but hopefully that's three or four years away yet. Hopefully there'll be changes by then to offset it," he said.

"We're going to go through the same thing next year," said Sheyker, referring to staffing and program cuts. "At the district level we'll have to examine every program in the calm of the next few months to see which can be curtailed, reduced or expanded."

"We'll really have to knuckle down," he added.

Franklin Park man gets jail term for bad checks

A 29-year-old Franklin Park man was sentenced to the state penitentiary and an 18-year-old Cicero youth was placed on felony probation in unrelated Mount Prospect bad-check cases heard this week in the Niles branch of Circuit Court.

Joseph J. Beneventi, 2830 Emerson, Franklin Park, was sentenced to 1 to 3 years in prison after he pleaded guilty to theft by deception. Police said Beneventi falsely identified himself as a Mount Prospect man last August, then asked for some new checks drawn to the Mount Prospect man's account and then cashed the checks.

Police said the checks were passed at the Countryside Bank, 1100 S. Elmhurst Rd., Mount Prospect.

Beneventi, who was sentenced by Circuit Court Judge Anton A. Smigiel, will start serving his prison term Tuesday.

In the other case, Smigiel placed Daniel D. Tryba, Cicero, to three years' felony probation after Tryba pleaded guilty. Tryba also must make restitution, police said.

Tryba tried to cash a stolen check Nov. 4, 1974, at the First National Bank of Mount Prospect drive-up window, 999 N. Elmhurst Rd., police said.

Fiscal nitty-gritty due Tuesday

Work on Mount Prospect's financial problems will begin Tuesday when the new village board gets its first status report on negotiations with village police and fire groups.

Attorney Bernard Lee, who is heading the village negotiating team, is scheduled to brief the new board on the police negotiations. Mayor Robert D. Teichert said he expects the new board to give Lee some instructions about continuing the negotiations.

Negotiations were stalled earlier this spring when the village charged it could not afford any employee salary increases. Teichert said one of the first jobs of the new village board would be to search for additional sources of income to cover employee raises.

Teichert said he did not think the board would get into any discussion of new revenue sources because it also is scheduled to meet in closed-door session with the fire department wage committee.

The previous village board voted to extend the police contract until a new one is approved. Police spokesmen have described previous village offers as "nothing."

Police reportedly are seeking a 15 per cent wage increase and increased fringe benefits. The firemen reportedly are asking a 15 per cent increase.

Both the police and firemen have been waiting for the new board to take office so negotiations can resume. Both groups contacted the new trustees shortly after they were elected in an effort to explain their group's positions.

Refugees need us: Reagan

by BOB LAHEY

Former California Gov. Ronald Reagan predicted Wednesday that future American Presidents, despite American losses in Vietnam, will continue to commit U.S. combat troops to foreign conflicts without regard for the will of Congress.

Reagan said any President would feel compelled to order troops into battle "if at any time he believes the safety of the United States is endangered."

Reagan came to the Chicago area as the guest speaker at a fund-raising dinner for U. S. Rep. Philip M. Crane,

R-12th, at the Marriott Motor Inn, Chicago, Wednesday night.

In a press conference Wednesday afternoon, Reagan also supported President Ford in the defense of the United States' harboring of refugees from South Vietnam.

"If we turn them away, then we had better chisel those words away from the base of the Statue of Liberty," Reagan said, referring to the poem that begins, "Give me your tired, your poor."

REAGAN AND CRANE struck similar chords in references to the Vietnam War, when both declared that the major restriction on committing U.S. troops to foreign engagements must be a demand for military victory.

At his press conference, Reagan said, "The great immorality of Vietnam was not our participation; the great immorality was the Congress that asked young men to die without hope of winning."

At Crane's testimonial dinner, the Congressman brought some 900 12th Congressional district residents to their feet cheering when he declared, "Americans must learn from Vietnam that we may never again ask American parents, wives and loved ones to sacrifice American lives for anything less than total victory."

Reagan appeared at Crane's annual testimonial dinner, which Crane says is conducted to help defray the expenses of maintaining his Congressional offices in Washington, D. C., and the Northwest suburbs. The ballroom at the Marriott Inn, with a capacity of 1,000 persons, was almost filled, at $50 per plate.

Vandals hurting village efforts for recycling

Vandalism, carelessness and apparent sabotage are causing serious problems in Arlington Heights' paper-and-glass-recycling effort.

Three truckloads of glass have been rejected in the past two months because of contamination, costing the village about $500 in lost revenue and additional hauling charges.

Several weeks ago a fire was set in one of the steel trailers used to store paper for eventual recycling. Though extinguished by the fire department, the fire made the paper unmarketable.

Locks and hinges have been ripped off the recycling containers. Trash and garbage is being dumped in with the paper and glass.

"Some people are treating the recycling centers like dumps," George Weinand, village administrative assistant, said Wednesday.

PART OF THE problem, Weinand says, can be laid to simple carelessness. Some people are forgetting to remove metal caps and rings from the glass bottles, or to rinse out jars and bottles before depositing them.

"We've found jars still half full of old spaghetti sauce. Orange peels. And all kinds of garbage," he said.

Other problems, such as the fire that was set and the damage to the containers are obvious acts of vandalism, or even sabotage, Weinand said.

"We found a board pounded full of nail spikes in with one load of glass," he said. In another case, locks on the glass containers were pried off days after they had been put on.

The locks were put on to avoid deposits of contaminated glass, or the mixing of brown, green and white glass — all of which makes the load unmarketable. Residents are asked to simply drop off the glass around the containers. Village firemen later sort and deposit the jars and bottles in the proper storage bin.

But the system, Weinand said, is not working.

"People seem to have a mania about getting into the containers," he said.

ONE POSSIBLE solution is to outfit the bins with a vault-type sliding steel door that would be resistant to vandalism. But the cost of this kind of door would be about $1,000.

"Personally, I think the cost is too high for a program which is supposed to pay for itself, or generate money to pay for other environmental projects," Weinand said.

Rejected loads of glass and paper cost the village money in other ways. Besides the approximately $100 Arlington Heights is not paid for every

HUD reviewing seniors' housing

Plans for the proposed 119-unit senior citizens' housing project for Arlington Heights are being reviewed by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development, and there still is no date for construction to begin.

Victor Walchik, executive director of the County Housing Authority, said the housing plan was submitted to HUD in mid-April. "We hope to hear from HUD within the next 60 days. We just have to get formal commitment on funding," he said.

Walchik said he will have "no real dates" for beginning construction until the housing authority is assured of funding.

"We have to acquire the property, relocate tenants and set up a final architectural program. Until we're further down in the process, I'm really not in a position to set dates," he said.

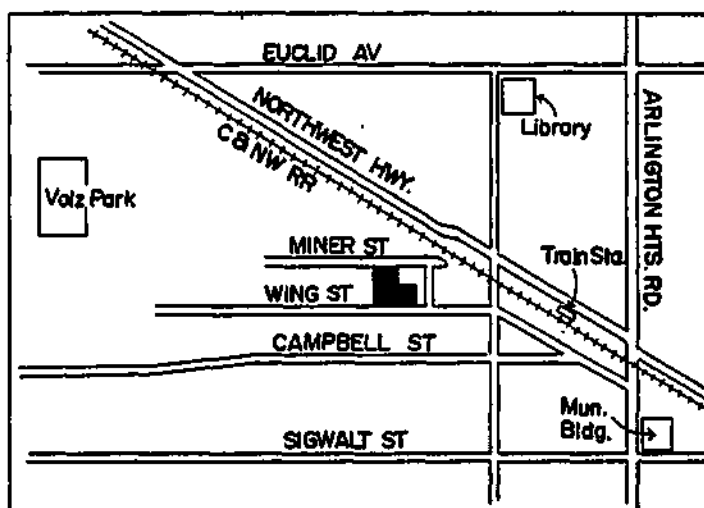

A ONE-ACRE SITE, west of Highland Avenue between Miner and Wing streets, was chosen by Arlington Heights officials for the 119 units of subsidized housing. The site also was approved by HUD.

The housing will be available to persons 62 years of age or older, with incomes not exceeding $4,900 and to couples with a combined income of not more than $5,600, according to HUD guidelines.

A one-bedroom apartment is expected to rent for about $50 a month.

The site is made up of six parcels with houses on five of them. Most of homeowners have agreed to sell to the County Housing Authority, which will purchase the property with federal money, Walchik said.

The housing authority is responsible for purchasing the site, building and leasing the facilities.

PETER T. GUTTILLA

by AL MESSERSCHMIDT

Wheeling Police Chief Peter T. Guttilla interceded Wednesday in a Niles traffic court hearing on behalf of the son-in-law of his secretary.

Guttilla appeared before Associate Judge James Maher Jr. of Circuit Court about 9:30 a.m. during a hearing on head-on, hit-and-run accident charges against Luis Arellano, 1630 Park Pl., Des Plaines.

"I'm the chief of police of the Wheeling police department," Guttilla told Maher. "We would like to have a pretrial conference. There are some circumstances here that I think should come out."

AFTER A pretrial meeting with

Guttilla, a key witness in the case, Gwyn Bontrager of Elkhart, Ind., asked Assistant State's Atty. Alan Scheinbaum to drop two charges against Arellano.

"Were you coerced or promised anything?" Maher asked Bontrager, whose car was damaged in a collision with Arellano's Buick.

"No, just that my damages were taken care of . . . they will be taken care of," Bontrager said.

Maher refused to drop charges against Arellano of leaving an accident and crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue. He continued the case until May 21.

MAHER TOLD Bontrager that the two accident charges will be dropped if he does not appear in court May 21.

A continuance in the case was requested by Scheinbaum because Patrolman Jack A. Hauber of the Sheriff's Police — who charged Arellano March 21 with leaving an accident scene, crossing the center line of Milwaukee Avenue, driving without a license and failure to purchase a county vehicle sticker — failed to appear in court.

A spokesman for Sheriff Richard J. Elrod said Hauber was on "medical leave" Wednesday.

Arellano is the son-in-law of Elizabeth Fenlon, Guttilla's secretary.

THE ACCIDENT occurred at about 8:45 p.m. March 21 two miles north of Hintz Road on Milwaukee Avenue. A spokesman for Elrod said Arellano's car crossed into northbound traffic and caused the collision. No one was injured in the wreck.

Guttilla denied that he attempted to talk Bontrager into dropping the charges. "That's not true. That's not true," Guttilla told The Herald.

"A friend of mine was there. I was there to keep him company. I wanted him to have a conference with the state's attorney. There was nothing to it," he said.

Vandals hurt village efforts for recycling

load of glass refused by the Ball Glass Co., Mundelein, there is a $50 to $60 hauling charge for taking the unwanted material to a dump for disposal.

THE RECENTLY rejected loads of glass is not a case of the glass company being overly selective, Weland says. Metal caps, rings or foil on bottles are ruinous to the glass recycling process, and mixed white and colored glass cannot be successfully reprocessed, he said.

The Arlington Heights Environmental Control Commission is aware of the problems with the recycling program, Weland says, and is reviewing the system to determine what may be done to correct them.

Arlington Heights has three recycling centers for glass and paper. They are accessible 24 hours a day, seven days a week. They are at the Municipal Building, 33 S. Arlington Heights Rd.; Fire Station No. 4, 3100 N. Arlington Heights Rd.; and Fire Station No. 3, 2000 S. Arlington Heights Rd.

Historical Society installation May 15

Harold C. Best will be installed as president of the Historical Society and Museum of Arlington Heights at the group's annual dinner May 15.

He succeeds Mrs. John L. Frieberg Jr., who has served for two years. Other new officers are John L. Frieberg Jr., vice president; Victor H. Belser, treasurer; Agnes M. Weir, recording secretary, and Mrs. John G. Corday, Mrs. Dan M. Serger and Donald L. Swanson, directors.

Thirty years before we developed Peak Toothpaste, you probably used our secret ingredient.

It's baking soda.

Baking soda: the natural cleanser and sweetener that people used to brush with, and that dentists still recommend. Both for cleaning teeth and as a soothing rinse for mouth and gums.

Be prepared. Peak is 97% natural ingredients, principally pure baking soda. It tastes pleasant, but different. Be prepared. Peak leaves your whole mouth—not just teeth and breath, but even mouth tissues and gums—feeling different. Feeling naturally cleansed and sweetened. Naturally refreshed. Uncomplicate.

Try Peak. Peak: the first modern toothpaste with the natural goodness of baking soda.

Prevent further disturbances

'More guidance needed at Camelot'

by DIANE MERMIGAS
A state agency has recommended improved supervision at a Palatine Township home for youthful wards of the state where a disturbance erupted in January.

The home, Camelot Child Care Center, 1502 W. Northwest Hwy., was evaluated by a six-man team of inspectors from the Illinois Dept. of Children and Family Services.

Alexian seeks Elk Grove funds for expansion

by JILL BETTNER
Alexian Brothers Medical Center is asking Elk Grove Village to issue $22.5 million in tax-exempt municipal bonds to refinance the hospital's debts and pay for expanding its facilities.

The low-interest bonds being sought by the medical center would be sold by the village without referendum and paid off entirely by the operating revenues of the hospital.

Richard Harrell, Alexian Brothers' first vice president, refused to discuss details of the bond proposal or the hospital's financial situation.

"This is one of the most economical ways for us to obtain capital," Harrell said as his only comment on the request.

VILLAGE PRES. Charles Zettk said hospital officials suggested the bond sale to village trustees in an executive session Monday night. The meeting was in apparent violation of the Illinois Open Meeting Act.

Zettk said based on the discussion at the meeting, it is his understanding that the hospital is not in serious financial trouble.

"The hospital merely wishes us to offer bonds on the market to improve their financial position and finish the expansion and renovation they've started," Zettk said.

Alexian Brothers has undertaken a $13 million improvements program that includes a partially-completed wing.

ZETTKER SAID hospital representatives have indicated they would use $14 million in proceeds from the proposed bond sale to refinance current debts, $3 million to cover costs of the expansion program and to put the remaining $3 million in escrow to meet "a financial crisis should one arise."

Donald Schlosser, community relations director for the state agency, said Wednesday the team gave Camelot a "favorable" rating, which urged more supervision in residence cottages at the center.

"The evaluation does indicate that the facility sometimes has trouble handling some of the kids and that more of the staff should be on duty at times when the kids are together in groups," Schlosser said.

Schlosser said most of the adolescents at the center "are difficult to manage and are not motivated to their own to constructively use their free time," he said.

IN JANUARY four youths were involved in a fracas with a sheriff's policeman when he arrived to assist the director with a youth who had gone out of control, Schlosser said.

Twenty-five squad cars from area police departments responded to the officer's radio call for assistance.

"I don't think you can say that an entire evaluation is based on one incident," Schlosser said. "We do extensive interviewing and review that goes into these recommendations. As for the incident in January, I think the police overreacted to a situation that was not that damaging."

SCHLOSSER ADDED that the evaluation was not done as an investigation and that the state evaluates all its child-care facilities each year to point out strengths and weaknesses to the center directors.

The evaluation also recommended encouraging youths to make better use of their free time, developing a peer-support program to give the youths an incentive to do "constructive things" and continuing remodeling the center's facilities, he said.

The evaluation "positively noted" the program and staff improvements that the directors James and Shirley Spicer have made since they purchased the 18-acre ranch in November 1973, Schlosser said.

THE CENTER was originally named the MRB Ranch after its founder, Milroy R. Blowitz.

The center is licensed to offer short-term treatment to 17 youths who are abandoned, neglected or troubled, ranging in age from 7 to 17.

Spicer, who has reviewed the evaluation of Camelot, said he and his wife will continue to make improvements in the facility and programming.

"We are trying to do a respectable, honest job here at the center. We are in the process of making changes, but we want people to realize that what goes on here is really not any different than what goes on in most homes with children," Spicer said.
